Dix Denies Application of Schiff Servant for Clemency and Orders Papers Sealed.

NO MYSTERY, HE ASSERTS,

In Spite of Attempts to Make It Appear So—Considered Only Official Reports.

ROSALSKY ASKS PUBLICITY

For His Report, Which He Says Will Make Startling Reading—Whitman Favored Prisoner and Is Surprised.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Gov. Dix to-night announced that he had denied the application for Executive clemency made by Foulke Brandt, who is serving a term of thirty years in State prison for having robbed the house of his former employer, Mortimer L. Schiff, in March, 1907. At the same time it was announced that Gov. Dix had ordered all the papers in the case sealed.

The Governor did not stay at the Executive Chamber to make this announcement himself, but left that task to his secretary, John A. Mason, and his legal adviser, Seymour Van Zantvoord. The Governor's decision was made public in this statement:

"The application for a commutation of the sentence of Lawrence De Foulke Brandt is denied. There seems to have been an attempt to inject mystery into this case, but there is no mystery. The prisoner made an application for clemency, and he was afforded every opportunity to present his plea in full. I thereupon asked for a report from the District Attorney and the presiding Judge, which have been filed. I have received no other papers. There have been no arguments, orally or by brief. No written or oral statement whatsoever from the complainant in the original case or any attorney on his behalf has been received. I have decided absolutely and entirely on the record."

Gov. Dix spent almost two days in conference with Mr. Van Santvoord over the case before he reached his decision. It was said to-night that he had read every word in the voluminous documents that were filed in connection with Brandt's application for a pardon or commutation of sentence.

As far as could be learned here to-night the Governor has not been in communication with Howard S. Gans or any other attorneys, retained by Mr. Schiff. These included Alton B. Parker and Paul D. Cravath, neither of whom has been seen at the Capitol.

Whitman Advised Clemency,

The documents submitted to the Governor included Brandt's petition and letters from him, supplementing his original request; the report of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, dealing exhaustively with the circumstances surrounding the offense of the convicted valet, his plea of guilty and his commitment by Judge Rosalsky; the report of Judge Rosalsky, made at the Governor's request, all the records bearing upon the conduct of Brandt while in prison, and the prison physician's report on his condition.

While under the Governor's order that the papers be sealed their contents must remain secret at least until some succeeding Chief Executive may decide to reopen the case, it is understood that the report of District Attorney Whitman favored Executive clemency and declared the penalty cruel and unusual, considering all the circumstances. Judge Rosalsky, on the other hand, is understood to have presented arguments that convinced the Governor that his action in sending the valet to jail for thirty years was justified.

The records, submitted by State Superintendent of Prisons Scott, showed that Brandt had been an exemplary prisoner. Unofficially he has stated that in his opinion the penalty inflicted in the Brandt case was excessive.

Mr. Van Santvoord remained at the Executive Chamber to-night to answer questions concerning the Governor's decision.

"The Governor ordered the records sealed," he said. "He does not want the papers in the case made public."

Nothing Heard from Mr. Schiff.

"Has the Governor received Mr. Schiff's side of the case?" he was asked.

"The Governor has not heard from Mr. Schiff, directly or indirectly, to my knowledge," Mr. Van Santvoord replied. "There is nothing of a written nature from any representative, nor was there any oral statement from any one connected with the complainant."

"It is stated that District Attorney Whitman reported to the Governor in favor a pardon on the ground that the sentence was excessive," Mr. Van Santvoord was told.

"That I will neither affirm nor deny," replied the counsel. "I cannot say what Mr. Whitman reported. I have seen what purports to be the findings of the District Attorney. They were probably made public in New York, unless they were stolen from this office. I am informed that reports in such cases are usually filed with the committing Magistrate. It is probable that Judge Rosalsky has the Whitman report. I know of no legal prohibition against making it public, if they wish to do so."

"It has been reported in the newspapers that the Detective Sergeant who investigated the record of Brandt at the time of his arrest, made a report which has since been denied," it was stated. "Would such a denial, if made to the Judge or to the Governor, have made any difference in the decision?"

"You must ask the Governor," Mr. Van Santvoord replied. "I do not know what effect it would have. That denial was not a part of the record before the Governor."

Mr. Van Santvoord Gets Angry.

The Governor's counsel became excited when the next question was asked by one of the reporters.

"Will not some persons, since Mr. Schiff has engaged such eminent counsel, and since nothing is published about the facts, come to the conclusion that influence, other than the merits of the case, has been used?"

Mr. Van Santvoord jumped to his feet and raising his clenched fist, shouted:

"I want you to understand that I have

MORGAN TAPESTRY BOGUS.

Panel Not from Flemish Loom—Last Rush to See Treasures.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—THE NEW YORK TIMES's art correspondent writes:

"The stir caused by the announcement of the withdrawal of J. Pierpont Morgan's art treasures from the loan section of the Victoria and Albert Museum has sent the public rushing to get a last glimpse of the superb collection before it leaves England.

"It appears to have escaped notice that a panel of tapestry lent by Mr. Morgan to the museum some little time ago was removed from the galleries and is no longer on public view. The panel, which is of small size and represents an incident in the story of Esther, was supposed to be a mervelously preserved fifteenth century product of a Flemish loom, but somehow suspicions of its genuineness were aroused and the tapestry was taken to the offices for closer examination. This was some time ago, and the panel has not been returned to the gallery.

"The fact is that the suspicions were only too well founded, and the South Kensington authorities have come to the conclusion that the alleged early Flemish tapestry is an exceptionally clever modern forgery."

CARDINAL GIBBONS FOR TAFT.

He Thinks Roosevelt More Popular, but Admires President.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons, before leaving for Baltimore to-day, declared that President Taft is entitled to a second term in the White House because of his accomplishments during his present term.

While not coming out as strongly as Historian Boyle of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who rehearsed the deeds of President Taft, and practically called upon Catholics to support the present Chief Executive, Cardinal Gibbons made it very plain that he is a Taft man.

"The Presidential question is a most difficult one to discuss," said Cardinal Gibbons. "Theodore Roosevelt is, perhaps, the most popular man in the country to-day, and he is a good man. But President Taft has shown himself efficient in office and sincere in all his efforts.

"Moreover, being in the saddle President Taft has a great advantage over any other candidate. His work during his stay in the White House deserves the second term recognition. But I also admit Theodore Roosevelt is a strong and vigorous man.

"The Democratic element must also be considered. The Democrats at present control the House, and so far have made no blunders. In the Democratic ranks there is lots of Presidential timber, and there are several big trees among the Democratic candidates.

"But, as I said before, Taft is in the saddle."

WOULD LABEL SINGLE MEN.

Philadelphia Prosecutor Favors Plan for Protection of Young Women.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—Joseph Rogers, Assistant District Attorney of Philadelphia County, has come out in favor of labeling single men. He believes they should be distinctly marked with some conspicuous label, and suggests that a neat bachelor button would be about the proper thing.

In advocating this innovation Mr. Rogers gives several reasons, the chief one being to protect young women from married men, as with the single men distinctly labeled, he declares, the lack of a label would also mark the married man and place him in a position where he could not flirt with unsuspecting girls.

Mr. Rogers bases his suggestion on his long years of experience in criminal courts, especially in the desertion and non-support courts. He also says he has gained some knowledge in divorce courts, where he has seen many homes wrecked through the naming of a single person as co-respondent. While the bachelor button would not eliminate this trouble entirely he believes it would go a great way toward remedying the evil where persons possessing consciences was concerned.

The last reason given by Mr. Rogers for the button is that it would be a sure sign for the guidance of the poor unmarried girl. When she saw a button it only would be necessary to steer for it and snare the wearer if he was susceptable.

"But how would you enforce the wearing of the bachelor button," Mr. Rogers was asked.

"Oh," he replied, "I am not going to discuss that matter. That is a nut for some other person to crack. All I say is that such an innovation would be a good thing."

GOV. HARMON 66 TO-DAY.

Ohio's Chief Executive Looking Rugged—Says He Feels Young.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 2.—Reminded of the fact that to-morrow would be his sixty-sixth birthday, Gov. Harmon said to-day that he had not thought of it. Looking rugged and buoyant, he said he felt no older than he did when he was a young man. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 210 pounds. When standing he is straight as an arrow. His hair, what there is left, is white. His eyes are grey and look at one straight from under shaggy brows. A close cropped grayish moustache covers a mouth that stands for determination, but can smile pleasantly and break into an open and hearty laugh. His chin is square and indicates a fighter.

"I perceive no difference in the approach of this birthday from that of earlier ones, except that each seems to come more quickly than the others," said the Governor. "My first feeling is gratitude to the ancestors from whom I inherited a strong constitution and to the parents who transmitted it with a training which has enabled me to preserve and enjoy it."

Gov. Harmon is methodical in his habits, excepting in bad weather he walks a distance of two miles to his office every morning and home at night. He is at his office at 8 A. M. and never leaves until 6 P. M. The Governor is a great home man and will spend the evening of his birthday quietly with his family. He is devoted to children and is a great favorite among the little ones in his neighborhood.

SUES TO RESTRAIN SUBWAY AGREEMENT

As Interboro Is About to Submit, Fresh Objections Are Raised and Court Attack Is Made.

TAXPAYER SEEKS INJUNCTION

Commission Cited to Show Cause Why It Shouldn't Be Prohibited from Conceding Preferential Payments.

While some members of the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate were hard at work yesterday trying to reach an agreement with the Interborough on the new subways and especially to get over a new financial difficulty which has arisen, notice was given to the Public Service Commission to show cause on Feb. 8 in the Kings County Supreme Court why an injunction should not issue to restrain them from making an operating contract with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit or with any other company in which the preferential payment principle is introduced.

The suit has been brought against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Brooklyn Union Elevated Company as well as the commission by John R. Ryon, a real estate and insurance agent of 166 Montague Street, Brooklyn, who, according to the legal papers, owns $20,000 worth of property within the city. The order to show cause was signed by Supreme Court Justice Maddox, and attorneys for the complaint are Baylis & Sanborn of 37 Liberty Street. At the Public Service Commission not much importance was attached to the suit.

"We are sure to have a number of suits brought against us," said Chairman Willcox, "as soon as we had reached a settlement of the Subway question. This has come rather sooner than we expected, but we welcome the opportunity to establish the legality of our actions."

The complaint rehearses the negotiations that took place over subways last Summer and the agreement with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. It then alleges that the Public Service Commission has undertaken to make an agreement with an operating company in which a preferential payment is involved, and the earnings of the lines owned by the city will be mingled and confused with those of the lines owned by the operating company, with the result that the city will obtain no part of the net earnings unless they are sufficient to make the preferential payment to the company.

Grown Weary of Delay.

Such a bargain, it is contended, would be unconstitutional, and consequently the acts of the Public Service Commission preparatory to the consummation of such a contract are illegal official acts, and their prosecution of preparatory work would be a waste of public funds.

Mr. Ryon, who is bringing this suit, would not discuss it, but referred inquirers to his counsel, Willard M. Baylis. Mr. Baylis denied that Mr. Ryon is in any way connected with the Interborough and said he represented him merely as a property owner and taxpayer anxious to get the Subway situation cleared up as soon as possible, and, being fearful that a false step now would result in still further delay.

"He is weary," said Mr. Baylis, "as most other citizens are, of the apparently inexcusable delay in reaching a solution of the rapid transit problem. He believes the best way to expedite matters is to remove legal doubts through a speedy determination by the courts. We ought to be able to carry the question through the Court of Appeals in six months."

When it was pointed out to Mr. Baylis that the Appellate Division had refused to consider the constitutionality of the proposed Brooklyn Rapid Transit contract and the preferential payment in the Admiral Realty Company's injunction suit on the ground that the contract did not yet exist and the Court could not assume that a contract, which must pass the scrutiny of the Corporation Counsel and the counsel for the Public Service Commission, would turn out in the end to be unconstitutional, he replied that it seemed to him Mr. Ryon's suit was not on all fours with the other. The realty company was attacking the construction contracts, while Mr. Ryon is raising the entire question of the operating contracts and is trying to prevent the waste of public money in preparation of an illegal bargain.

Litigation Inevitable.

It has been fully realized that whatever arrangement is made with the Interborough and the B. R. T. will have to be litigated. The Interborough knows that before it can hope to raise the $77,000,000 for its share of the new work it must be made perfectly plain to investors that there are no legal obstacles in the way of the use of their money. But it is felt that it is ridiculous at the present moment to bring any legal proceedings, and, especially, to ask for an injunction which would seem to prohibit the Public Service Commission from advertising for bids for the operation of the new subways. The preferential payment will not be included in the advertisements, but in the offers made by the companies in reply to them, and there will be time enough to test the constitutionality of these preferences when the offers have been formulated and finally submitted to the city.

A. J. County, assistant to Samuel Rea, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, had a conference with Chairman Willcox, Controller Prendergast, and Borough President McAneny yesterday morning. He was able to assure them that the Interborough would meet the city on the seven or eight points to which the city officials had taken exception in the memorandum of the company's terms. However, a new point was raised which it is understood concerns some of the financial conditions, which it had been thought had been finally determined by the fundamentals laid down by the city at the Downtown Association conference last week.

Still Another Objection.

None of the conferrees would discuss the matter yesterday, but it is believed that this new objection has come at a time when there seemed more chance of the city and the Interborough getting together than at any time before. Morgan J. O'Brien in his interview with the Mayor on Thursday, acting as one of the Pennsylvania negotiators, had found that the Mayor was ready to recognize that at the present juncture the city must do the best it can, and Mr. Rea in his conference on Thursday with the majority of the members of the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission had been able to reduce their demands considerably. Then the Interborough also showed itself in a yielding mood, and at what seemed almost the psychological moment for clinching the bargain this new trouble sprang up.

There will be further conferences, of course, though Chairman Willcox hardly thought there would be one to-day. Another meeting of the city officials was held yesterday, when there was a further discussion as to the South Brooklyn routes. Special attention was given to the possibility of a tunnel from Brooklyn to Staten Island, the interests of which were urged by Borough President Cromwell.

STEAMSHIP SUNK BY COLLISION IN STORM

Hamburg-American Liner Allegheny Goes Down Off the Virginia Capes.

ALL ABOARD ARE RESCUED

Taken on British Ship Pomaron, Which Is Also Damaged—Revenue Cutter Stands By.

The Hamburg-American steamship Allegheny, which left here yesterday for Central America and the West Indies, sank seventy-five miles east-northeast of Cape Henry, off the Virginia coast, after a collision with the British steamship Pomaron, according to wireless dispatches received here last night.

The Pomaron, with the passengers and crew of the Allegheny on board and convoyed by the revenue cutter Onondaga, is making slowly for port, the messages said.

Earlier wireless advices had told of the collision as occurring in a snowstorm off the Virgina capes, but said that, although the Allegheny was badly damaged, it was believed she could reach port under her own power. Last night's advices, although meagre, were to the effect that the damage to her hull was serious and that she sank not far from where the collision occurred, the Pomeron taking on board the sinking liner's passengers and crew. The Pomeron's bow was badly stove in, but the wireless advices were that she was apparently holding well through a moderate sea, with a strong northwesterly breeze blowing.

The revenue cutter Onondaga hastened to the scene of the collision in response to wireless calls, and she reported last night that she had "picked up" the Pomeron twenty-five miles east-southeast of Hog Island Light and was convoying her into the Virginia capes.

The two passengers on the Allegheny are J. P. Senor and T. A. Decla, both bound for Port Au Prince. The Allegheny was heavily laden with freight, her cargo comprising flour, cloth, and various manufactured articles, agricultural implements, &c. No estimate as to the value of the vessel or cargo could be obtained.

The Alleghany was one of the smaller vessels engaged in the West India passenger trade and was built at Glasgow in 1894. She is 310 feet in length, 38.2 beam, and 1,606 registered tonnage. She sailed from this port for Jamaica and Haiti at 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon with two passengers and a crew of fifty-five officers and men, and was in charge of Capt. Metzenthin.

The Pomaron is a small British steamship and bound from Baltimore for Charleston, in ballast, when the collision occurred. She is owned by the Linden Steamship Company and is commanded by Capt. Griffiths.

CAFE MARTIN IN TIMES SQ.

New Restaurant Planned at 42d Street and Broadway.

It was reported last night on good authority that J. B. Martin, proprietor of the Café Martin, at Twenty-sixth Street and Broadway, had disposed of his lease for $225,000 to a syndicate of capitalists, who intend to tear down the restaurant building and erect a twenty-story office building. Mr. Martin, it was said, had taken a lease of the site at the northeast corner of Forty-second Street and Broadway, now being cleared of old buildings, and would build there a large hotel and restaurant.

Before he sailed for Europe last July, Mr. Martin told THE NEW YORK TIMES that a company had been formed with $1,000,000 capital, all subscribed, to build a hotel and restaurant in Times Square, but he declined to give the exact site.

On his return from Europe he said that the plans for the office building on his present site were being drawn up, and he was negotiating for the disposal of the remainder of his lease, which had eleven years to run.

"It is true that I am negotiating for the site at Forty-second Street and Broadway," Mr. Martin said last night, "but the negotiations are not yet completed. Also several details remain to be completed in connection with the disposal of my lease of my restaurant building."

JUDGE BARS CLUBMEN.

Reno Court Says They Are Unfit for Husbands.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev. Feb. 2.—New York clubmen were branded as unfit material for husbands by Judge Moran in the District Court here this afternoon during the hearing of the action for divorce brought by Mabel J. Root against Wayne A. Root.

Mrs. Root sued on the ground of cruelty, the testimony being heard behind closed doors. Judge Moran asked the plaintiff if her husband was a New York clubman. She replied that he was.

"I am going to grant your decree," said the court, "and I don't want you to marry another New York clubman. They are unfit material for husbands, and two-thirds of the cases heard in my court, I mean those cases in which the evidence and allegations are of an objectionable nature, are cases in which some prominent New York club man has been the defendant."

SHANK OUT FOR GOVERNOR.

Indianapolis Mayor Announces He Would Like the Place.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 2.—A new candidate in the Republican ranks for Governor came into the limelight to-day. Mayor Sampel L. Shank of Indianapolis made the formal announcement that he would seek the nomination, and had high hopes that he could carry the State next Fall.

At the Fifth District convention this week at Rockville Mr. Shank was indorsed by the Republicans as the logical candidate. Mayor Shank has made many friends, especially in the rural districts, in his fight on the high cost of living and his efforts to have the producer get his full share for his wares by cutting out the middle man. The other candidates for Governor are expected to be Hanly, Miller, Lockwood, and Gilhams.

CONGRESS FRANK TO ADVERTISE DOCTOR

Free Mail Delivery of Kindred's Speech in the House and Also of His Address to Physicians.

ONE ENVELOPE HOLDS BOTH

And Is Marked Outside with the Name of His Sanitarium—Law Doesn't Permit This, but There's No Penalty.

Many physicians and surgeons who are residents of New York and Long Island have received envelopes from Washington, D. C., marked with the Congressional frank of Congressman John J. Kindred of Astoria, L. I. The envelopes are marked as containing a speech on "The Election of Senators" delivered in the House of Representatives on April 13, 1911.

On opening the franked envelopes their recipients have found a second inclosure, consisting of a six-page pamphlet much resembling a Congressional pamphlet in size and in the type used. It is a summary of a speech by Joseph J. Kindred, M. D., of Rivercrest, L. I. The speech has to do wholly with medical matters having not even a remote connection with the service of the Congressman in whose envelope it is distributed. It was delivered before the Electro-Theropentus Association at Philadelphia last September.

The speech is, in effect, an advertisement for the Rivercrest Sanitarium, kept at Rivercrest, Astoria, by Dr. J. J. Kindred. On the Congressional envelope is stamped with a blue stencil, "If not delivered, return to Dr. J. J. Kindred, Rivercrest, Astoria, L. I., N. Y."

Doctor and Congressman, One.

At the Rivercrest Sanitarium it was declared last night that John J. Kindred, M. C., who delivered the speech in Congress, and Joseph J. Kindred, M. D., who delivered the speech on nervous and mental diseases and the Rivercrest method of healing them, are one and the same person.

"Is Congressman John Kindred in?" inquired a reporter at the sanitarium, where more than 100 patients are cared for.

"No, he is in Washington," was the reply of a man who said he was in charge.

"Is Dr. Joseph J. Kindred in?" was the next question. The representative of the institution laughed. "Don't you know they are the same man?" he asked.

"And why the two names?"

"Oh, that's easy. They call him all sorts of names around here. Sometimes they call him just 'J. J.' and sometimes 'John J.,' sometimes 'Joseph John' and sometimes 'John Joseph.'"

A glance at the Congressional envelope and its inclosures indicated that nearly all of these appellations had been used. The Congressman's frank was in the name of "J. J.," the speech in Congress was headed "Hon. John J.," the return stamp was in the name of "Dr. J. J.," and the speech on medical topics was by "Dr. Joseph J."

The speech in Congress by the Hon. John J. on the election of Senators was very brief, requiring only two pages of type to set it forth, while the speech of Dr. Joseph J. on medicine was three times as long, and was printed on much heavier plate paper.

A number of neighbors of Dr. Kindred were found last night who stated that the sanitarium has recently been branching out and that Dr. Kindred is now busy building another sanitarium in New Jersey and has plans drawn for one at Bayside, L. I. Dr. Kindred's reputation in Astoria is that he is very rich and very affable. He is well liked.

A physician who sent a copy of Dr. and Congressman Kindred's speeches in their original envelope to THE TIMES called attention to the fact that the words "New York" on the envelopes were printed, indicating that the State address had been widely used. He stated that many of his friends had received the franked envelope and that all of them were puzzled to know why the two documents should come together, and whether the franking privilege covered such practices.

Postmaster Not Warned.

Postmaster John Wagner of Astoria stated that he never kept any account of Congressional franked envelopes passing through the Post Office unless especially instructed to do so from Washington. He said that he had received no such instructions in the case of Congressman Kindred, and so could not tell how many of the documents had been sent out. He said he was not interested in the contents of franked envelopes since he was expected merely to examine the covers.

In the Congressional Directory Congressman Kindred is listed as John Joseph Kindred, a Democrat, physician, of Long Island City. It is stated that he was born in Southampton County, Va., in 1864, and completed his medical studies in the Hospital College of Medicine in Louisville, Ky. To secure this education he "paid practically all his expenses from savings by clerking in a country store." Removing to New York in 1889 "without friends or money, he served as physician in many hospitals, and in 1896 he established the Rivercrest Sanitarium at Astoria."

Continuing the records say: "He has in no sense been a politician. His nomination and election to Congress came without any solicitation on his part. He is an active and liberal member of many civic, beneficent, and business organizations.

"He was elected by 6,900 majority over his Socialist and Republican opponents, leading the Democratic ticket in his district."

Law Violation With No Penalty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Congressman Kindred's case has not been called to the attention of the Post Office Department. Officials who have charge of the classification of mail matter, and to whom this matter would be at once referred, say that if Dr. Kindred's speech before the Electro Therapeutics Association had no official connection or bearing it is clearly not entitled to free transmission as franked matter.

There is no penalty for a violation of the law in this matter, but a postmaster is expected to examine such matter and satisfy himself that the matter thus offered for free transmission is legally entitled to pass through the mails. If it is not he is expected to report the matter to the authorities here in Washington.

In the present case, the matter having been sent, there seems to be nothing to do but to warn Congressman Kindred and look closely to the character of the matter he may hereafter offer to send through the mails under his frank. Post Office Department officials say that it is permissible to print on the envelope, as Dr. Kindred did, the return legend with his title of doctor and his place of business.

SENATOR GRADY DYING.

Taken Home from Sanitarium—Last Rites Administered.

The condition of State Senator Thomas F. Grady who is ill at his home, 151 East Thirtieth Street, of a complication of diseases, became so grave at 10 o'clock last night that Father Donahue of St. Stephen's Church, Lexington Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, was called and the last rites of the church administered.

Dr. Edward J. Donlin, Senator Grady's physician, and Dr. Egbert Le Fevre, a specialist, were in attendance upon the patient through the day and night, and his sister, Miss Margaret Grady, was called to the bedside. It was said early this morning that but little hope was held out for the Senator's recovery and that he might pass away at any time.

Senator Grady is 58 years old. His serious illness began about three months ago, when he was afflicted with gangrene of the foot and shortly afterward throat trouble and next heart trouble developed. He showed some improvement two weeks ago, and was able to attend a business conference at his office downtown, but soon after that was stricken, and on the advice of his physician was removed to the private sanitarium of Miss A. M. Galbraith at Lexington Avenue and Sixty-third Street.

Yesterday afternoon Senator Grady expressed the desire to be taken to his home, and he was removed there in an ambulance. His condition steadily became worse, and when he failed to rally to treatment it was announced that there seemed little chance of an improvement.

NOME FACES COAL FAMINE.

Costs $300 a Ton to Bring It Over the Snow Trail.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 2.—Negotiations are under way by the city to bring an ice-breaking steamer here with a cargo of coal to relieve the fuel famine.

The city has almost exhausted its fuel stores, and in the ordinary course of events the supply would not be replenished until the opening of navigation in June.

There is no wood on Seward Peninsula, and the nearest coal is at Candle, which is 210 miles east of here, and it costs $300 a ton to bring coal from there to Nome over the snow trail.

The weather has been mild, with the temperature rarely below zero. Yesterday the temperature ranged between 4 and 18 degrees above zero. Forty below zero has been common in previous Winters.

JAN KUBELIK CUTS HIS HAND.

Violinist, Injured While Manicuring His Nails, Cancels Concerts.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Owing to an accident to-day to Jan Kubelik, the violinist, the concert in the Auditorium Theatre, scheduled for to-morrow, has been indefinitely postponed. Mr. Kubelik was manicuring the nails of his left hand when the file slipped and cut under the nail, inflicting an injury which will make it impossible for him to touch the strings of his instrument for probably several weeks.

A number of concerts in other cities will have to be postponed.

Twenty-three thousand five hundred dollars in insurance premiums will be collected by Kubelik from Lloyds of London, according to the violinist's manager. That amount has been refunded on the advance sale of the canceled engagements. Kubelik's ten fingers are insured for a total of $235,000.

Miss Torrey, who is in the best of health for a woman of 87 years, will be accompanied by her nephew and niece, Dr. and Samuel C. Orton of Worcester. Mrs. Orton will make the entire journey, but Dr. Orton will go as far as Providence only.

At Providence the party will take the Federal express to Washington, which will bring Miss Torrey to the Capitol before 8 o'clock Sunday morning. She will be met at the Union Station by President and Mrs. Taft.

DRUGGIST GETS FORTUNE

From Tramp to Whom He Gave $1 Eight Years Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—Joseph Clair, a local druggist, to-day received word that a dollar given to an apparent tramp several years ago is about to be returned with interest, the interest amounting to $124,999.

According to Clair, one morning about eight years ago a man apparently suffering from the effects of a night out entered his store and told him a hard luck tale and Clair gave him a dollar. When the man got the dollar he told Clair that he never would forget it.

Clair promptly forgot the incident until a few years ago the same man entered his store and made him a present of a gold handled cane. This morning Clair received a letter signed by Meiller & Meiller, attorneys of Rockdale, Wyoming, in which he is informed that a rancher by the name of Joseph Waters had died and had left his entire property, valued at $125,000, to Clair.

In speaking of the alleged windfall this morning, Clair declared he wasn't going to spend the money until he had received it.

FIREMEN FIND HIDDEN COINS.

Thousands of Dollars Tied in Stockings Rescued Just in Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 2.—A fire started to-day in the stable of George Older, on the outskirts of the city. When about to spread to a small frame shed adjoining, owned by William Agster, the firemen entered the place with a hose. They saw a number of old stockings tied in rags and containing coins of every description.

The money was taken by Fire Chief Moran and given to Agster, who told the firemen to save the old trunk in the shanty. When the firemen tried to open it Agster demurred. He refused to say how much money he had stored in the shed, but the amount is said to have been several thousand dollars. He declared it was safer than in a bank.

FOUR MURDERED IN LAWRENCE

Two Men and Two Women Strikebreakers Are Found Slain in Tenement.

"SCAB" CHALKED ON DOOR

Victims Had Celebrated Uproariously the Return to Work Night Before Their Death.

FOREIGN QUARTER IN TERROR

New York Socialists at Mass Meeting Shower Money on Stage to Aid Lawrence Strikers.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 2.—Terror prevails to-night throughout the French-Canadian colony in Valley Street as the result of the murder of four strikebreaking operatives, who had returned to work in spite of threats made by members of the Italian colony in adjacent streets. In all the foreign quarter there is intense excitement over the crime, and only the presence and activity of the militia have prevented serious disorder and possibly interracial conflicts.

The four victims are:

Mr. and Mrs. JOSEPH SARVARIA.
Miss ANNA TANGUAY.
FELIX GONN.

Just before 9 o'clock to-night a fellow-countrywoman visited a three-story ramshackle tenement between Hampshire and Franklin Streets, in which a dozen families of French Canadian operatives are housed. While passing the landing on the second floor, she discovered blood coming from beneath the door of a three-room tenement occupied by the Sarvarias who two days ago returned to work in the mills. Shrieking in fright, she rushed from the house and told a group of tenants, gathered on the sidewalk. One of the men went up to the second floor and forced open the door.

In the kitchen he discovered the bodies of two men and a woman with their faces slashed almost beyond recognition. In an adjoining bedroom was found the body of the second woman, who had also been mutilated in most fiendish fashion.

In an incredibly short time the crime became known to other inmates of the house, who flocked into the streets, hysterical with terror.

News of the murders spread repidly until the entire district was aroused and a mob of several thousand persons filled the street from curb to curb. The women were half crazy with fright, while the men made loud threats of retaliation against the Italian strikers, who were thought to have committed the crime.

One Canadian forced his way to the front of the excited mob and in stentorian tones urged his fellow-countrymen to take reprisal upon the Italians in the adjoining section of the mill district.

Militia Promptly On Hand.

Before the mob could act on this advice two companies of infantry swept into the street at either end, and with leveled bayonets began to drive the crowd to the sidewalks and then into the neighboring tenements, whence they had emerged. In less than ten minutes after the murders were discovered, the streets had been cleared as if by magic, and members of the State and local Police Departments had entered the house and begun an investigation to discover the identity of the victims.

The murders are a direct result of the inter-racial jealousies in the ranks of the strikers. Since the arrest of Joseph J. Ettor, their leader, Wednesday morning, the strikers have been divided into opposing camps, according to the nationalities represented.

The Syrian, Armenian, Polish, Russian, Italian, and Lithuanian strikers have remained steadfast, and for the most part have refused to return to work. The Franco-Belgian, French-Canadian, and English-speaking people, who are the better paid classes among the operatives, have deserted in large numbers, and this fact has aroused considerable racial hatred.

The tenement in which the murders were committed lies in the most congested part of the city. It is a rear house, separated from the street by a row of four and five story tenements, and is accessible only by a dark, narrow passageway between two adjoining buildings. How the murderers could have done such a deed without being discovered or without the cries of their victims being heard is a mystery to the police.

It is believed that the four victims were slain early this morning. The police base this theory on the fact that the body of the woman, found in the bedroom, was only partly clothed, although the other victims were fully dressed. It is thought that the latter were seated about the stove in the kitchen with their backs toward the door, and were struck down from the rear without warning.

Three Men Seen Running Away.

From neighbors living on the opposite side of Valley Street, facing the alley which led to the house in which the murders were committed, the police learned late to-night that just before 5 o'clock this morning three ill-clad and evidently excited men were seen to run out of the passageway. Owing to the dim light the neighbors obtained only a slight glimpse of the trio.

The four victims resumed work in the lower Pacific Mill Wednesday, and last night they celebrated the event. Neighbors on the ground floor heard sounds of revelry, which ceased at 3 o'clock this morning. It is believed by the police that the victims were attacked just before daybreak, while in a drunken stupor. This, the police hold, explains why the murderers were not detected in the commission of the deed.

Dr. George W. Dow, Medical Examiner, viewed the bodies, and stated that all four had been dead for at least twelve hours before the bodies were discovered.

"Scab" Chalked on Door.

Peter Sarvaria, uncle of Joseph Sarvaria, informed the police that the morning after his four fellow countrymen resumed work the door of the squalid tenement in which they dwelt was heavily chalked with the word "Scab." From other residents of the French-Canadian colony it was learned that the same thing has occurred to other striking operative of that nationality who have resumed work.

The French-Canadians are in a state of terror and believe they are being spied upon by members of the Strike Committee of their own nationality, who report to the General Committee the identity of those who have been forced by necessity to resume work. As the result of the quadruple tragedy of to-night, it is believed that many of those who have already returned to the mills will refuse to do so to-morrow morning.

In the opinion of prominent attorneys of this city there is little doubt that the habeas corpus proceedings begun at Boston by the strikers for the release under bail of their leader, Joseph J. Ettor, to-morrow, will be successful. They declare there is no prima facie case upon which to hold the labor leader, and, in addition, it is asserted that there is no precedent for the arrest of an alleged accessory where the perpetrators of the crime itself are unknown.

Should Ettor be released from prison to-morrow, the situation will assume a grave and dangerous aspect. It is known that unless the mills have a complement of at least 30 per cent. of their regular hands at work on Monday, approximately $35,000,000 worth of time contracts, now to be filled by the twelve mills affected, will have to be sent to factories in other cities.

Should this be done, the strike leaders declare, a general strike will be called throughout New England to force the mill owners to yield.

RAIN OF MONEY FOR STRIKERS.

Anarchists and Socialists Raise Fund at Carnegie Hall Meeting.

Carnegie Hall presented a remarkable spectacle shortly before 11 o'clock last night when, in the midst of a debate between Emma Goldman, the Anarchist, and Sol Fieldman, the Socialist debater, William D. Haywood, the Western labor leader, who was one of the four men tried for the assassination of Gov. Steunenberg of Idaho and is now one of the strike leaders in the textile strike at Lawrence, Mass., arose and made a plea for money for the support of the textile strikers.

The result was a rain of money. From the boxes and the galleries bills and silver were thrown upon the stage, girls ran through the great audience taking donations. Emma Goldman and Fieldman stopped debating and began to help pick up the money, while Haywood, shouting with all the great power of his lungs, urged the people to "Keep the good work up." Haywood said that when the Lawrence strike was won, a strike of all the textile workers in the United States would probably be ordered.

"I don't want a man or woman in this audience," Haywood shouted, "to go out of this place with more than carfare in his or her pocket."

Previous to this plea Haywood had made a long speech on the Lawrence strike, and as a result of a passing of hats through the audience immediately after that speech $452.04 had been raised. He had only asked for $300, and when he saw that his request had yielded so much more than he asked, he decided the time was ripe for a second appeal, and the shower of coins from the boxes and the galleries was the result.

Haywood was the Chairman of the meeting, the occasion of which was the debate between Emma Goldman and Fieldman. The audience that paid to get in was as great in number and just as enthusiastic as was the greeting that was extended to Senator La Follette when he exhorted in the same place recently.

It was a remarkable audience. Every nationality, it seemed, was represented. There were men and women, gay and old, and at least a third of all those present were young men and women. Of the latter hundreds appeared to be girls still in their teens. In the boxes were scores of finely dressed women, and these were every whit as enthusiastic as were the poorer people in the top galleries in their applause of the anarchistic utterances of Emma Goldman, who argued that direct and not political action was needed to solve the problems of the working classes of America. Fieldman had the political action end of the argument.

Haywood came from Lawrence to preside at the meeting. The big, one-eyed leader was not down for a speech, but he was there to make one just the same, and before the evening was over he had made two or three. His first was a denunciation of Gov. Foss, and a direct charge that men in the employ of the owners of the textile mills of Lawrence had planted dynamite about the city to have an excuse to ask for the militia.

Haywood said the average wage of the Lawrence strikers was $6 a week, and that out of this the mill owners had deducted an average of 22 cents a week from each worker. The result was the strike.

"While the strikers were walking peacefully out of the factories," said Haywood, "the mill owners turned the hose on them, and the water that was thrown upon those men and women and little children was hot. They could not get an excuse for the militia that was a legal or a just one, and so the mill owners decided to make an excuse. And how did they do it? They sent minions in their employ about the city, and these men, and not the strikers, planted dynamite in various parts of the City of Lawrence.

"The dynamite was, of course, discovered and then they had their excuse and demanded that the militia be sent to Lawrence. The Governor of Massachusetts is Foss, and Foss, being a mill owner himself and a politician with aspirations, did as they asked and sent the uniformed butchers to Lawrence to baptize their bayonets in human blood. A Syrian was stabbed in the back by a drunken soldier and he died, and then a sharpshooter shot and killed a defenseless woman. They are there to do murder.

"The soldiers have failed to break the strike, and now they have tried another trick and put Ettor, the brave leader of the strike, in jail. When they imprisoned Ettor they sent to jail a dangerous man, dangerous, I mean, to the mill owners, and a man who is to-day more valuable to the working classes than is any labor man that I know of.

"Now, these people, these 25,000 men and women and little children, are fighting for their right to live. They are the persons who clothe you, and yet they are the persons who are naked. I want to say that if the Lawrence strike is won, and I believe it will be, that an effort will be made to extend it to all the textile industries in the United States."

Then it was that Haywood had the hats passed around, and the contribution of $452.04 was the result.

After this first collection Emma Goldman and Fieldman had their chance. Emma Goldman opened the debate. She shouted that "the working class must use the strongest weapons at their command," whereupon the audience shouted out its approval. She did not name the weapons. "Direct action," she said, was a weapon that "will strike the most vital spot of the capitalistic class," and when the cheering ceased she said the vital spot she had in mind was property.

"Direct action," she said, had saved the lives of Haywood and Pettibone and Moyer, and she said that two other men who had stood for direct action were the McNamara brothers. The McNamara affair, she said, proved that a class war was on in this country.

Fieldman was just as extreme, but he was for political and not direct action. He denounced the McNamaras and referred to the assassinations of the Empress Elizabeth of Austria and of President McKinley.

"They sent a man over the ocean to kill a sweet old woman simply because she was the wife of a king," said Fieldman, "and another, while shaking the friendly outstretched hand of a man, shot and killed that man because he was a President of the United States. If that is direct action, why, then I say, with all my soul, damn direct action."

A mass meeting of sympathizers with the strikers at Lawrence will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Union Square, near Seventeenth Street. William Haywood will be one of the speakers and Emma Goldman has also promised to be on hand.

The demonstration was planned last night at a meeting of sixteen organizations in sympathy with the strikers. The Italian Socialist Federation will be in charge.

BOSTON FACTORIES DANGEROUS.

Garment Workers' Union Prompts Investigation by Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 2.—Mayor Fitzgerald to-day ordered an investigation of charges made by the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, that large numbers of women and girls are employed in Boston workshops from which escape in case of fire would be impossible.

A letter from the union asserts that Building Commissioner Everett has failed to enforce existing laws, and asks his removal.

Washington Headquarters for Harmon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Senator Pomerene has asked the Ohio Democrats in the House to meet him to-morrow night and discuss the Presidential candidacy of Gov. Judson Harmon. A Harmon headquarters is soon to be opened here.

WATTERSON WRONG, DECLARES SMITH

Talked of Wilson for President, Not Governor, at That Deal Beach Conference.

SAYS WILSON SHIFTS OFTEN

Ex-Senator Says It Is Difficult to Keep Track of His Movements—Recalls Political History.

"Since Col. Henry Watterson has dragged me into the controversy between him and Col. Harvey and Dr. Woodrow Wilson," said ex-United States Senator James A. Smith, Jr., yesterday, "I shall take the liberty of setting Marse Henry right on a vital point or two. The discussion during our meeting at Deal Beach, referred to by him, was not about the Governorship of New Jersey, but about the Presidency of the United States. The Governorship was never mentioned in any way, was never even alluded to, and, so far as I know, was not in the mind of the doctor or of either one of the two Colonels, at any time during that immortal interview. Marse Henry is badly mixed in his facts."

What Col. Watterson said ran in part:

> During the early Summer of 1910 I was passing a week-end with Col. George Harvey, an old friend, at Deal Beach. There arrived for dinner Dr. Woodrow Wilson and the Hon. James Smith. The talk at table was mainly about the prospective nomination of a Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey. Mr. Smith declared that he wanted nothing for himself; only to see the State redeemed; that no one but Dr. Wilson could redeem it, and the like.

At his home in Newark yesterday Mr. Smith talked freely to a NEW YORK TIMES reporter about the Deal Beach episode and guardedly about other matters. And all the time he talked he wore a sadly puzzled expression. After a bit he explained his expression in this way:

"I am having considerable difficulty in understanding why all this rumpus has been kicked up over a matter that looks very small to me. It remained for Col. Watterson, or Marse Henry, as those who love him call him, to excite my interest. He did this by relating as a fact something that is not a fact. I am taking pleasure in setting the Colonel right, and I hope he will appreciate the motives that move me."

"You distinctly recall that talk at the beach?" Mr. Smith was asked.

"Most distinctly," he replied. "Why should so small a matter as a Governorship engage the attention of two big Colonels? They were interested solely in no smaller concern than finding a President of the United States. Not a word was said about any Governorship or about any Senatorship. I want you to make that plain. There was also some discussion about the condition of the Democratic Party in the Nation and something was said about what a good thing it would be if Dr. Wilson could be elected President and the party redeemed. I wonder how Marse Henry could have got the facts mixed up the way he did."

"When did the talk take place?"

"I distinctly remember that, too. It occurred a year ago last June.

"So far as the Senatorship is concerned, that is an old story. After Dr. Wilson was elected he called on me here in my home and said that the place of Senator was to be filled, and if I didn't care for it would I not look over the field and see who there was that could fill the place. He told me the primary law was a farce and that it would have no weight with him. And then he left me, and almost immediately afterward declared that the primary law was a sacred thing and must be obeyed."

Throughout the interview Mr. Smith referred always to Gov. Wilson as Dr. Wilson. He displayed no bitterness in his manner, but seemed to regard the whole matter as humorous.

"New Jersey," he said once, "has got itself into a fine scrape over a mighty small matter. But maybe it will be just the same as ever when this blows over."

He was asked if a divided delegation would not go from the State to the National Convention. He replied:

"I think that very likely. New Jersey is unlike any other State in the Union. It elects very few of its officials. Nearly all of them are named by the Governor. He has about 200 appointees, whose salaries range from $2,000 to $15,000 a year. Among these appointees are Judges and other places that carry a great deal of influence with them. A man who has been out of active politics a long time soon finds that the men who were associated with him have either passed out of political life or that they have made new connections. The method gives the Governor a chance to build up a system, which is something that I believe I was charged with having and of which I have recently been deprived. If this is true, I do not know it. I seem to feel just about the same as ever. Still, the system, I am told, has been destroyed."

Mr. Smith was asked what he thought was Dr. Wilson's idea in refusing the aid of Harper's Weekly and seeking the aid of Col. Bryan.

"I am sure I do not know. It is difficult to keep track of Dr. Wilson's movements. Before he got into politics he was opposed to the initiative and referendum and the recall. But now I believe he wants them both or the other way around. Anyway, he has changed. If he should ever go back to where he started from I suppose he would return to his original principles."

"Isn't it a fact that Dr. Wilson and Col. Bryan are very friendly?"

"Maybe that is so. During the first Bryan campaign Dr. Wilson voted for Palmer and Buckner. That was the occasion when he wanted the Colonel knocked into a cocked hat. Dr. Wilson did not take the trouble of having himself recorded during the other two Bryan campaigns, so I do not know how he stood on those occasions."

Gov. Harmon's name was mentioned and Mr. Smith said, "He is a most conservative man." Then he added:

"I have heard it said that the Democrats will nominate Col. Roosevelt in case he is rejected by the Republicans and Bryan can't land the place."

"You think the Democratic Party is in a bad way?"

"Do I?"

Something was said about Thomas F. Ryan's interest in the Democratic Party. Mr. Smith promptly replied:

"The statement has been printed that Dr. Wilson didn't want any of Ryan's money."

"Did he get any of Mr. Ryan's money?"

"Ask Ryan."

"Do you know?"

"Ask Ryan."

CHINESE INDORSE WILSON.

Students Express Appreciation of the Governor's Attitude Toward Them.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey received another boom for the Presidency last night when the New York Chinese Students' Club indorsed him for the stand he has taken regarding Chinese immigration. The students met in their rooms at the Presbyterian Chinese Church, 225 East Thirty-first Street, to listen to Dr. Poon Chew, editor of the Chung Sai Yat Po, who recently returned from China. He told of his experiences in the land he had not visited in thirty-two years, and made an appeal to America to recognize the new Republic.

After this address J. Yeung, one of the students, arose and said:

"I do not speak as either Republican or Democrat. I am from the South and have the sentiments of a Southerner. The time is here for a Presidential election. One of the candidates for that office is Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey. Gov. Wilson has expressed his friendliness for the Chinese. Gov. Wilson has said that the Chinese who come to this country are of a better class than many of the immigrants that come here from Europe. The Governor has not only shown his friendliness to us, but shows his appreciation of our people. For this I wish to offer a resolution expressing our appreciation of his act and our feeling of friendship for him." The resolution was put by President Huie and declared adopted unanimously.

"I went back to my native land after thirty-two years," said Dr. Poon Chew in his address, "and I was prepared for surprises, but not to the extent that I received them. I found there the trolley car, the steamship, and the other improvements. When I could not get home on time I was wondering what I would do, and it was suggested that I telephone, and there was the telephone right at hand.

"The revolution is an act of patriotism. We want to get rid of the corrupt structure built up by the Manchus. It has been advanced that the Chinese lack patriotism. They never have, but it has been suppressed. Even the young are ready to go to war to shake off the grip of the oppressor. There is no lack of her young men who are ready to go to fight, but what she needs is the arms. She needs arms more than men just now. There is danger from foreign intervention. This is a grave danger. If it had not been for British intervention in 1850 to 1854 the present chapter in her history would already have been written.

"Let me tell you that the present army is led by Christians. President Sun is a Congregationalist, the Vice President is an Episcopalian, and some of the Cabinet officers are converts. China is not looking now to Europe for help, but to America. If America extended to us her hands in friendship, the other nations would not dare interfere. A prominent Republican said it would not do at this time to recognize us; it would not be an act of friendliness to another Government. Well, what about Panama, where a revolution had only been in progress forty-eighth hours when this country openly recognized and assisted Panama?"

The speaker closed with an appeal to the Chinese in New York to aid the cause with money. China, he said, was a country of great natural resources, and was going to take her place as one of the greatest nations in the world. He told of children running away to join the revolutionists and other incidents going to show that China did not lack patriotism but money and arms.

GOV. DENEEN LEADING FIGHT ON ROOSEVELT

Trying to Keep Resolution Indorsing Him Out of Cook County Convention To-day.

HAS SUPPORT OF MACHINE

In Midnight Conference with Chauncey Dewey, the Colonel's Champion in Illinois—Hot Contest Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—With the slate practically agreed upon, and which the Deneen-Busse-Pease-Campbell forces will try to put through the Cook County Convention to-morrow, Gov. Deneen went into conference late to-night with Chauncey Dewey, leader of the Roosevelt forces in Illinois, in an effort to induce Dewey to call off the proposed attempt to indorse Col. Theodore Roosevelt in the convention.

Upon the result of this conference rests the decision of Gov. Deneen as to whether he will go out after the Senatorship or a renomination for a third term as Governor.

A platform was written early to-day and it indorses Gov. Deneen's administration as well as that of President Taft.

Gov. Deneen told the Roosevelt spokesman that unless he kept his Roosevelt resolution out of the convention, he (Deneen) would cut loose from the organization forces, with the inference that he would no longer try to keep the Republican organization intact in Cook County. If the Dewey people will agree to the Governor's programme, then the Governor will announce his candidacy for a third term. If not he will go out after the Senatorship. Meanwhile the Deneen faction, it was said, was willing to give the Roosevelt people half a loaf by agreeing to a resolution in the convention, calling upon County Judge Owens to provide a preferential primary on Presidential candidates in connection with the State-wide primaries on April 9.

Plans for bringing the Roosevelt resolution before the convention were outlined to-day at a meeting of Dewey and his aids. While it was not thought advisable to have one of the leaders introduce the resolution, it was decided that they were powerless to keep some of the instructed delegates from rising on the floor of the convention and presenting the declaration. Later in the day Col. Dewey was urged by his men to make an open fight for Roosevelt in the convention, and this information caused the greatest alarm among the slate makers. Headed by Gov. Deneen, ex-Mayor Busse, Postmaster Campbell, James Pease, and Robert R. McCormick, the slate makers will meet again at 9:30 o'clock to-morrow morning in the convention hall to complete the slate and the programme with respect to the indorsement of Gov. Deneen.

If the Deneen-Dewey conference develops no agreement before morning, then it is said to be the plan of the old organization forces to adopt a set of rules whereby the Roosevelt resolution can be kept off the floor of the convention.

It is proposed that a rule be adopted with the use of the gavel if necessary whereby all resolutions must be referred to the Resolutions Committee without reading. In this way a committee could be named that would vote against presenting the resolution. Dewey and his aids declared that if such an attempt should be made there would be a fight on the floor of the convention. It is being freely predicted among politicians that the Roosevelt resolution will be pushed through.

Gov. Cary of Wyoming spent an hour to-day discussing the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt with the Roosevelt Committee, but did not finally commit himself to the Roosevelt boom. He has promised to attend the Roosevelt conference here next Saturday, but will not speak his mind until then.

Highland Park has a citizen who desires to have Col. Roosevelt re-elected Vice President. He is H. S. Vail, and he is for Taft for President. He has issued a call to the Republicans of Lake County to meet with him and discuss that question.

Taft at Republican League Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Arrangements have been completed for the annual dinner of the League of Republican State Clubs to be held here on Feb. 10. The speakers will be President Taft, Gov. Goldsborough of Maryland, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Senators Root of New York and Penrose of Pennsylvania, Representatives Longworth of Ohio, Hill of Connecticut, and Woodmansee of Ohio.

JOHNSON SEES ROOSEVELT.

Offers California Delegates to the Colonel, but Won't Talk About It.

Gov. Hiram W. Johnson of California, who has been in the city for several days, called upon Col. Roosevelt at The Outlook office yesterday. Neither the Colonel nor the Governor would say anything about the visit, although it is understood that the Governor told the Colonel that he could have the California delegation at the Chicago convention for the asking.

It was remembered that when Mr. Johnson was a candidate for Governor last year, Col. Roosevelt wrote him a letter of indorsement, which aided materially in his campaign.

Gov. Johnson is at the Waldorf, but he refused to see reporters yesterday. He said he intended to remain in New York several days. Mr. Johnson makes the fourth Western Governor who has seen Col. Roosevelt in the past two weeks. The other three are Gov. Glasscock of West Virginia, Gov. Stubbs of Kansas, and Gov. Carey of Wyoming.

Two other callers on the Colonel yesterday were State Senator Donlin of Montana and Brig. Gen. Winfield Scott Edgerly of New Hampshire.

TAFT MAN INDIANA LEADER.

State Committee Chooses Fred Sims Chairman in Place of Lee.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 2.—The members of the new Republican State Central Committee met here to-day and selected Fred Sims, ex-Secretary of State and now a member of the State Board of Tax Commissioners, as Chairman. Sims is a pronounced Taft man, and has been at Washington several times as an adviser of the President on Indiana matters.

The committee did not indorse President Taft for renomination, but did give his Administration hearty approval. The members agreed that it was best not to make any declaration regarding his candidacy. The retiring Chairman, A. B. Lee, who gave out a statement at Washington that Taft cannot carry the State, said that he was for the man the Republicans nominate at Chicago and would do all he could for his election.

The committee fixed March 26 as the date for the State Convention, at which delegates at large to the National Convention will be chosen.

CLEWS DECLARES FOR TAFT.

Makes a Speech to Market Traders and Gets Three Cheers.

Henry Clews, the banker and broker, who has been in Wall Street for so many years that he hates to reckon them, has a habit of crossing the hallway which separates his private office from the large customers' room each day for the purpose of delivering a short lecture to the traders in front of the quotation board. He usually makes these excursions about noontime, but yesterday he varied his practice by waiting until after the close of the market. Then he ignored the market and the things that might be expected to interest his customers in order to talk politics. He said:

> I am quite of the opinion that President Taft is entitled to renomination and will get it. He is well qualified for a second term through the experience which his first term gives him. The next four years will require a man well tried in the National service, with a judicially trained mind, conservative and honest, as there are many breakers ahead of us that require just such an Executive to grapple with and carry us through successfully.
>
> I feel pretty sure that the interest of my esteemed friend, Col. Roosevelt, will be better served by working for President Taft and aiding his election. His powerful influence will help immensely to bring about such a result and will inure to his own advantage, as Mr. Taft cannot succeed himself after the second term. If a new man replaces Mr. Taft he will be eligible for another term, and should he prove to be a good President would be apt to get it, whereas after Mr. Taft's next term the logical successor would be Theodore Roosevelt, and his chances then for election would be infinitely better than at the coming election.

When he had concluded Mr. Clews called for three rousing cheers. Judging by the response, some of the listeners were not enthusiastic Taft men, but the cheers were given, and Mr. Clews announced that William Howard Taft had been re-elected for another term.

At a regular meeting of the Republican District Committee of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, held last evening at the district headquarters, this resolution was adopted:

> Mindful of his services to the Nation, and recognizing his statesmanship and honest devotion to the cause of the people, the Republican District Committee of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District of the County of New York hereby pledges its loyal support to the renomination and re-election of William Howard Taft.

P. Tecumseh Sherman, former State Commissioner of Labor, talked on plans for the establishment, by law, of some form of workingmen's compensation.

HILLES STIRS UP STUBBS.

Kansas Governor Says Even the Ohio Delegates Will Oppose Taft.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—Gov. Stubbs of Kansas, issued a statement to-night in reply to the one given out by Secretary Hilles in Washington yesterday to the effect that President Taft was gaining in strength and would be "nominated and elected." Among other things the Governor said:

"We have the amazing spectacle of the President's secretary trying to stop the rapidly rising 'Roosevelt tide' and put heart and hope into his associates by claiming the State of Ohio for his chief.

"I have representatives of the most reliable and trustworthy character which indicate that unless conditions change at the very last, the majority of Ohio delegates will be opposed to the renomination of the President.

"The introduction into Congress of anti-third-term resolution in the same way illustrates the panic stricken condition of the Democratic leaders. This is caused by the spontaneous, insistent demand from all sections of the country—and by all classes of people—for Roosevelt's nomination."

IT'S TAFT, SAYS SHERMAN.

Vice President Never in Doubt of President's Renomination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Vice President Sherman at the White House to-day added his comment to that of other Republican leaders who believe President Taft will be renominated and re-elected.

"The situation, so far as President Taft is concerned, has improved wonderfully in the last four weeks," said he. "During three weeks of that time it was under the surface; in the last week the improvement has been above the surface. I never have had a doubt as to the renomination of President Taft.

"The Republican Party wins its victories in November, and not in February. History will repeat itself this year."

MORE TAFT INDORSEMENTS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Telegrams were received at the White House this evening to the effect that the Republican Congressional Committee of the Sixth Virginia District at its meeting in Roanoke to-day had unanimously indorsed the Administration and had also indorsed President Taft for renomination.

Information was also received at the White House to-night from Chattanooga that the Congressional Committee of the Third Tennessee District had met today and after calling its convention for March 4 unanimously indorsed President Taft for renomination.

EDITORS FOR GOV. MARSHALL

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 2.—The Democratic Editorial Association at its midwinter business meeting to-day, adopted resolutions commending the records of the Democratic officials, indorsing the candidacy of Gov. Marshall for the Presidency, declaring the present Democratic administration one which is saving a total of more than $1,000,000 for the people of Indiana, and expressing rosy views of the prospects of "relief from Republican misgovernment in National affairs."

The association also took steps to co-operate with the Republican Editorial Association in a fight against the increase of postal rates on second-class matter as now proposed by the Post Office Department, the editors urging that instead of the department's plan, legislation be enacted which would make the amount of postage commensurate with the distance traveled by the newspaper.

Considerations That Count—
In Selecting a Route

When you are going to Chicago or St. Louis you are influenced in your choice of routes by quality of service, safety, distance, convenience of schedules and time in transit.

Safety To safeguard its passengers, the Pennsylvania Railroad is protected by the most approved system of automatic block signals and its trains are constructed of steel.

Distance The Pennsylvania Railroad is the shortest line by many miles from New York to Chicago and St. Louis.

Departures Through trains to Chicago and St. Louis leave the Pennsylvania Station, at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-second Street, one block from Broadway, at convenient hours of the morning, afternoon and evening.

Time The "Pennsylvania Special" makes the run from New York to Chicago overnight in 17 hours and 55 minutes. The "24-Hour St. Louis" makes the run from New York to St. Louis in 24 hours. Other trains make the runs on fast and accommodating schedules.

LESS STRESS AT ELECTIONS

But Some Democrats Are Silent on the Anti-Third Term Resolution and May Avoid Voting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—There was a good deal of interested comment among members of Congress to-day over the two resolutions introduced yesterday by Representative Slayden of Texas, one declaring against a third term and the other proposing an amendment to the Constitution making a President ineligible for re-election. The first is a House resolution, and there seems to be no trouble in the way of its passage. The Democrats are openly afraid of another Roosevelt candidacy, and want to arm themselves against it as well as possible. Numerous House Republicans declined to discuss the matter to-day, and some of them frankly said that if the resolution should come to a vote they would find it convenient to absent themselves.

Four years ago, when there was so much talk about President Roosevelt desiring a renomination, Judge Clayton, now Chairman of the House Committee on Judiciary, introduced such a resolution as the one now brought forward by Mr. Slayden. But no action was taken on it, and when Mr. Roosevelt repeated his declaration of election night, 1904, that "under no circumstances will I be a candidate or accept another nomination," Judge Clayton introduced another resolution congratulating him on that statement.

Comment was decidedly more free today on the Slayden proposal limiting a President to one term, and Chairman Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee came forward with a novel idea that the Presidential term should be cut down to one year. He argued that such a provision would greatly lessen the stress attending Presidential elections.

Senator Penrose said that he had always favored a single term for a President, and did not know but it would be better for the country to limit the term of the President to one year, as the term of the Governor of Massachusetts is limited.

"Pennsylvania established the settled policy a number of years ago," said he, "that there should be no succession of executive officers. Much is to be said in favor of the ineligibility of executive officials for re-election. This policy in Pennsylvania has worked well. There the principal State and county officials cannot be re-elected. This rule applies to the Governor, Auditor General, and State Treasurer, and likewise to Mayors, Sheriffs, and County Treasurers.

"The Pennsylvania practice relieves political conditions from intrigues and complications of aspirants who desire to hold on to office indefinitely. When the Constitution of the United States was under consideration the question was seriously considered whether the term of the President should be limited to four years. his principle is deep seated in Republics, and is devised to prevent executive usurpation and runs through the practice of all Republics, especially where they result from overthrown monarchies. To go a little way into the history: The Romans did not permit the Consuls and other executive officials to be eligible to re-election during the palmy days of the Republic. It was only after the decay of Rome that the practice arose of continuously electing the same officials to office.

"It may be urged that the same rule should apply to legislative office. But the contention is not well taken and never has been made as to legislative officers. Experience and the knowledge obtained from continued service count pre-eminently in legislative work, and a legislator is only one of a large number. His power amounts only to his own vote or such influence as he may legitimately possess. No patronage attaches to the office of legislator, and he does not possess the vast powers of an Executive centered in one individual.

"The charge of Executive usurpation cannot be brought against the legislator as it can against the Executive.

"Governors of some States are elected every year, and apparently the one-year term works as well as a longer term. The suggestion has been made that the term of the President should be lengthened and the President made ineligible for reelection. Perhaps the shortening of the term would tend to remove much of the stress of a Presidential election and the violence of the conflict. In the day of constant clamor for the extension of popular government the latter proposition is certainly worthy of serious consideration in connection with the general subject."

MONTREAL, Feb. 2.—Alderman L. A. Lavellee was elected Mayor of Montreal yesterday by a majority of 12,090 over Alderman George Marcil. The total vote was: Lavellee, 28,888; Marcil, 16,798.

seen no one connected with Mr. Schiff except Mr. Gans, who left no report, and did not discuss the case. This matter has been decided on the record."

"But might not some people come to that conclusion?" continued the reporter.

"Then let them."

In the Brandt case Gov. Dix departed from the usual procedure owing to the wide publicity the application has received. In ordinary cases the Executive makes no announcement in a pardon case unless the pardon or a commutation is granted.

ROSALSKY FOR PUBLICITY.

Judge Who Sentenced Brandt Would Be Glad to Make Report Public.

Mortimer L. Schiff declined at his home, 932 Fifth Avenue, to see reporters last night in connection with the Brandt case. A note was sent up to him telling him that Gov. Dix had decided against commuting Brandt's sentence, and asking him whether he would comment on the Governor's action, or whether he proposed taking any action in regard to the statements made by those who were backing Brandt's plea for release. Mr. Schiff declined to comment on the case in any way.

Howard S. Gans, who was retained by Mr. Schiff and took a leading part in the opposition to Brandt's plea, was not at his home, 401 West End Avenue, last night, and it was said there that he would not return till late.

Judge Otto Rosalsky, who sentenced Brandt on the burglary charge and who filed a report of the case at the Governor's request, said last night upon hearing the Governor's decision against commuting Brandt's sentence:

"I am exceedingly anxious that the Governor may release my report on the case, but inasmuch as it was sent to him as a confidential communication, I am in no position to make it public until he shall consent to such release. As soon as he does so, I shall be glad to make it public. The report discussed the question solely from the standpoint of a Judge based on the facts before him. I knew nothing of the data on which the prisoner based his plea. The report, if made public, will be exceedingly interesting and even startling, reading, and I thinks the Governor could with great propriety release it."

It was understood at the time Judge Rosalsky filed his report that he had answered every argument, set forth by District Attorney Whitman in his report to the Governor, except those which dealt with the insinuated attacks on characters not involved in the case as it stood before Judge Rosalsky. In conclusion Judge Rosalsky stated to the Governor what he thought should be done.

It is known that Judge Rosalsky has long made it a policy to deal with especial severity toward burglars who commit violence in a house.

It was said by Mr. Van Santvoordt at Albany that it is customary for a District Attorney, on making such a report as Mr. Whitman made to the Governor, to file a copy thereof with the committing Magistrate. Judge Rosalsky admitted last night that District Attorney Whitman filed a copy of his report with him, Monday morning, the day he sent the original to Gov. Dix. When he was asked to make public a copy of the report Mr. Whitman had filed with him, Judge Rosalsky said Mr. Whitman had marked it "confidential," and that therefore he could not see his way clear to giving it out without the District Attorney's sanction. Should Mr. Whitman be willing to release it to-day, he said, he would be glad to make public his copy. He added that if after consultation with his colleagues and further deliberation he could see his way clear to making public his own report with propriety, he might do so at the Court House this morning.

As to the Governor's decision, Judge Rosalsky said:

"The action of Gov. Dix is just what I expected."

District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, when seen at his home, at 37 Madison Avenue, last night, expressed surprise when informed that Gov. Dix had affirmed the thirty-year sentence of Brandt. He said:

"I am greatly surprised to hear that Gov. Dix has affirmed the sentence of the Brandt boy, but I have no statement to make regarding the matter."

Mr. Whitman, when asked if the case would be investigated by the Grand Jury, as has been hinted, replied that he was uncertain as to just what action he might take regarding such an investigation.

LONDON HEARS KAHN MAY BUY DUCAL HOME

New York Financier Said to be Negotiating for the Purchase of Stafford House,

AND A COUNTRY HOME, TOO

Credited Also with Parliamentary Ambition—All Considered Extremely Unlikely Here.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Londoners are showing much interest in Otto H. Kahn as a likely addition to their ranks.

Some curious rumors about Mr. Kahn are current. One is that he intends to stand for Parliament; another is that he is contemplating the purchase of Stafford House from the Duke of Sutherland, and is also negotiating for the purchase of Sir George Faudel-Phillips's country house, Balls Park.

At the home of Mr. Kahn at 8 East Sixty-eighth Street, a member of his family said last night:

"Mr. Kahn left for England on a brief business trip the early part of last month, and is expected to sail for home next Wednesday on the Olympic. The fact that he was seen in public with London friends of his, I suppose, has given rise to many rumors.

"It is extremely unlikely that he is contemplating the purchase of Stafford House from the Duke of Sutherland. The family has been spending more time each year abroad. If Mr. Kahn has made any plans for the future, they will probably become known on his return."

Mr. Kahn is a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and a prominent figure in current financial affairs. His trip to Europe was believed to have resulted from that firm's connection with the reorganization of the Wabash system, for which it is acting as bankers.

Among his friends Mr. Kahn has made no secret of the fact that if he were to consult his personal wishes only he would retire from the banking business to give his time to more pleasant pursuits. He is not yet forty-five years old, and feels that he should not think of retiring for several years. He is very fond of music and is himself a violinist of ability.

Mr. Kahn took a country house near London during the coronation and spent several months in England. On his return to this country last Summer he confessed that he had formed a strong attachment to England, and would like to be able to close up his business affairs here and make that country his permanent residence. He is a native of Mannheim, Germany.

Mr. Kahn was a close business associate and warm personal friend of the late E. H. Harriman, and since Mr. Harriman's death he has shown less interest in railroad matters. To those who knew his intimate connection with numerous important financial interests his frank admission, made on the deck of the steamer, to the effect that he would like to drop out of active business affairs, came as a great surprise. He supplemented this statement later with the information that he was not likely to give way to his inclinations for a few years at least.

WAR ON NON-UNIONISTS.

Need Extra Police Protection Against Lancashire Weavers' Hostility.

MANCHESTER, Eng., Feb. 2.—The unremitting warfare which is being waged by the weavers against the non-unionists has caused the authorities to draft a large body of extra police into the city from various points of Lancashire for the protection of the workers who do not belong to the unions. The unions also refuse to recognize the Roman Catholic weavers, who have organized a union of their own.

Rioting has occurred in a number of localities, and another general strike of the cotton operatives is threatened on Feb. 5.

The disturbed condition in the Lancashire cotton trade began at Christmas, when 2,500 operatives at Accrington refused to work with three non-unionists. A lockout was declared, and the movement spread to other towns, till some 300,000 workers were affected.

The mills were stopped for three weeks, during which the operatives lost $3,000,000 in wages, while the spinners, who were placed on half pay, sacrificed about $1,215,000. It was estimated that the total cost to employers and workers was $30,000,000.

On Jan. 19 a truce was agreed to for a year and the men returned to work, but have since displayed great hostility to non-unionists.

TO BUILD ST. THOMAS DOCKS.

West Indian Islands' Council Grants Concession to Danish Compay.

ST. THOMAS, Danish West Indies, Feb. 2.—The Colonial Council unanimously adopted a bill to-day granting a concession to a Danish company to deepen the harbor of St. Thomas and build wharves, docks for the largest of steamers, shipyards, and warehouses.

According to a recent dispatch from Copenhagen, Prince Waldemar, a brother of Queen Mother Alexandra of Great Britain, was to be made President of the Board of Directors of the Danish company formed in Denmark to develop St. Thomas. The company, it was stated, considered that with the completion of the Panama Canal St. Thomas would prove a valuable and important harbor, and become the international commercial and shipping centre of the West Indies.

The company, it was said, purposed to spend about $7,500,000 on the project. According to a bill introduced in the Danish Parliament, the Government was asked to grant the company a concession in the harbor of St. Thomas for ninety-nine years. The bill made St. Thomas and St. John, a nearby Danish Island, free ports.

$2,000,000 LOAN TO PERSIA.

Britain and Russia to Advance This Sum to Aid Shah's Government.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Great Britain and Russia will shortly advance to Persia another $2,000,000, in order to relieve the immediate necessities of the Persian Government.

A dispatch from Moscow to The Daily Telegraph states that the two countries named are also about to revise their joint agrement concerning Persia, adopted in 1907, in order to bring harmony out of the existing conditions in that country.

TEHERAN, Persia, Feb. 2.—The resignation of Premier Samsam-Es-Sultaneh and the other Cabinet Ministers is imminent. They are likely to be replaced by men having a more friendly disposition toward the Anglo-Russian policy in Persia, an important announcement concerning which is expected shortly.

No definite details are available as to the amounts of money previously advanced to Persia by Russia and Great Britain, but it was generally understood that large loans had been made by those two countries. In May, 1911, the Persian Government contracted with the Imperial Bank of Persia, whose headquarters are in London, for the issue of $6,250,000 of 5 per cent. bonds at 96½ per cent. The loan was issued with the approval of the British Government.

REMBRANDTS COMING HERE.

Picture Dealer Bringing Two—Denial That Lord Derby Is a Seller.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Persistent rumors have been current of late to the effect that the Earl of Derby has sold or is negotiating for the sale of his Rembrandt, "Jacob Swooning at the Sight of Joseph's Coat," and that the picture is to go to America.

Inquiries made in quarters which are most likely to know the truth of the rumor elicited an emphatic denial, but similar denials have been made in other cases, only to be followed, after a lapse of a few weeks, by the announcement that the picture in question had found its way into some famous American collection.

Meanwhile I am able to state that one of the leading London picture dealers is on his way to New York with two important paintings by Rembrandt. Strict secrecy is preserved concerning the titles and owners of these works.

SEEK INNOCENT JEW'S DEATH

Kieff Reactionary Charges Him with Ritual Murder—Plan Fresh Pogroms.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—The Central Jewish Relief League of Germany has received a confidential report alleging a plot at Kieff to railroad an innocent Jew to the gallows on the ground of having committed a ritual murder, in order to provide an excuse for fresh pogroms.

The Jew whose death is made the pretext of the trial was a resident of Kieff named Justsehinski. He was murdered a year ago, and as the slayer could not be found a reactionary caused the arrest of a Jew on a charge of ritual murder.

Although positive evidence was submitted to the authorities this week that the Jew was innocent, they declined to interfere with the trial.

It is feared that a conviction, which is almost certain, will provoke violent anti-Jewish outbreaks.

TROOPS THRONG TO PEKING.

When Premier Yuan Has 20,000, Abdication Edict Will Appear.

PEKING, Feb. 2.—Premier Yuan Shi-Kai's troops continue to come into the capital. When 20,000 men have been concentrated here it is stated that the decree announcing the abdication of the Emperor will be published.

It is reported here that the Viceroy of Hukwan, province of Shanasi, has signed an agreement to join the Republicans and lead a Republican army into Peking if this step should be necessary to compel the Emperor's abdication.

A revolutionary force has arrived at Tsimo, which is situated in neutral territory near Kiachow. The Germans have protested against this force stopping at Tsimo, declaring that such action infringes the Treaty of Kiachow.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—According to authoritative views expressed here, the moment has arrived in the Chinese situation when a joint agreement by all the interested powers, including Japan and the United States, pledging themselves to take no step in China, except in common, is desirable and even necessary. Russia, Japan and the other powers, to whom intentions of fishing in the troubled Chinese waters for their own advantage have been attributed, have promptly denied the insinuations, but it is realized here that the danger of intervention is steadily growing the longer the revolution continues.

Germany, it may be said, does not look with favor upon the possibility of separate action, either by an individual power or a group of powers. Her objections to such a move are self-evident. Germany believes that the existence of a pledge by the powers to act only in concert in China might prevent any necessity of active intervention, especially if the powers gave the necessary weight to their representations at Peking and Shanghai. It has not been ascertained whether such an agreement has been proposed to the powers.

The contingency of Germany and the United States drawing together in their Oriental policies, in view of the danger of a general scramble for the outlying dependencies in the north and the south of the Chinese Empire, has been advanced by some persons familiar with Far Eastern conditions, but inquiries made to-day at the German Foreign Office elicited an answer which indicates that this idea has not yet been entertained here.

NANKING, Feb. 2.—President Sun Yat Sen is confident that a satisfactory settlement of the revolution will be effected in a few days.

The official Gazette says that rioting has occurred at Sutsien, north of Kiang-Su. The revolutionary troops there ran amuck, looting houses and stores and killing twenty-one persons.

COMMENDS OUR NEUTRALITY.

Our World Policy Forms a Magna Charta for Mankind, Says Tribuna.

ROME, Feb. 2.—The proclamation of neutrality of the United States in the war between Italy and Turkey, signed by President Taft on Oct. 24, is reproduced in entirety to-day in the Tribuna. The newspaper, in commenting on the proclamation, evidently aims at comparing the correctness of America with the different attitude of other countries. It says:

"President Taft's message is worthy of the great Nation, which, from its own force, freely interprets its international duties, which are accepted not only in theory but also in practice, thus forming a kind of Magna Charta of all mankind."

Army Plot Ousts Servian Cabinet.

HAMMERSTEIN WILL HALVE OPERA PRICES

Persuaded That Success of His London Season Is Jeopardized by High Rates.

NORTHCLIFFE'S AID LIKELY

Peer's Newspapers Expected to Support Undertaking—Made Reinhardt's "Miracle" a Success.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—As a forlorn hope to obtain the support of the public, Oscar Hammerstein decided to-day that, beginning Monday, he will reduce the prices of admission to the London Opera House by one-half, thus bringing them into line with the ordinary theatre prices.

This is done in response to the widely expressed opinon that the reason the public will not go to the opera is that the prices are too high, and that if the public could have good opera at popular prices, Mr. Hammerstein would be successful. Hereafter, the prices will range from half a guinea ($2.62) a stall to a shilling (24 cents) in the gallery.

"They can't find anything wrong with my opera," said Mr. Hammerstein to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "so they criticise my prices. I am taking them at their word and reducing prices for the rest of the season. Now we shall see!"

I have reason to believe that Mr. Hammerstein in this new phase of his undertaking will have the powerful support of Lord Northcliffe and his papers, which have just worked a miracle by turning the Reinhardt production, "The Miracle," at Olympia from a flat failure into a real success.

"Thanks to the perceptive and dynamic genius of Lord Northcliffe," writes J. L. Garvin in The Pall Mall Gazette, "London has awakened to the existence and meaning of the greatest thing of its kind that has ever appeared in our midst."

Mr. Hammerstein's decision to reduce his prices was finally influenced by an editorial article in Lord Northcliffe's The Evening News, which predicted the eventual success of the London Opera House if its advice were followed.

HAMMERSTEIN LOSES APPEAL.

Court Holds That the Tetrazzini Judgment Must Stand.

City Court Judge McAvoy denied a motion yesterday to set aside a verdict for $977 against Oscar Hammerstein, rendered by a jury in the siut brought by Meyer Resnick, as assignee of the Theatre Française, Montreal. The suit was for a violation of a contract to produce Mme. Tetrazzini to sing. Resnick charged that Hammerstein arbitrarily canceled the date because he could make more money by presenting Mme. Tetrazzini in this city.

Arthur Hammerstein and William Hammerstein, sons of Oscar, testified that Mme. Tetrazzini was sick and could not sing on the night in question. The singer was examined at her apartment and said that the story told by the young Hammersteins was not true.

MGR. BONZANO SEES POPE.

Pontiff Tells Him He Is Well Fitted to be Papal Envoy Here.

ROME, Feb. 2.—Mgr. Giovanni Bonzano paid a visit this morning to the Vatican, where he was received by the Pope for the first time as Papal Delegate in the United States. The occasion was the Feast of the Purification known as Candlemas.

In accordance with tradition all the heads of religious orders and of Roman Basilicas and colleges presented the Pope with beautiful candles made purposely for the occasion.

Mgr. Bonzano for the last time took the candle offering of the College of the Propaganda of Faith. Mgr. Thomas F. Kennedy, Rector of the American College in Rome, represented that institution. Many Americans were present at the ceremonies.

Mgr. Bonzano, in presenting his respects to the Pope, said that he felt the weight of the responsibility which had fallen on his shoulders with his acceptance of the office of Papal Delegate in the United States. The Pope congratulated him and spoke most encouragingly, saying that he knew that Mgr. Bonzano was extremely well fitted for the post.

4,303 MILES BY WIRELESS.

Washington Gets Day Messages from Fleet at Honolulu via San Francisco.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—By way of Mare Island Navy Yard and Key West, Fla., Admiral Thomas, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, now at Honolulu, was in communication with Washington to-day, the entire distance being covered by wireless messages. The original message from the Hawaiian Islands was picked up by the wireless tower at Mare Island and relayed across the continent to the wireless station at Key West, which promptly telegraphed it to the Navy Department here.

The significant feature was that the transmission was effected in daylight over a distance of 2,098 miles from Honolulu to Mare Island, and 2,205 miles from Mare Island to Key West, or 4,303 miles in all. Heretofore day wireless messages have had a comparatively short range.

HONOLULU, Feb. 2.—Wireless messages to this city from Washington via San Francisco, apparently intended for the fleet, have been intercepted by the operator at the new land wireless station here. The messages were overheard clearly.

The interception of messages from inland points on the United States mainland establishes a new record for the Honolulu station, due, probably, to its location on a much higher spot.

FILIPINO ASSEMBLY QUITS.

Many Measures Unpassed—Extra Session Called for Action on Them.

MANILA, Feb. 2.—After a stormy all-night meeting the Legislative Assembly finally adjourned at 6 o'clock this morning, thus closing its second session, Because of squabbles between the houses over questions of privilege, only about seventy bills have been passed by the Assembly, and many important measures are still outstanding.

Governor General Forbes immediately called an extra five days' session to settle the outstanding measures. A repetition of last year's deadlock over the appropriation bills seems likely.

Kaiser Slightly Indisposed.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Owing to a slight indisposition, Emperor William absented himself from a musical entertainment he had planned for this evening.

LAMPCONS AMERICANS.

Berlin Punch Depicts German Idea of Their Manners at Kaiser's Court.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Ulk Refman (the Berlin Punch) caricatures the prevailing conception of American manners at the Kaiser's Court in a cartoon depicting an unmistakable transatlantic patriot in the act of removing his dress coat and circulating about in his shirt sleeves.

To a haughty, coronetted Countess, who was observing him aghast, the American says: "Very fine here in the Emperor's castle, Mrs. Countess, but very hot."

WOMAN TO EXPLORE MOROCCO

France Commissions Mme. Dugast to Investigate Conditions.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The French Government has intrusted an important mission to Morocco to a woman, Mme. Camille Dugast, who probably knows that country better than any woman.

She will leave on Wednesday next for Southern Morocco, which is its least explored part, to conduct researches into social and economic conditions.

CEDRIC PASSENGERS HALTED.

Liner Unable to Land Them at the Azores or Maderia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CADIZ, Feb. 3, (on Board S. S. Cedric.)—The Cedric of the White Star Line did not land passengers either at the Azores or Madeira.

W. H. BUTLER, Passenger.

The White Star Line had no information last night on which to base an explanation of the Cedric's failure to land at the Azores and Madeira, as complained of by one of the passengers in the above dispatch. The Cedric sailed from New York on Jan. 24 with a full complement of passengers for Mediterranean ports, and was scheduled to call at the Azores and Madeira on her way to Gibraltar. According to a cable dispatch received here on Jan. 31, the vessel was off the Azores on Jan. 30. It is probable that the liner was unable to land her passengers there owing to rough weather, as the harbor is unprotected from westerly gales and heavy seas.

The Union Castle steamships sometimes have to wait twenty-four hours at Madeira before they can land their passengers or take on coal. Recently, owing to storms, the Trent had to retain passengers who were to have landed at the Azores and transfer them at sea five days later to a homeward-bound steamship.

SUBMARINE SINKS; 14 DEAD.

Gunboat Hazard Rams the A3 While at Torpedo Practice Off England.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Feb. 2.—The total loss this morning of the British submarine A3, with the whole of her crew of eleven men, after collision with the gunboat Hazard off the eastern end of the Isle of Wight, adds another to the long list of similar accidents which have occurred in the British Navy in recent years.

Besides the regular crew of ten men and a Lieutenant on board the A3, the Admiralty states that three other Lieutenants were on the vessel, going through a course of instruction, and were drowned when the submarine sank, making a total of fourteen deaths.

The submarine went out of harbor this morning to carry out a series of diving and torpedo exercises, and sank like a stone immediately after her collision with the gunboat Hazard.

A big escape of gas, which was observed on the surface immediately after she sank, indicates that the vessel quickly filled with water.

The submarine lies on the Princess Shoal, almost on the same spot where the submarine A1 was lost with all hands on March 18, 1904.

Torpedo practice had been in progress for some time when the submarine came into collision with the gunboat Hazard, which was steaming at a fairly high rate of speed, and when the latter struck the submarine her bows cut a big rent in the little vessel's side. As the A3 settled down, which she did in a few moments, and then disappeared, air and gas bubbles appearing on the surface told the crew of the Hazard that she was filling with water.

The Hazard threw out life buoys and launched boats, in case any of the men should succeed in escaping, but none of them came to the surface.

The crew of eleven on board the vessel, which is one of the older class, was composed of volunteers from the men of the fleet, as is the case with the complements of all submarines. The men, in spite of the hazardous nature of the service, like the work and volunteer in large numbers to be detailed to the submarine flotillas.

Many submarines are stationed at Portsmouth, from which port they constantly go out for diving and torpedo practice in the roads, and a number of fatal accidents have occurred in the vicinity.

Under the admiralty regulations only the brief official report of the sinking of the submarine is available, and it is not known yet where the blame, if there be blame, for the accident lies. No one who witnessed the disaster will be permitted to speak of it until after the official inquiry.

The salvagers located the sunken submarine late this afternoon lying on the sandy bottom off Spithead, some forty feet down. Owing to the darkness they suspended operations for the night, and to-morrow morning will make an attempt to raise the wreck.

King George and Emperor William this evening sent telegrams of regret and sympathy to the families of the victims.

Peace was brought about between the revolutionaries and the Government forces at a conference at which Thomas C. Dawson represented the United States and was successful in bringing the parties together.

DENTISTRY

Doubtless you know that specialists are indispensable for the best results in the complex work of dentistry.

But do you know of an office where the services of specialists may be had in each of the six dental branches? An office of long standing and proven worth? An office manned by reputable, skillful men and not by quacks or students?

You can learn of such an office, and read what many well-known people think about it, in my booklet, "Dentistry by Specialists and the Gentle Art of Painlessness."

REVOLT IN CHIHUAHUA CITY

Mutinous Rurales Compel Governor to Release Imprisoned Leaders After Several Hours' Fighting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—The greatest uneasiness prevails in this capital with respect to the situation in the States of Chihuahua and Morelos. In addition to the gravity of the happenings in themselves, it is feared that the uprisings at Ciudad, Juarez, and Chihuahua City, and the fact that in both cases the authorities seem to have yielded to the demands of the malcontents, will be a signal for other outbreaks in different parts of the country.

Abraham Gonzalez, Minister of the Interior, who is also Governor of Chihuahua, is preparing to go thither at once in an effort to settle the local difficulties.

In a telegram to the Minister of the Interior the Acting Governor of Chihuahua says he observes an apparent lukewarmness in the efforts of the Government troops to quell the disturbance. This seems like a reproach on Gen. Pascual Orozco, who is handling the military end of the situation in Chihuahua, and, coupled with Orozco's recent resignation, brings that chief's loyalty into question.

No new developments are reported from the State of Morelos, but the country all around Cuernavaca and between Mexico City and Cuernavaca is infested with Zapatistas.

CUERNAVACA, Feb. 2.—Nine Zapatistas captured Wednesday at Tlaltenango and another man, charged with being a spy of Zapata, were executed to-day in compliance with orders issued in connection with the act suspending constitutional guarantees.

OUTBREAK IN CHIHUAHUA.

Rebels Attack Prison and Compel Governor to Free Leader.

CHIHUAHUA, Feb. 2.—Ninety mutinous Rurales, aided by a score of recruits, after a sharp fight to-day, compelled Gov. Gonzales to release from the penitentiary Antonio Rojas, a former partisan of Emilio Vasquez Gomez, and three of his followers.

Gonzales surrendered to the demands after three hours of fighting near the prison in which the loyal Rurales were commanded by Gen. Pascual Orozco in person. The mutineers agreed with Gov. Gonzales to quit fighting if the four prisoners were released.

Five Rurales are known to be dead, and a number wounded. Among the latter is Silverio Orozco, cousin of Pascual Orozco. The dead include Capts. Salgado and Guillerez. The rebel losses are unknown.

Rumors are current that more bands in the hills will join the rebels, and residents of the city ar not confident that the mutineers will keep their agreement, which did not include a promise to surrender. The men still retain their arms, and it is believed that they will join the campaign in favor of Gomez.

The seditious movement started early this morning when ninety Rurales deserted from one of the barracks, taking their arms. At the western edge of the city they were joined by Refugio Mendoza, a former Captain of the Rurales, recently discharged by Gen. Orozco. An hour later they attacked the guards at the penitentiary.

Both sides fought from vantage points behind the buildings, Orozco forcing the rebels back to the outskirts of the city. Rebel firing slackened, and Orozco gave the order to cease firing. Soon afterward the rebel emissary appeared and asked a conference with the Governor.

To-night members of the White Cross Society assisted in the work of recovering and caring for the wounded.

During the fight citizens were terrified, business houses being closed and residences barred. Foreign residents ran up the flags of their nations and begged their Consular representatives for protection.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 2.—Peace envoys were sent south to-day, ostensibly to confer with Federal leaders encamped at Samalayuca with several hundred troops, said to be from the Torreon garrison en route to Juarez.

The peace mission departed in response to a message from Gen. Pascual Orozco at Chihuahua, in which he urged his friends in Juarez "to treat with the Federals and if possible prevent an attack."

The exodus from Juarez continued today, and the town is almost as deserted as it was prior to Madero's attack last May. Mexican Federal property, including Post Office supplies, were moved to the American side and stored in Federal buildings.

José Orozco, a cousin of the General, and a few loyal ex-insurrectos, are reported to have joined the Federal troops at Samalayuca.

APPEALS TO WASHINGTON.

El Paso Citizens and Governor of New Mexico Ask for Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—According to representations made at the White House to-day by Representative Smith of the El Paso district, the trouble at Juarez is likely to provoke a situation worse than anything that has yet marked the Mexican rebellion.

Mr. Smith told the President that he had received telegrams from the Mayor of El Paso and the Chamber of Commerce asking him to obtain the aid of the Government to maintain order. The citizens of El Paso are apprehensive of what may happen when the Mexican regulars approach Juarez and undertake to subdue the mutinous troops.

Last Spring during the revolution the fighting constantly menaced the people of El Paso and five persons were killed and eighteen wounded in consequence of firing across the international line.

The President also received from Gov. Mills of New Mexico, a telegram asking him to take steps to protect the citizens of the State. The War Department has as yet taken no action beyond scattering 300 Cavalrymen along the border near El Paso to prevent the Mexican mutineers from crossing the line.

Reports received from Col. Steever today indicate that two Americans named Repuke and Saviyas, were wounded in Juarez Wednesday night and have been brought to the El Paso Hospital. It is feared that the former may not live. Col. Steever says the mutineers are in complete control of Juarez.

It is reported that Gen. Orozco of the Federal Army is on his way to Juarez from Chihuahua with 800 men. The bridges on the Northwestern Railroad within twelve kilometers of Juarez have been burned and tracks of the Mexican Central Railway have been torn up.

Col. Estrada, who was in command of the troops at Juarez Wednesday night and was taken prisoner has been released and appointed Jefe de Armas. Senor Maestas has been named Jefe Politico. Thus order has been temporarily restored.

It is reported that the discontented soldiers are being paid to-day at the Custom House.

PARIS GREETS GABY DESLYS.

Dancer Arouses the Enthusiasm of Matinee Audience at Theatre Femina.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The Théâtre Femina Champs d'Elysées was crowded this afternoon when Gaby Deslys made her first appearance in Paris since her return from the United States. She was accompanied by the young American, Harry Pilcer, her dancing partner.

The first number, "Come and Dance," is sung with a series of contortions by the male dancer, whose appeal, to the accompaniment of a catchy air, is so irresistible that his partner yields and joins in the dance. Gaby Deslys's lightning-like gyrations as she is pulled round the stage by her partner roused the audience to the greatest enthusiasm. One encore was not enough, and the couple gave the dance a third time. The entire audience hummed the infectious refrain, "Swing me round till I tell you No."

The second dance, a sort of "grizzly bear" called "Deedle-dum-dee," is opened with the male dancer on his knees, singing the air, to which he keeps time by a tiny pantomime, moving his thumbs up and down. Miss Deslys, seated in a chair beside him, follows his movements for a time; then she drops on her knees. As the dance proceeds they jump up and follow one another with gliding steps around the stage, singing as they go. Their pace quickens. Pilcer swings his partner around one arm, encircling her neck, and at the end of the mad whirl suddenly seizes her and hoists her in the air above his head.

"Deedle-dum-dee" was a great success, and a matinée triumph for the eagerly awaited dancing novelties from the United States.

Mr. Pilcer says he is "just crazy" to go to London to exhibit his steps.

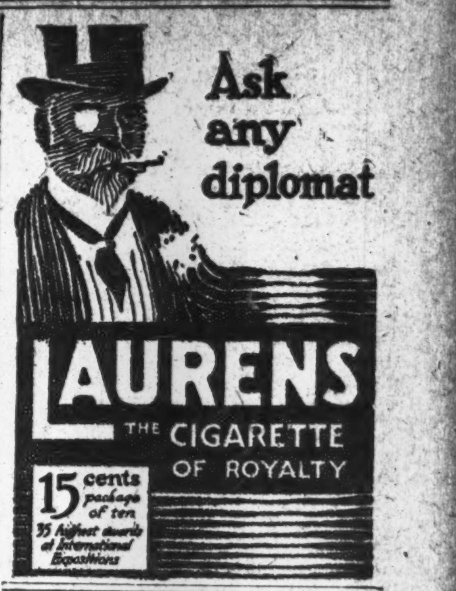
Ferrara Condemns Reckless Appropriations—Veterans Threaten More Trouble.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 2.—Speaker Ferrara, in opposing this afternoon the $5,000,000 Pension bill, told the House that already $6,000,000 had been appropriated, against $2,000,000 supposed to be in the Treasury, the worst being always the latest appropriations are paid, while more important matters provided for in the budget were left unpaid. He condemned reckless appropriations as threatening the country's bankruptcy.

There is a persistent rumor that the funds for the $16,000,000 loan for sewering and paving Havana have been diverted to other purposes.

Veteran leaders say privately that President Gomez is not fulfilling the agreement with the guerrillas, and that therefore at the expiration of the term agreed on, the Veterans will renew the violent campaign the Knox note stopped.



80,000 ARMED MEN MENACE CHURCHILL

Will Gather in Belfast on Day of Home Rule Meeting, Says Morning Post.

HATE HIM FOR "TREACHERY"

7,000 Troops Needed, but Dublin Castle Takes No Action — Home Rule Doesn't Include Excise Control.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Morning Post's Belfast correspondent is responsible for the statement that from 60,000 to 80,000 men will gather at Belfast next Thursday, the date of the proposed home rule meeting, animated by intense hatred over what they regard as the treachery of Winston Spencer Churchill, first Lord of the Admiralty, and Lord Pirrie, in advocating home rule for Ireland.

The correspondent says 30.000 men will be armed with revolvers and a great majority of them also with clubs, which will be one foot longer than the police batons.

The correspondent adds that the objectors to the meeting have no quarrel with John Redmond or Joseph Devlin, who always have been Nationalists, but they consider Mr. Churchill and Lord Pirrie have been "bought" to hasten the establishment of home rule.

The Dublin Castle authorities, the correspondent concludes, are cognizant of the preparations and have been informed that 7,000 troops will be necessary to keep order, but so far they have taken no action.

John Mackinnon Robertson, Member of Parliament and of the Government, addressing an Irish meeting in London to-night, added an interesting contribution to the anxiously debated question whether, under home rule, Ireland would control the customs and excise.

Mr. Robertson said that to give Ireland complete and absolute fiscal autonomy would be tantamount to separating her from the empire. There was no hope, he declared, of carrying the Home Rule bill on such a footing, and he trusted that the home rulers would realize that fiscal autonomy was outside of practical politics.

The Times differs with The Daily Chronicle's forecast of the Home Rule bill published Friday morning, which said the Irish Parliament would have full control of the customs and excise. The Times declares the imperial Government will retain control of the customs.

Men's London-made Scarfs

Value 1.00.....today 55c

¶ A consignment of London-made scarfs have just presented to us their credentials from one of the most reputable makers in London. Anxious to make a name for themselves, they have eschewed monetary considerations, and now seek the acquaintance of those New Yorkers who yearn for something exclusive in neckwear.

¶ Now, a London-made scarf, intended for sale at one dollar in Little Old New York, may be depended upon to be a scarf of some quality, and but for the fact that we have others coming later we should be reluctant to part with these princely scarfs for such an unprincely consideration.

¶ Included in the number are plain color repps, satins and repp stripes and regimental stripes. They are handsome, lustrous, generously made, and although hailing from London they are distinctly cosmopolitan in temperament. At a dollar they would be a fine value. At 55c they live up to the old adage that handsome is that handsome does. You owe them at least the courtesy of a call.

PARACHUTE LEAP OFF STATUE OF LIBERTY

Steeplejack Had First Thought of Jumping Off the Singer Building.

STEERS WITH HIS ARMS

And Lands Safely on Stone Coping 30 Feet from Water's Edge—He Won't Talk About It.

Frederick R. Law, listed in the telephone directory as an aerial contractor, with offices at 50 Church Street, growing tired of monotonously swaying to and fro on lofty flagpoles and of being conventionally referred to in the newspapers as a daring steeplejack, decided yesterday to startle the world with an entirely original feat.

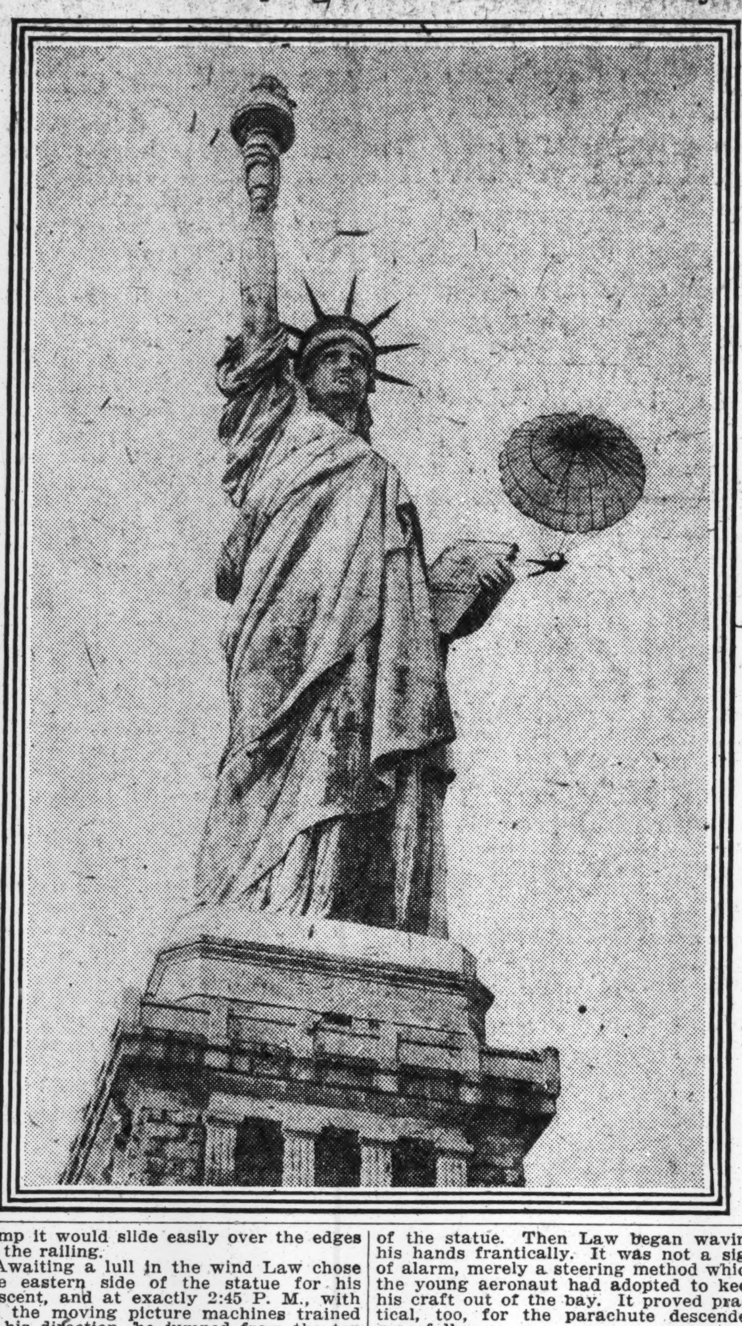
Law is about 35 years old. He was the first man to paint the flagpoles of the Pulitzer and Singer Buildings, and it has been said of him that he had to be at least 300 feet in the air with a cigar in his mouth to be absolutely comfortable. Business had been dull in the steeple rigging line, and Law saw the necessity of doing something which no one else had ever done before.

According to one of his foremen, the boss steeplejack sat in his office all yesterday morning looking over the city's high towers. Suddenly, it was said, he announced his intention of jumping from the Singer Building with a parachute. That seemed unpractical, however, after an investigation, and the Metropolitan tower, a few stories higher, offered the same objections. The steeplejack did not fear the jump, but impeding traffic and the risk of causing a runaway or two deterred him.

The happy alternative of the Statue of Liberty suggested itself, and at noon the aerial contractor set out for Bedlow's Island. At 2 o'clock he was armed with a special permit, issued by Capt. Leonard D. Wildman in charge of the post on the island, and half an hour later half a dozen moving picture machines and operators and several thousand spectators were on hand to see the jump from the top of the statue.

Law dragged his 100-pound parachute into the elevator, and in company with one of his foremen went aloft to the head of the Goddess. There he dressed his ropes and started up the remaining 50 feet through the mighty biceps and forearm until he reached the hand which supports the torch. There is an observation platform at this point which, since the issue of a recent order, cannot be visited without special permit. This platform is 151 feet from the base of the statue and about 225 feet above sea level. It is large enough to hold twelve persons, and Law and his assistant had no trouble in arranging the parachute so that on the jump it would slide easily over the edges of the railing.

Aeronaut Leaping from Statue of Liberty.



Awaiting a lull in the wind Law chose the eastern side of the statue for his descent, and at exactly 2:45 P. M., with all the moving picture machines trained in his direction, he jumped from the top railing, clearing the edge by ten feet.

Whistles shrieked in the harbor, and every one within seeing distance held his breath while the bulky parachute followed the man over the railing. There was fear of a tragedy for a moment, for the steeplejack fell fully seventy-five feet like a dead weight, the parachute showing no inclination whatever to open at first.

When it opened the wind blew it clear of the statue. Then Law began waving his hands frantically. It was not a sign of alarm, merely a steering method which the young aeronaut had adopted to keep his craft out of the bay. It proved practical, too, for the parachute descended gracefully.

When it neared the surface it seemed to fall fast for a moment, and Law, forgetting to jump, fell heavily on the stone coping, thirty feet from the water's edge. He limped away from the pile of canvas and ropes, but declared that he was not injured. Later he packed up his parachute and personally carried it to his office in the Hudson Terminal Building. He did not want to be interviewed, he said.

COURT INDORSES THE CABARET SHOW

Discharges Louis Martin and His Manager, Saying It Is an Incident to the Business.

NO NEED FOR A LICENSE

These Shows Being Free and Only to Attract Restaurant Patronage, They're Not "Public Exhibitions."

The Cabaret show is not run for pecuniary benefit in New York restaurants, but is simply an incident to the restaurant business, and so is not necessary to obtain a police license to give it. This is the substance of a decision given yesterday by Justice, Joseph M. Deuel, Franklin C. Hoyt, and James J. McInerney of the Court of Special Sessions in discharging Louis Martin, proprietor of the Martin restaurant, in Broadway near Forty-second Street, and Gaston G. Netter, his manager. They were arrested and tried on charges made by Capt. McElroy of the West Thirtieth Police Station, charging them with giving a public exhibition without a license on the night of Dec. 31.

The Cabaret shows are increasing as an added attraction in the big restaurants, especially those that cater to "the after theatre crowd." The trial of Louis Martin and his manager was watched with great interest not only by the amusement caterers, but the restaurant patrons who are fond of late suppers. The trial was really a test, and the decision will not only free restaurant keepers from all apprehension of police interference, but it will probably mean the growth of the Cabaret entertainment.

The court decides that the Cabaret shows are "attractions intended to secure increased patronage in a centre where competition is sharp and persistent." The decision says:

"The evidence in this case permits no conclusion that direct pecuniary benefit accrued b ythe reason of the entertainment of these midnight suppers, but it does compel the conclusion that such an entertainment was a mere incident to the general business carried on in the premises in question. It has been suggested by argument and otherwise that among the persuading objects of this prosecution are personal safety of guests and the preservation and conservation of good morals. These objects, however, cannot justify a forced construction of the charter provision, especially when existing remedies are entirely adequate to guard public morality and decency."

Mr. Martin was charged with a misdemeanor under Sections 1,472, 1,473, and 1,474 of the Charter providing for the licensing of public exhibitions, the last section, fixing the penalty at not less than three months or more than one year's imprisonment or by a fine not less than $100 nor more than $500, or by both fine and imprisonment.

In the decision read by Justice Deuel, he said, the facts present a single question of law: Is this entertainment within the scope of the Charter provisions, that is, was the primary purpose of the entertainment an exhibition for pecuniary gain, or was it given as an incident to some other legitimate pursuit?

The whole matter revolved around the interpretation of "a public exhibition." The legal aspects of an exhibition are gone into.

"In determning now what the Legislature actually meant by public exhibition," the decision says, "we have legitimate recourse to judicial construction and to administrative determination. Upon the administrative side we may take judicial cognizance of the multitudious aids to increase sales by free exhibitions, in which pianos, furniture, costumes and many other commercial lines have figured prominently. We may likewise consider hotels and restaurants which have introduced minstrelsy and professional story telling and a whole orchestra concentrated in a single individual, and various other devices to attract custom. If any one of these has started the attractive feature as a direct money-making device by charging an admission fee thereto there could be no question of the application of the Charter provisions. Whenever the administrative officers have any doubt they have recourse to the judiciary, which, apparently, has adopted a like principle for guidance. If the direct object be pecuniary gain a license to exhibit is necessary; if the exhibition be free and solely to attract patronage to some legitimate pursuit a license to exhibit is not necessary."

Previous decisions are quoted to sustain this opinion.

The evidence in the Martin case proved that the exhibitions consisting of singing and dancing were given on a rug in a dining room. No admittance is charged and no one is allowed to enter or leave the elevator at that floor who is not included in a previous reservation for that particular night.

The case was prosecuted by Deputy Assistant District Attorney James A. Smith, and Stephen Baldwin, for the defendants, set up the defense that the Cabaret show was not a public exhibition within the meaning of the law.

LAWYER IS DISBARRED.

Charles Shamroth Used His Client's Money, Later Refunding It.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court disbarred Charles Shamroth, an attorney, yesterday. Shamroth was accused of converting to his own use $450 which had been intrusted to him by a client to be deposited with the City Chamberlain while an action was pending. He subsequently refunded the money and urged this in defense. The court said:

"Considering the conduct of the respondent in this whole transaction, it is entirely clear that he obtained this money by trick and device; that he never intended to deposit it with the City Chamberlain, but promptly used it for his own purposes and suppressed knowledge of the fact from his client, and only returned it after his client, herself, had ascertained the facts. A mere statement of these facts is sufficient to justify the conclusion that the respondent should no longer remain a member of the profession, and he is therefore disbarred."

Newsdealer's Case Goes Over.

An attorney engaged by Samuel Horowitz, the newsdealer at Ninth Avenue and Forty-second Street who was found guilty by Magistrate Freschi in the West Side Court on Sunday last on the charge of violating the city ordinance relative to distributing circulars in the streets by inclosing advertisements in newspapers he sold, appeared before Magistrate Freschi in that court yesterday afternoon to present argument for re-opening the case. The Court put off the hearing until Feb. 19, in the Morrisania Court.

"MEN AND RELIGION" PLANS.

Committee of One Hundred Maps Out Districts for Work Here.

The Men and Religion Campaign Committee of New York, consisting of 100 laymen, completed yesterday preliminaries for a three-months' campaign in this city. Twelve districts, eight in Manhattan and four in the Bronx, were mapped out, and a few churches were chosen tentatively as centres for meetings.

Two of the districts below Fourteen Street hope to have Trinity Church, at the head of Wall Street, for one centre, and University Place Presbyterian Church for the other. The Madison Avenue Baptist Church will be the centre for the district below Forty-second Street, the Broadway Tabernacle for the other district below Central Park, and the Mount Morris Baptist Church for Harlem.

These centres will have committees from all churches taking part. The meetings under the charge of these committees, held every night, will be institutes, it being the aim to train workers, not simply to arouse interest. The subjects taught will be the Bible, missions, boys and their rearing, the laborer and his treatment, and evangelism.

There will begin at once shop and counting room evangelistic meetings, both at noon and at such other hours as may be found possible. In some cities the last half hour of the working day has been granted by employers. Difficulty has been experienced from Socialists who have insisted that J. Pierpont Morgan and other financiers are paying the bills of this campaign. It is expected that Socialists will "heckle" speakers in this city.

At the head of the Committee of One Hundred is President John H. Finley of City College, and it includes prominent laymen of Protestant churches.

Sold Short-Weight Butter.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, affirmed yesterday the conviction of the Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker Company, which, in June, 1911, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 for selling short weight packages of butter.

WIFE CAN'T COAX HIM OUT OF PRISON CELL

Descendant of Robert Morris to Serve Thirty Days for Stealing a Loaf of Bread.

IS STILL A "COLLEGE BOY"

Matthew Harbeson's Neighbors at Woodcliffe, N. J., Say the Police Plotted to Put Him in Jail.

With the reiterated assertion that his great-grandfather, Robert Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, would have faced a similar situation in just this way, Matthew W. Harbeson, who has a wife and four children, a bank account, and a fine house at Woodcliffe, N. J., refused yesterday to leave a cell in the Union Hill, N. J., jail by paying a small fine.

He repulsed first his mother, Julia Ward Harbeson, 60 years old, who hastened from her home, at 41 East Sixty-ninth Street, to Union Hill on hearing that her son, who is 42 years old, had been sentenced to thirty days in the Hudson County Jail, for stealing a five-cent loaf of bread from a Woodcliffe grocer. His mother begged him to accept a suspended sentence and leave Woodcliffe "to save the family's name," but the prisoner would not listen. He told his mother that if his refusal to pay a fine was hard for the family, then the family "must be patriotic," respect his allegiance to principle, and move away from their New York home to some spot where they would not be known.

A little later Harbeson's wife appeared. She had waited all night in their Woodcliffe home for him, and had only learned that he was serving a sentence in jail when a tramp came to her home yesterday morning with a note from him. The note asked her to give the tramp 25 cents and a square meal, and listen to what he had to say. This was that the tramp had slept in the Union Hill Jail over night with her husband, who expected to remain there for twenty-nine days more, when he would be home again.

The meeting between Harbeson's mother and his wife at the jail was made difficult through years of estrangement. Harbeson's wife was formerly a servant in the home of his mother, and when the son insisted upon marrying his mother's maid, the family objected. After the marriage Mrs. Harbeson gave them a house in Woodcliffe. She built there two other houses, which bring in a steady revenue. Her son's bank balance was also maintained by her. Harbeson has never been known to do a day's work for pay. His athletic prowess is the talk of the neighborhood in which he lives.

He consented to come out of his cell for a few minutes' conversation with his mother and wife. The two women had already wept on each other's shoulders. Harbeson's manner did not soften as he met them.

"It is duty," he said, sternly, without noticing the arms reached out to him, "and duty must be performed at all cost. A grocer said I had stolen a loaf of his bread. He said if $2 was paid to him that would make it all right. Then I received at my home a note telling me to come and see him if I valued my liberty. While on my way to hunt ducks below the Palisades I called and handed him his note and asked what he wanted. He said he wanted something and that the baker also wanted something, and so it would cost me $10 to keep out of trouble.

"Could I give in to that? I came here when I heard there was a summons for me. That I ever touched his bread was preposterous. But the Recorder for some strange reason decided I was guilty. And so my duty is to stay in jail."

"Ah, my poor boy," his mother said, "he was always brave, just like that. Do you know he fought a duel once? A cruel duel with schlagers, or broadswords, and what do you think it was all about? It was to prove that the Hudson River was wider than the Rhine. A student in the university at Kiel, where my son studied for years, said the Rhine was wider than the Hudson, and so my son must fight. He was always fighting duels over there."

This pleased Harbeson. He threw out his expansive arms, pressed his fists closed until the muscles stood out in bunches, and muttered: "There never was a man that could withstand me. I have swung them around like dumbbells."

Harbeson's face as he spoke showed hardly a square inch that hadn't at some time been cut. Long scars crossed each cheek and there were scars across his forehead.

"He has never been well," said his mother, "never since those duels. They left him—infirm. Three years ago he was hurt again, and now, I wonder what is best?"

Harbeson's wife said that last Sunday he complained because she did not put "enough toast in his soup." His mother quickly added that on Sunday he came to her home in New York and made this complaint about his wife.

In Woodcliffe Harbeson's neighbors were indignant over his arrest. They declared that a Citizen's Reform Committee was recently formed in which Harbeson took a prominent part and it was asking many pertinent questions about police practices. Harbeson's eccentricities, they said, were fully understood and tolerated, and did not interfere with his activities as a citizen. The complaint against him, they declared, was made at the instigation of the police, and not by the grocer who said his bread disappeared. This the grocer, B. C. Gordon, corroborated, saying that the police had compelled him to make the complaint.

In Woodcliffe Harbeson is known as "the college boy who wouldn't grow up." He delighted to fish in the Hudson and play capers of the "college boy" variety. Often his neighbors would see him out at 3 A. M. with a wheelbarrow gathering up their ash cans and sometimes collecting bits of useless property from their lawns. They considered these things the evolution of the college boy's running off with signs. At the foot of the Palisades he had a cabin and was often seen manning one end of a saw with a longshoreman on the other and cutting up drift wood for kindling.

DIVERS AID IN TREASURE HUNT

Smith, Who Worked on the Maine, Going on Boston Expedition.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 2.—Work of provisioning and equipping the schooner Ned P. Walker for her voyage in search of sunken treasure continues at the Commercial wharf here. Obelin S. Clarke, who is named in the City Directory as a student, is at the head of the Boston Wrecking Company, which purchased the vessel. He refuses to throw any light on the vessel's trip.

It is apparent that the Walker is being provisioned for a long cruise and that wrecking gear is being loaded. An evening paper gives currency to a report that the vessel will proceed in about ten days to Colorado Reefs off the coast of Cuba, and there will begin the hunt for sunken treasure; also that Divers A. L. Russell and Jack Smith will accompany the expedition. Smith has worked on the wreck of the battleship Maine and on other big wrecking jobs.

Capt. William S. Thompson, commander of the Walker, bought a white bulldog to-day to be the vessel's mascot and incidentally to keep away the curious.

TAFT FOR AN INQUIRY INTO COST OF LIVING

Urges International Investigation of "High Prices That Have So Distressed the People."

AFTER INDUSTRIAL FACTS

Thinks a Federal Commission Would Alleviate Strife—New Laws for Alaska Also Urged in Message.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—President Taft, in a message to Congress to-day, asked authority to invite the nations of the world to a conference in this city or elsewhere to make plans for the investigation of the "high prices that have so distressed the people of the world."

Mr. Taft also urged the appointment of a Federal commission to make "searching inquiry into the subject of industrial relations."

In the same message the President recommended the construction of a Government railroad in Alaska, a commission form of Government, and other needed legislation for that territory.

That part of the message dealing with the high cost of living says:

"There has been a strong movement among economists, business men, and others interested in economic investigation to secure the appointment of an international commission to look into the cause for the high prices of the necessities of life. There is no doubt but that a commission could be appointed of such unprejudiced and impartial persons, experts in investigation of economic facts, that a great deal of very valuable light could be shed upon the reasons for the high prices that have so distressed the people of the world, and information given upon which action might be taken to reduce the cost of living.

A Matter of Grave Concern.

"For some years past the high and steadily increasing cost of living has been a matter of such grave public concern that I deem it of great public interest that an international conference be proposed at this time for the purpose of preparing plans, to be submitted to the various Governments, for an international inquiry into the high cost of living, its extent, causes, effects, and possible remedies. I therefore recommend that, to enable the President to invite foreign Governments to such a conference, to be held at Washington or elsewhere, the Congress provide an appropriation, not to exceed $20,000, to defray the expenses of preparation and of participation by the United States.

"The numerous investigations on the subject, official or other, already made in various countries (such as Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, the Netherlands, and the United States) have themselves strongly demonstrated the need of further study of world-wide scope. Those who have conducted these investigations have found that the phenomenon of rising prices is almost if not quite general throughout the world; but they are baffled in the attempt to trace the causes by the impossibility of making any accurate international comparisons. This is because, in spite of the number of investigations already made, we are still without adequate data and because as yet no two countries estimate their price levels on the same basis or by the same methods."

Urges Industrial Inquiry.

As to the commission on industrial relations, the President's message says:

"At the moment when the discomforts and dangers incident to industrial strife are actually felt by the public there is usually an outcry for the establishment of some tribunal for the immediate settlement of the particular dispute. But what is needed is some system, devised by patient and deliberate study in advance, that will meet these constantly occurring and clearly foreseeable emergencies—not a makeshift to tide over an existing crisis. Not during the rainstorm but in fair weather should the leaking roof be examined and repaired.

"There can be no serious argument against the propriety or wisdom of an inquiry by the Federal Government into the general conditions of labor in the United States, notwithstanding the fact that some of the remedies will lie with the separate States, or even entirely outside the sphere of Govrnmental activity, in the hands of private individuals and of voluntary agencies. One legitimate object of such an official investigation and report is to enlighten and inform public opinion, which of itself will often induce or compel the reform of unjust conditions or the abatement of unreasonable demands.

"Unquestionably the time is now ripe for a searching inquiry into the subject of industrial relations which shall be official, authoritative, balanced, and well rounded, such as only the Federal Government can successfully undertake. The present widespread interest in the subject makes this an opportune time for an investigation which in any event cannot long be postponed. It should be nonpartisan, comprehensive, thorough, patient, and courageous."

Of Alaska the President declares that there is nothing in the history of the United States which affords such just reason for criticism as the failure of the Federal Government to extent the benefit of its fostering care to Alaska.

"I am not in favor of Government ownership where the same certainty and efficiency of service can be had by private enterprise," said the President, "but I think the conditions presented in Alaska are of such a character as to warrant the Government, for the purpose of encouraging the development of that vast and remarkable territory, to build and own a trunk line railroad, which it can lease on terms which may be varied and changed to meet the growing prosperity and development of the territory."

President Taft says there is little likelihood that the Morgan-Guggenheim interests will open up a railroad under present conditions in Alaska.

The President would have a commission form of Government for Alaska, one half of the commission to be elected and the other half appointed by the President.

A leasing system is proposed by the President for Government coal and phosphate lands in Alaska, as well as in the United States.

In Aid of Homesteaders.

The reclamation laws of the United States should be modified, in the opinion of the President, so that a homesteader might obtain a patent at the end of five years of cultivation and three years of occupation. The President also would relieve homesteaders from the requirement of occupation at a time when the condition of the land would make it burdensome and difficult.

Following a suggestion of Secretary of the Interior Fisher, President Taft declares in his message that the control of water-power sites should remain in the National Government rather than be turned over to the States. He would have the sites disposed of by direct lease from the Government, the rental to be used in improvement of the stream and for the benefit of the local community where the power site was located. The President would give to the States the right to regulate the rates at which the converted power was sold.

APPLES TO BE CHEAPER.

It Is Believed That 18,000,000 Barrels Are Still Unmarketed.

There is a prospect that apples may soon be cheaper, says The Fruit Trade Journal. "It is generally believed 18,000,000 barrels, or 60 per cent. of the entire crop, is still unmarketed, and there being but less than four months to dispose of these holdings, the situation calls for good judgment on the part of holders who wish to realize a profit on their fruit.

"One feature has recently stood out prominently in the apple market, for some time, namely, the poor keeping qualities which the bulk of the arrivals from Western New York have shown. Heretofore apples from that section were noted for their entirely different qualities, but receipts for several months have given receivers much concern. Some attribute this defect to excessive fertilizing, while others think that improper methods of cultivation are responsible for it."

FAVORS A DEFENSIVE NAVY.

Burleson Against Dreadnoughts—Warships at Baltimore Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Representative Albert S. Burleson of Texas, a member of the Committee on Appropriations, took issue with Secretary Meyer on the batteship question to-day, and defended the action of the Democratic caucus in refusing to appropriate for any battleships at this session. In an interview this afternoon he said:

"I see that the Secretary of the Navy is urgent in his insistence that the United States continue the policy of authorizing annually two dreadnoughts and also that Admiral Dewey believes Congress should go further this year and provide for four dreadnoughts.

"Notwithstanding these high authorities, I am thoroughly convinced that Congress should not at this time authorize even one battleship. Instead of spending millions for additional dreadnoughts, why not provide the necessary colliers, repair ships, and ammunition ships for the fleet already afloat?"

Mr. Burleson said he would build destroyers and other torpedo vessels rather than dreadnoughts, "thus providing a defensive fleet which would be inexpensive to maintain."

Warships will be one of the features of the Democratic National Convention in Baltimore in June, unless the Navy Department changes its mind in the meantime. Secretary Meyer was disposed today to issue the necessary orders for the movement of the vessels which was requested by the Mayor of Baltimore.

STICKS TO HIS STORY OF A LORIMER BRIBE

Though Burns's Aid Admits That Dictagraph Didn't Get All McGowan Said.

CHALLENGES HIM TO DENY

Declares Friend Said He Wouldn't Have "Perjured" Himself as "Charlie Did" for $500,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Detective A. C. Bailey was cross-examined to-day before the Senate Lorimer Committee as to how he "roped" Charles McGowan into admitting that he had testified falsely before the committee in saying he did not hear an alleged conversation on a train about a $100,000 Lorimer election fund. Bailey was still on the stand when the committee adjourned until to-morrow, at which time the examination of all the witnesses summoned by the Government on the McGowan point must be concluded.

The principal attack was on the alleged admissions of McGowan in the presence of Bailey and H. E. Kerr of Detroit at Toronto, when a dictagraph was employed. Bailey acknowledged that the stenographer in the adjoining room working the dictagraph did not get all that was said. The instrument failed to work at times, he explained. Bailey declared that although the stenographer had never met McGowan he could distinguish McGowan's voice from Bailey's or Kerr's.

Asked to give any "plausible reason" why he did not try to catch McGowan with the money on his person the day he was alleged to have been paid for perjuring himself in Lorimer's behalf, Bailey said he had been directed at that time merely to keep in touch with McGowan. On one occasion while in Omaha Bailey said he suggested to his office that his chief, W. J. Burns, might be able to get corroborative evidence out of McGowan. He was asked why he did not make this suggestion to Burns when McGowan was in Chicago.

"I would not do that," replied Bailey.

"So you do not hold young Burns in such awe?" inquired Attorney Hynes.

"No, Sir."

Several alleged inconsistencies in the daily notes made by Bailey and his reports to his office were pointed out by the attorney.

"Didn't you have a sinister motive in leaving out some things?" was demanded of Bailey. The witness denied the suggestion.

Attorney Hynes, who represented particularly Edward Hines, the Chicago lumber man, who, it is said, raised a $100,000 fund to help elect Lorimer, wanted to know what Bailey meant when he said he had been "roping" for detective agencies for fifteen years.

"Roping is what we call getting a man's confidence and leading him to tell things he otherwise would not tell," explained Bailey.

Mr. Hynes thought it incredible that after five days' acquaintance with Bailey McGowan should have admitted his perjury, but the witness stuck to his story.

Bailey said the phonographic process was tried on McGowan at Toronto and on his chum Stuart two days after McGowan was "taken."

"I told Stuart," said Bailey, "that Charlie told me he got $1,500. Stuart said: 'I wouldn't have done what Charlie did for $500,000. Would you?'"

"'Do what?' I asked. 'Go down to Washington and perjure myself,' Stuart replied."

Chairman Dillingham of the committee demanded to know why Bailey had not called in a third party to hear McGowan's "admissions."

"There was nobody to call in."

"What! No man in Regina?"

Bailey said he had proposed not to try the dictagraph or a third man until he and McGowan were in Chicago.

"Couldn't you have worked the dictagraph in Chicago as well as in Toronto?" insisted the Chairman.

The witness first said that he could not "account for it." Later he explained that his office told him after he came to Chicago that he need only keep in touch with McGowan as the office was considering discontinuing his work.

"Isn't the reason you didn't get a third man to hear McGowan on your hunting trip or in Regina or Chicago because he never made any such statement as you charge?" demanded Attorney Hynes.

"I don't think McGowan will go on the stand and deny it," Bailey retorted, as he turned to face young McGowan.

TO END PENSION AGENCIES.

House Passes Bill Abolishing Them—More Millions Appropriated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The abolition of the seventeen pension agencies outside of Washington is again sought this year in the Pension Appropriation bill, which passed the House of Representatives today. This is the largest of the supply bills, and carries $152,579,000. Should the Sherwood Service Pension bill, pending before the Senate Committee on Pensions, after having passed the House, become law it would add from $40,000,000 to $60,000,000 annually to the pension budget, bringing the grand disbursement above $200,000,000 annually.

The agencies sought to be abolished are at Augusta, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Columbus, Concord, Des Moines, Detroit, Indianapolis, Knoxville, Louisville, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Topeka, and San Francisco. They cost $108,750 annually.

The Appropriations Committee fought hard to prevent the payment of pensions to non-residents who are no longer citizens of the United States. There are 5,476 pensioners living in foreign countries, to whom $978,471 was paid last year. All who are no longer citizens would have been affected by the innovation. It was defeated by a close vote to-day.

WOULD CUT CAVALRY TO TEN REGIMENTS

Democrats Thus Propose to Save $5,000,000 More in the Army Appropriation.

OFFICERS FAVOR THE PLAN

Major Bell Himself Wants Two Squadron Regiments Instead of Three—For Selling Posts, Too.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The demand for economy dictated by the House majority leaders has forced the Democrats on the Military Committee to agree to a plan to cut the army appropriation by $5,000,000. This is to be accomplished by reducing the number of cavalry regiments from fifteen to ten. The bill as reported from the committee cut the total amount carried nearly $4,000,000 less than last year's bill and over $8,000,000 less than the War Department's estimates. But this did not measure up to the programme which the House leaders have framed for themselves in order to make a claim for economy and to wipe out incidentally the smirch of the Sherwood dollar-a-day pension bill.

To-day a request was sent to the chiefs of the various supply bureaus in the War Department asking for the fullest information as to the cost of maintaining a cavalry regiment. As is well-known the cost of maintaing cavalry is very much in excess of that of infantry and in the academic study of military operations there is a ratio between the number of cavalrymen and foot soldiers that an army should have. The usual proportion of sabres to bayonets is 125 to 1,000. In our army at present this ratio is tremendously outdone. We have fifteen regiments of cavalry to thirty of infantry or fifty regiments of infantry if we include the strength of the Coast Artillery, which in time of war would be thrown into provisional regiments and brigaded as infantry. The authorized strength of the army at this time is [illegible]7,000 infantry and 18,000 coast artillery. Counting 6,000 recruits for infantry regiments with the combined strength of infantry and coast artillery we have 52,400 infantry. At the ratio of 125 sabres to 1,000 bayonets, we should need therefore but 6,560 cavalrymen.

These figures are taken from confidential reports worked out in the General Staff and approved by some of the best students of organization and strategy. The Military Committee therefore will have abundant authority for its move to reduce the number of cavalry regiments. But, more than this, there has for years been a plan in the General Staff, mainly supported by Major Bell, one of the best cavalry officers in the army, for the reorganization of the cavalry arm into two squadron regiments, instead of three as now. The aim of this reorganization would be to retain the same number of officers, but cut down the unit, so as to make cavalry more wieldy and effective.

The Democrats have had this idea under consideration, with a view to keeping the full strength of cavalry officers and cutting down the number of men and horses. They have the support of the Bell plan for reducing the cavalry arm, and in a way that would reduce the cost of maintaining the army about the amount they desire to cut out of the bill.

A comparison with the proportion of cavalry maintained in the armies of Europe reinforces the committee in its position. The figures at the War Department show that, compared with the infantry arm, exclusive of the Coast Artillery, we have 16 per cent. of cavalry in our army, while France has but 11 per cent., Germany 11.5, Austria 14, Russia 9.5, England 8, Italy 8.3, and Japan 6.3 per cent. In the civil war we had 223 regiments of cavalry to 980 regiments of infantry, the strength of the cavalry regiments being 1,244 men and the infantry regiment 1,022. The ratio of sabres to bayonets was then 1 to 3.62. And nine-tenths of the cavalry was made up of volunteers and drilled after the war began. It is urged that with the present duty of the army, if the complement of officers is retained, in time of war good cavalrymen can be made in from three to six months, with a well-drilled nucleus maintained while the army is on a peace footing.

Another argument was sought to-day by the committee in a request on a distinguished engineer officer who was sent to Manchuria during the war between Japan and Russia as a military observer. This officer's reports were exceedingly critical of the cavalry on both sides, and he has furnished the committee with carefully drawn explanations of the failure in that war of the cavalry arm to demonstrate its effectiveness. This is regarded as an argument against the maintenance by the United States of a large cavalry force in time of peace.

Another strong reason for the proposed reduction appears in a carefully prepared paper by a prominent cavaly officer who makes a plea for the two-squadron regiment, which can be moved with far greater efficiency. This officer concludes his paper with the following sentence:

"In these days, when economy is the watchword and men with troops are handling but a fraction of the men commensurate with their grades, it is advisable to approach the subject of cavalry organization in a businesslike way, and to inquire whether we are properly preparing for war."

There is another direction in which the Democratic members of the committee are likely to make a move for economy, and this is to authorize the sale of a considerable number of army posts in line with Secretary Stimson's recent recommendation. The Stimson plan cannot be carried out as a whole as the large concentration posts are not in existence, and barracks would have to be built at such posts before concentration could be begun. But with the reduction of the cavalry arm the plan could be put in operation, and the Democrats will try it if they can first get the amendment to cut out five regiments of cavalry adopted by the House.

Of the seventeen posts where cavalry is stationed in the United States, three are named by the Secretary of War as posts which must be retained for their strategic value, and four of them appear in his list of posts that should be abandoned, namely, Fort Yellowstone, Fort Ethan Allen, Fort Robinson, and Fort Meade. The others are retained for reasons connected with present necessity, and not because of their advantage from either a strategic or economical point of view.

When the army bill is brought up in the House to-morrow Mr. Hay will be primed for the additional reduction which the Democratic leaders have planned to force on the War Department. The amendment to reduce the cavalry strength of the army would under the old House rules be out of order as new legislation, but it is now germane and in order because it reduces expenditures.

The majority members of the committee will have the earnest support of the members of the Appropriation Committee in their effort to carry out the programme and while the Republicans will make a strenuous fight against the reduction it is likely that the new amendment will be adopted and the scheme put through. When the matter reaches the Senate the academic argument, for which there is plenty of support in the archives of the War Department, will be relied on to carry the proposition there.

Mr. Hay, who has long experience on the Military Committee, and is very determined in his convictions as to army matters, is very confident that he can convince Congress and the country that his plan is a wise one.

Wire Tapper to Sing Sing.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court affirmed yesterday the conviction of John Hartman for grand larceny. Hartman was one of a gang of fake gamblers and wire tappers who swindled Frederick Louster, a wealthy baker and realty owner, out of $10,0000 through a bogus horse race report. Hartman was sentenced to serve not less than three nor more than five years in Sing Sing Prison.

CIGARS—CIGARETTES—PIPES

Everything for smokers at lowest-in-the-city prices.

We undersell every other store in New York. This is generally known and admitted. Just for the transient glory of underselling Macy's, a competitor now and then reduces his price below ours. As soon as we find this out, we in turn cut still lower—not for the passing glory of beating a spasmodic rival, but in vindication of our 55-year old policy of lowest prices. No matter how low a price other stores advertise, you can come to Macy's and get the same thing or something better for less money.

165 Styles of BRASS BEDSTEADS Are Shown in the February Sale

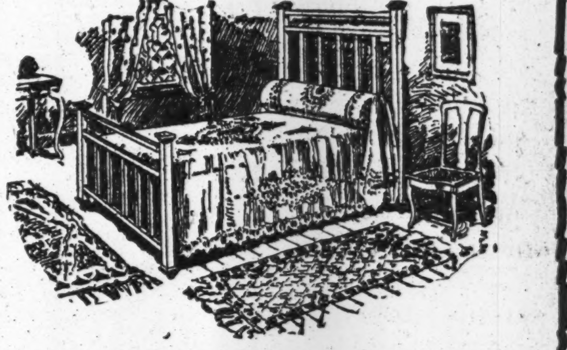
Satin finish; square tubing; 4 ft. 6 in. and 4 ft. sizes; heavy square posts; 1½ in. cross rods and seven upright filling rods in head and footboard.



$70 Brass Bedsteads at $47.50
Satin finish; square tubing; in 3 ft. 3 in. and 3 ft. 6 in. sizes; heavy 2-in. post with 1½-in. crossbar in head and footboard.

Fifty other styles are planned to make their appearance during the month.

The three best—and oldest—makers of Brass Bedsteads in America have contributed to the collection. Their own sponsorship for the beds they make, added to the Gimbel Guarantee, constitute a security for the purchaser that is as a Government Bond.

These people MAKE the beds they sell—they are not merely assemblers of parts turned out by factories, which themselves assume no responsibility for the final product.

In every detail, the construction of these Bedsteads is the best possible—even to the lacquer, which extensive tests have shown is the best yet produced.

And every bit of lacquer on Gimbel Brass Bedsteads is expertly and properly put on, which is the best guarantee possible of its permanence.

And We Guarantee Every Gimbel Brass Bedstead Without Time Limit, for Service and Appearance assuming, of course, that reasonable care is taken in its use.

Among the 165 styles in the special display on the Sixth Floor there are many of extreme novelty and beauty. The fashionable new square tubing, which cannot possibly be cheaply made, is used in many of the beds. One finds a new style of dull finish, which gives a particularly satiny appearance. New designs are found in the caps of the four-posted bedsteads; and panels of rattan, Circassian walnut, and other woods, are used with much effect.

It is really an exceptionally fine showing, and one that we hardly think will be equalled, in either quality or variety. And the February savings, on practically unlimited supplies of beds, are most gratifying. Typical examples, in addition to the two illustrated:

$20 Brass Bedsteads at $14
Panel effect; heavy 2-inch posts; large fill-rods, all sizes, satin and bright finish.

ARSON SYNDICATE HERE, SAYS SWANN

Homes or Stores Set on Fire for $250, Judge Declares—17,000 Fires Last Year.

FIRE MARSHAL NEEDS CASH

Judge Urges a City Appropriation to Provide Better Investigations of Fire Losses.

Declaring that persons who wish to recover fire insurance can get their homes or places of business set on fire for $250, Judge Swann had a long talk in General Sessions yesterday with Deputy Fire Marshal Peter Kilgannon, Assistant District Attorney Charles Bostwick, and several of the jurors who had just convicted Antonio Bertolino of arson. At the conclusion of this conference Judge Swann wrote a long letter to Fire Commissioner Johnson, in which he said that he believed an appropriation should be made to enable the Fire Marshal to investigate every fire and make an immediate appraisal.

Bertolino formerly ran a small grocery store at 509 Broome Street and lived at 64 Thompson Street. His stock was insured for $5,000, while its value was only $900. On Nov. 19 a fire started in his store, and after it had been put out firemen discovered five bladders, one containing ether and the others full of kerosene. Kerosene had also been sprinkled all over the floor.

Bertolino was indicted, and after a trial of seven days was convicted yesterday. When the jury brought in its verdict Judge Swann remanded the prisoner one week for sentence, and said:

"Gentlemen of the jury, in my opinion this case is merely illustrative of many others, and, in fact, all cases. The city does not provide, as I understand, the Fire Bureau with adequate facilities for preparing a case. Take this case, specifically. There was no provision, in money or otherwise, for the Fire Marshal to have these goods appraised promptly, and I understand that there is no appropriation for this. There is no person he can employ at the city's expense to make this appraisal, and if it is done the money must come out of the Fire Marshal's pocket. Your recollection is probably the same as mine, that in this case the appraisers were furnished by the Home Insurance Company. They are not altogether satisfactory to us. We would rather have something official, some official appraiser."

17,000 Fires Last Year.

Judge Swann then asked how many fires there had been in this city in the last year, and Deputy Fire Marshal Kilgannon said, "Approximately 17,000 in all New York."

"Well, it is my opinion that the majority of these fires were incendiary," continued Judge Swann, "and I think it would be an excellent thing if this particular bureau of the Fire Marshal should be thoroughly equipped, so that whenever in the judgment of the Fire Marshal a fire is incendiary he can have his appraisers promptly on the spot.

Juror No. 3 then arose and suggested that the Captain of each engine company or fire patrol act as one of a committee while a blaze is in progress to ascertain its origin and also act as a sub-Fire Marshal. Juror No. 2 said that he thought only the first man to arive at the scene should act as a sub-Fire Marshal, as he would be the likeliest to discover the origin. Juror No. 10 at this point inquired what the appropriation for the Fire Marshal's bureau is, and was informed that it is $32,000, which must cover the salaries and expenses of the men. Deputy Fire Marshal Kilgannon said that the Board of Estimate granted the bureau $92,000 under the Fire Prevention act, but that part of this went toward the support of the Bureau of Combustibles.

No Money for Appraisals.

Mr. Kilgannon further explained that if he wants to get a man to make an appraisal he has to pay him out of his own pocket, and said that he generally left that matter to the appraisers from the insurance companies, as did the other Deputy Marshals. Then, after the Deputy Fire Marshal had made a few remarks regarding the testimony of firemen, Judge Swann said:

"The fireman is a man of action, not words."

"They don't like to testify," said Mr. Bostwick. "They don't care about it."

"My view is that if we make the detection of this crime more certain," replied Judge Swann, "it will be committed less. That is so in all cases."

Killed in Fall with Elevator.

Jacob Witover, 70 years old, of 182 Thatford Avenue, Brooklyn, died in the Bradford Street Hospital last night of injuries received in the afternoon when a freight elevator in a loft building at 47 Watkin Street fell from the first floor to the cellar with Witover upon it. He was buried beneath some packing cases, which were in the car, and both legs and his skull were fractured.

MAY INDICT 30 DYNAMITERS.

Federal Grand Jury Will Vote on Cases on Tuesday Next.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 2.—Work was continued by District Attorney Charles W. Miller to-day in completing the forms of the thirty or more indictments which, it is reported, the Federal Grand Jury will vote on next Tuesday at the conclusion of the Government's investigation into the dynamite conspiracy.

It is said, if any arrests are to follow, it will be arranged that they take place simultaneously three or four days after the jury reports. The delay will permit the sending of papers to the Federal districts in which any accused men are known to be.

A report from Chicago that Government agents were investigating a fire there last December in which records which might have thrown light on the dynamite cases were destroyed, was explained to-day in the statement that correspondence taken out of the iron workers' offices here has led to search in many cities.

It is said the three charges upon which the Government based its search for evidence were:

Violation of the Federal laws regulating inter-State transportation of explosives.

Conspiracy to violate the laws regulating transportation of explosives.

Concealment of knowledge of the guilt of those who committed any of the other two crimes.

"I believe the jury will be ready to begin framing its report on Tuesday," said Mr. Miller. "But I do not know that all the work will be done by that time. The necessity of keeping secret the names of those indicted, in any indictments are returned, will be increased in this case, because of the wide territory that might be involved."

LANDLORD MUST GIVE HEAT.

Court Says a Tenant Can Break Lease if Rooms Are Cold.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court reversed yesterday a judgment for $700 in favor of Milton Berlinger, owner of the Haddon Hall apartments, 596 Riverside Drive, against Dwight McDonald.

McDonald was a tenant in the house under a yearly lease, and moved out because he said insufficient heat was supplied. Berlinger contended that there was nothing in the lease that said he was to supply heat, and sued for the remainder of the year's rent. He got judgment, and McDonald appealed. In ordering a new trial the court remarked that the only means of heating the house was a steam system in the basement, and said:

"Under these conditions, notwithstanding the fact that there was no covenant in the lease that the landlord should supply the necessary heat to keep the apartment warm and make the place habitable, he was nevertheless obliged to do so. Such a covenant should be read into the lease. By an express provision in the lease, the defendant could use the apartment only for a private dwelling for himself and family, and he could not occupy it unless artificial heat was furnished in cold weather. If heat was not furnished to make the apartment habitable, the premises were not what had been leased and the consideration agreed to be paid failed. The landlord made it impossible for heat to be furnished except by means under his control, and if he failed to furnish it the tenant might vacate and thereafter resist the collection of the rent stipulated to be paid."

On the new trial Berlinger will have the opportunity of adducing evidence to answer the testimony of the McDonald family as to the chilliness of the apartment.

BADEN-POWELL HERE AGAIN.

Carnegie's Guest at Tea—Boy Scouts to Dine Him Here.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell, who arrived here on Wednesday to visit the Boy Scouts of America throughout the country, returned to this city yesterday after a trip to Boston. He was the guest of Andrew Carnegie for tea, Colin H. Livingstone, President of the Boy Scouts of America; James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, and George D. Pratt, Treasurer, also being guests. After tea Sir Robert hurried to Montclair, N. J., where he lectured last evening on "The Boy Scout Movement."

The General will not return to New York until next Friday, when he will be the guest of honor of the Boy Scouts of America at their annual dinner at the Astor. Gifford Pinchot will be the toastmaster. Among the speakers will be Ernest Thompson Seton, Daniel Carter Beard, President Finley of City College, Dr. Luther H. Gulick, and the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton. The dinner arrangements are in charge of a committee of which George D. Pratt is Chairman. The other members are August Belmont, Franklin G. Hoyt, William Fellowes Morgan, John Sherman Hoyt, and Lorillard Spencer, Jr.

SALVATION ARMY'S WEALTH.

Secretary Says Its Property in the United States Is Worth $5,000,000.

The Salvation Army of America has property holdings in the United States worth more than $5,000,000, William Paert, Secretary of the organization, stated yesterday when a petition was presented to Supreme Court Justice Lehman for an order permitting the Salvation Army to borrow $10,000 from the German Savings Bank.

A mortgage on property at 135 West Thirteenth Street was offered as security. Mr. Paert said that the Salvation Army carried $2,463,000 on mortgages. Justice Lehman signed the order.

POLICE METHODS BAD, GRAND JURY FINDS

Gambling Raids Made Useless by Failure to Get Proper Evidence, It Reports.

NOTICE SENT TO THE MAYOR

Impossible to Find Indictments—New Grand Jury Directed to Continue Court House Investigation.

Just before Judge Malone, in General Sessions yesterday, discharged the additional Grand Jury for the January term of the court, its foreman, Thomas W. Slocum, handed up a presentment branding the present police methods of obtaining evidence in gambling cases as totally inadequate. Accompanying the presentment was a resolution, to be given to Mayor Gaynor. The presentment says in part:

> The additional Grand Jury feels impelled to make a special report to the court in the matter of gambling cases which have been before it this term. After a most careful investigation of these cases, the Grand Jury has been compelled in almost every instance, although satisfied that gambling had taken place, to dismiss the complaint for lack of sufficient evidence. The evidence in nearly every instance consisted of the uncorroborated testimony of one person as to the original occurrence even though supported by the seizure of gambling paraphernalia, after an interval of three to ten days.
>
> The Grand Jury invited the Commissioner of Police to aid in its investigation, and he appeared before it. Its conclusion is that the present system of obtaining evidence in gambling cases is totally insufficient, and it therefore deems it its duty to bring it thus publicly to the attention of the court for such action as may seem proper and fit. It is its further request, if it meets with the approval of the court, that a copy of this report, with the resolution accompanying it, be sent to his honor the Mayor.

The resolution for the Mayor's benefit is as follows:

> Moved, That basing its judgment upon the evidence as introduced before this Grand Jury in the gambling cases which have from day to day been brought before it, in the opinion of this Grand Jury, the methods employed by the Police Department in obtaining evidence under the law, for the prosecution of keepers of gambling houses, is totally inadequate for the purposes for which it is intended.

The first of the gambling cases spoken about by the Grand Jury was brought to its attention early in January after the police had made a number of raids and removed several wagon loads of gambling devices from each place. The only evidence upon which the police made the raids was given by an informer, who managed to get into over sixty gambling houses where he found roulette and other games of chance going on. Many other places were suspected as being gambling houses, but the police were unable to get evidence.

After Judge Malone had discharged the additional Grand Jury he directed that the regular Grand Jury continue its investigation regarding the tottering condition of the Criminal Court Building. This body of jurors will meet on Feb. 16.

MARLBOROUGH HOTEL SOLD.

Millions Involved in Transfer of Site and the Leasehold.

The Marlborough Hotel, on the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street, covering nearly the entire Broadway frontage to Thirty-seventh Street, has been sold by the heirs of the Charlotte M. Goodridge estate, together with the lease, which has thirty-seven years to run, held by the Sweeney-Tierney Hotel Company.

The deal, with the leasehold, aggregates several million dollars, the property being assessed at $1,755,000, while the leasehold for the unexpired term represents more than $4,000,000. The new owners are a syndicate of Manhattan and Philadelphia operators, incorporated under the name of the Cross Town Realty Company, and composed of Samuel Snellenberg, S. M. Bloch, and Harry N. Nathanson.

For the present the hotel will not be torn down, but will be maintained under the same management. The ground floor, however, will be cut up into stores and leased for business. The hotel was built in 1888, and has long been one of the popular Broadway hostelries. The brokers in the deal were Leopold Weil and Adolph Meyer.

PRAISE FOR DR. PECK.

Surprise Caused by Highly Commendatory Article in Columbia Spectator.

In a review of "The History of Classical Philology," Dr. Harry Thurston Peck's latest work, a writer in yesterday's Columbia Spectator, speaks of the ex-Columbia professor in terms of the highest commendation. The article was interesting also as being the first mention of Dr. Peck since his unpleasant departure from Columbia.

"He was a man worth knowing," asserts the Spectator reviewer, "and his book is worth reading." In another place this affectionate reference to Dr. Peck was made: "Our fathers knew him at the Columbia of Forty-ninth Street. Our mothers remember his blonde hair, his dashing appearance, his inimitable wit and his immaculate haberdashery. He moved through life acting on impulse and his thoughts were startling and interesting—yet at the bottom built on a scholarly foundation. The best characterization of Prof. Peck is to say that he happily combined catholicism and sound scholarship with independence and versatility."

Reflecting the popularity of Dr. Peck among his students the writer goes on to say: "For many years he stood forth as a shining example over textual education; for some he was the progenitor of the awakening of a first real interest in the classics. It was good for us to sit as freshmen and sophomores and have him point out the deliberate beauties of Horace—have him recite as it should be recited the twenty-third Ode, and have him show how Horace does deserve to be considered among the first of the lyric poets."

The review in Spectator yesterday was signed E. C., and appeared on the front page.

ALLAN MACNAUGHTON'S WILL

Leaves Everything to Wife, Who Is in Litigation Over ex-Husband's Property.

Surrogate Fowler admitted to probate yesterday the will of Allan MacNaughton. The will, which was made before his marriage, on Sept. 22 last, to Clara Hadfield Hughes, left her his entire estate of about $1,000. MacNaughton's first wife was Myra Kelly, the short-story writer. Mrs. Hughes was the widow of Frederick Hughes, who died of apoplexy while driving his automobile at Palm Beach in 1909.

Mrs. MacNaughton is still involved in litigation over the estate of Hughes, of which she is executrix. Hughes was the wealthy member of his family, and his relatives were disappointed at the size of their bequests. One of them, a brother, had expected a legacy of $10,000, basing his expectation on a remark made by Hughes. All he got in the will was a watch, which Mrs. Hughes said, under examination before Referee Wilbur Larremore, was worth but 75 cents.

Mrs. MacNaughton refused to give any personal information about herself in the hearings before Referee Larremore. She declined to state her antecedents or tell how many times she had been married.

SAVES DROWNING WOMAN.

Ex-Policeman Keenen Saw Her Jump Into the Hudson at 139th St.

Thomas Keenen, now a detective for the New York Central Railroad, but formerly a policeman until April 1, 1910, when he was dismissed after his arrest of saloon men in the Bronx and on the lower east side for excise violations had attracted wide-spread attention, heard a noise and saw a woman jump into the Hudson River from the retaining wall at 139th Street early yesterday morning. Keenen ran from his shack nearby, and jumped in after her.

The river was full of ice, and the ex-policeman had a hard time, but finally reached the woman, then unconscious, and got her ashore. From his shack he telephoned for an ambulance from the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and the woman was taken there.

Presently her brother, Walter Moore of 502 West 139th Street, called at the hospital, and identified her as Mrs. Florence Anderson of Mount Vernon. He said his sister had been nursing the child of a friend in Mount Vernon until her own strength had been exhausted, and for the last few days had been stopping with him. She was in a highly nervous condition, he said, and he and his family had watched her. Somehow she escaped them just before she jumped into the river, and Moore learned of the presence of a woman in the J. Hood Wright Hospital when he applied to the police to help to find his sister. Mrs. Anderson was made a prisoner in the hospital on a charge of attempted suicide.

ROOSEVELT IS FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

But Favors Letting Her Sex Decide the Matter by a Referendum Vote.

OBJECTS TO CERTAIN LEADERS

Condemns Them in The Outlook for Vicious and Degrading Assaults Upon Morality.

Theodore Roosevelt, who recently fled the stage of Carnegie Hall when women in an audience he had been addressing flocked toward him with vigorous demands to know what he thought of their "votes-for-women" slogan, comes forward in this week's Outlook with a five-page exposition of his suffrage views.

Col. Roosevelt decides that he is emphatically in favor of votes for women whenever and wherever the women really want them, and is just as emphatically opposed to votes for women whenever and wherever the women really do not want them. He favors, he decides, woman's suffrage as a thing to be won by the women, but not as a thing to be foisted upon them or offered in the absence of an unmistakable demand.

More in the duties of women than in the rights of women Col. Roosevelt finds himself taking an interest. Calling attention to the "dreadful failure" of certain phases of the French Revolution, he charges that this failure was symbolized in the passage by a revolutionary legislature of a resolution declaring that the people had all kinds of rights while at the same time a resolution was rejected declaring that the same people had grave and onerous duties.

"Unless the average man and average woman," he continues, "live lives of duty, not only our democracy but our civilization itself will perish. I heartily believe in the equality of rights as between man and woman, also in full and emphatic recognition of the fact that normally there cannot be identity of function. Indeed, there must normally be complete dissimilarity of functions between them, and effort to ignore this patent fact is silly.

"I believe it would be well to let the women themselves, and only the women, vote at some special election as to whether they do or do not wish the vote as a permanent possession. In other words, this is peculiarly a case for the referendum to those most directly affected—to the women themselves.

Against the Disorderly Leader.

"I should be entirely content to abide by the decision either way; for though I do not think that the damage prophesied from women's voting would come, or has come where it has been tried, I also think that very much less effect would be produced, one way or the other, than the enthusiasts believe. In other words, I do not regard the movement as anything like as important as either its extreme friends or extreme opponents think. It is so much less important than many other reforms that I have never been able to take a very heated interest in it."

One thing about the suffrage situation the Colonel emphatically does not like, and he says so in a manner to leave no room for doubt. This is the matter of the conduct of some women who seek the ballot.

"Perhaps," he says, "one reason why so many men who believe as emphatically as I do in woman's full equality with man take little interest in the suffrage movement is to be found in the very unfortunate actions of certain leaders in that movement, who seem desirous of associating it with disorderly conduct in public and with thoroughly degrading and vicious assaults upon the morality and the duty of women within and without marriage."

Dr. C. W. Saleeby, author of a book on "Woman and Womanhood," is thoroughly indorsed by the Colonel in a point he makes against suffragists, to the effect that those among them who advise the delay of the marriage age are "opposing the facts of feminine development and psychology, and are indirectly encouraging immorality with the appalling consequences for those directly concerned, for hosts of absolutely innocent women, and for the unborn.

Praise for Women of the West.

"If the woman suffrage movement were to be judged only by those advocates who discredit themselves and their sex by disorderly antics in public," the Colonel writes in a parting fling at the militant leaders, "I would certainly oppose it. But I do not believe these undesirable apostles are in any way to be accepted as exponents of the cause, and I call attention to the fact that they are prominent, not in the region where woman suffrage does exist, but where it does not exist.

"I pin my faith to woman suffragists of the type of the late Julia Ward Howe. She did, first of all, her full duty in the intimate home relations that must always take precedence over all other relations.

"In our Western States where the suffrage has been given to women I am unable to see that any great difference has been caused, yet what slight changes have occurred have been for the better and not for the worse. Moreover, I must say that, being a natural born democrat, I do like to associate with people who possess every right that I possess. In those Western States it is a real pleasure to meet women, thoroughly womanly women, who do every duty that any woman can do, and who also are not only in fact but in theory on a level of full equality with men. Most of the women that I know best are against woman suffrage precisely because they approach life from the standpoint of duty. They are not interested in their 'rights' so much as their obligations.

"In the long run, and taken as a whole, men and women will go up or go down together, and all reforms of first-class importance must look toward raising both men and women alike as regards the things of the body and as regards the things of the soul."

RICH PACKER SEEKS DIVORCE.

Charles P. MacDonald's Charges Answered in a Counter-Suit.

Charles P. MacDonald, a wealthy Chicago packer and member of the firm of Armour & Co., filed papers yesterday in the Supreme Court in this city for a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Anne Edwards MacDonald. Mr. MacDonald married Miss Anne Edwards, the only daughter of Congressman Edwards of Michigan, in 1901. Mrs. MacDonald has simultaneously filed a counter-suit against her husband.

It is charged in the husband's suit that Mrs. MacDonald often entertained friends in her apartments in this city until early morning, and he says witnesses will testify to the general hilarity of these affairs. No co-respondent is named. Mrs. MacDonald, in her counter-suit, denies all the charges, and accuuses her husband of infidelity. She also refrains from mentioning any names, and Mr. MacDonald denies all her charges.

After their marriage in Chicago the couple lived together for nine years in that city and New York. They agreed to separate in 1910, and Mr. MacDonald arranged to supply his wife with an apartment, maids, and an automobile. Mrs. MacDonald is at present in Los Angeles taking care of her mother, who is critically ill. She will not be present at the trial next Monday.

RAID THE COAL-BIN CLUB.

Police Find Runaway Youngsters Under Seventy-second Street Sidewalk.

From Monday till yesterday afternoon three boys, who hate to go to school, ran a bachelors' establishment in a coal hole under the sidewalk of a vacant lot in Seventy-second Street, between Columbus Avenue and Central Park West. They lived on what one boy could make sitting for his portrait at an art school, and on the bread and milk which the other two could gather along bakery and dairy routes. Their bohemian life came to an end yesterday when the coal bin was raided by Detectives Flynn, Halley, and Breslin of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station.

The three are Peter Murray, 12 years old, of 72 Amsterdam Avenue; Thomas Killarney, 11 years old, and his brother, Michael, 12 years, of 221 West Sixty-sixth Street. Peter Murray is the one who supported himself by posing. He gave sittings for art students at a school in Room 628 of the Arcade Building, Broadway, between Sixty-fifth and Sixty-sixth Streets. He received a fee of $1 for the time he put in at the studio on Tuesday, and this was the only actual cash used to meet the running expenses at the coal bin.

Peter found the demand for artists' models limited, and remained without an engagement since Tuesday. By Thursday funds had run low, and it was necessary to make use of talents of another order to keep the kitchen supplied.

They furnished the coalhole with two boxes for chairs and a carpet, on which they slept. A fire was kept going most of the time, though it went out at night sometimes, when they could not agree on which of their number should sit up and act as firemen. The dollar was chiefly laid out in canned goods, which were cooked whenever a majority decided that the time had come for a meal.

There were a couple of hundred boys in the neighborhood in the secret. Peter Murray said last night that the old coalhole was the haunt of the "Happy Club," an organization to which half the youngsters in the neighborhood belong. In good weather it is frequented by dozens of boys, though this is the first occasion, it is said, when any of the members have taken up residence there.

The families of the boys were informed yesterday that the children were in hiding in this vacant lot. Mrs. Murray went there Thursday night and called for Peter for two solid hours. She did not know of the niche under the sidewalk, and Peter slept or pretended to sleep through it all. She went home finally more alarmed than ever. It was explained yesterday at the Murray residence that, in spite of the plaintive note in his mother's voice, Peter was apprehensive that a reaction would set in against him by the time his parents could recover from the joy of finding him. A dictate of prudence kept him silent.

The detectives unearthed the library of the Happy Club which consisted entirely of volumes bound in limp paper, chiefly the biographies of men of action, like Nicholas Carter and the two Bradys. Their lives are regarded as the ideals the three boys set up for themselves when they left thir fathers' houses Monday.

The two Killarney children were turned over to the Children's Society. Peter Murray was led home by his father. All three will be in the Children's Court to-day.

BUSINESS EDUCATION PAYS.

Earning Capacity of New York University Graduates Above Other Colleges.

Dean Joseph French Johnson of the School of Commerce, Accounts, and Finance of New York University makes a strong claim for commercial education in a report issued by him yesterday. This report, which received its impetus from the recent discussion of the value of the college degree, shows that the graduates of the New York University School of Commerce, Accounts, and Finance receive the first year following graduation an average monthly salary of $135.30, which is an average weekly salary of $32.50, as compared with the average of the Harvard A. B. of $15 and the Princeton A. B. of $6 a week.

Moreover, the Dean's report shows that these men advanced to $42 a week the second year, and from then on show a gradual increase, until the ninth year—which is as far as the statistics have been carried—when they receive an average of $80 a week. The majority of these men are accountants and auditors, but there are several business managers, statisticians, treasurers, and secretaries of business corporations.

The average age of the graduate is twenty-five years. Most of these men took their courses in the evenings, while they were carrying on business work during the day. A report of the University Registrar in the Spring of 1911 showed that the 1,150 students in the school earned during the year an average salary of $1,026.96, which brought the total earnings of the student body well over the million-dollar mark.

HE'LL SKIM RIVER IN HIS AEROPLANE

Frank Coffyn, the Aviator, Is to Go Along the Hudson Like a Duck To-day.

WRIGHT MACHINE IMPROVED

Start Is to be from Foot of West 23d Street, and Grant Monument Is to be Encircled.

New York will get its first glimpse of the latest thing in a hydro-aeroplane this afternoon, the point of vantage being along Riverside Drive. The hydro-aeroplane is the latest product of the Wright factory, and is equipped with aluminum pontoons. These pontoons were designed by Frank Coffyn, the aviator, who will fly the machine.

Mr. Coffyn recently left the Wrights to go into business for himself. While at San Antonio during the recent army manoeuvres he acted as instructor to those officers of the United States Army who were detailed to aeroplane work.

"I will fly to-morrow in a twenty-five-mile wind," said Mr. Coffyn to a TIMES reporter last night. "The only thing that can stop the flight is zero weather. In the air zero weather makes it impossible to use one's hands. Outside of this drawback I have no limitations in flying this new machine. I am going to take my wife up with me."

The flight will be made at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the old Pennsylvania pier at West Twenty-third Street. When Mr. Coffyn's manager applied for permission to use the pier he was asked what kind of a craft he had. He said that it was a sort of "canvas-back" flying machine or one that was good on water or in the air. "Well," said the Dock Commissioner, "as you are not a steamboat I guess the only thing left is to put you in the other class and call you a 'canal boat.'"

"We are no longer 'bird men,' but 'duck men,'" said Mr. Coffyn last night. "I tried for a long time to find a name for my machine, and at last I thought of the 'Canvas Back.' I guess this expresses the idea of the thing about as nearly as any name can."

Mr. Coffyn will fly to-day by rising from the surface of the Hudson to a height of about 200 feet. He will then sink the machine to the water again and ride on the surface. After this he will give demonstrations of gliding on the surface of the water, and, rising again, will circle Grant's Tomb. With his wife beside him, this novel exhibition will no doubt attract many sightseers. The flight may be seen from any point along the Hudson on either side of the river from Twenty-third Street to Grant's Tomb.

The difference between the new machine used by Mr. Coffyn and other types of hydro-aeroplanes is in the pontoons. These specially designed air chambers of aluminum are so large that they permit the machine to balance safely on the water.

To-morrow's flight is to be the first of a series. Others will be given under the supervision of the United States Army, the flights being made from Governors Island, where military observers will be stationed to make notes. As many of the army aviators are Mr. Coffyn's pupils, the next official flight is expected to be an event in army circles.

EDNA MAY'S FAMILY REUNION.

Mrs. Lewissohn Awaits Arrival of Her Father and Mother, Who Are to Live Here.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Edgar C. Pettie, veteran mail carrier of Syracuse, and father of Edna May, now Mrs. Oscar Lewissohn, will leave for New York on Monday morning where he will make his residence with his family, after three years' separation, necessitated by the fact that Mrs. Pettie has been chaperoning her daughter Marguerite on the London stage.

As Mr. Pettie has been ill, Mrs. Oscar Lewissohn, who was to have sailed to-morrow for London, has postponed her trip until March 1. Mr. Pettie said to-night:

"I am anxiously awaiting the time when I can have my family about me. It will seem as if I was beginning life all over, for it has been many years since the entire family has been together."

POSTALS ANNOY DR. BUTLER.

Former Columbia Student, Now a Rabbi, Arrested by Inspectors.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—Helman J. Elkins, a Rabbi and a writer of Semitic history, who resides in the Elkins Apartments, 1,325 North Broad Street, was arrested to-day by United States Postal Inspectors for sending annoying postal cards to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Seth Low, former President of the University, and other educators connected with the institution.

According to Elkins, who was held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner Craig, he submitted a thesis on the subject of Jewish history to the university authorities several years ago, and when he inquired what disposition had been made of the manuscript, did not get a satisfactory reply. Shortly after this Elkins, who was a student at Columbia, was expelled. Since then he has tried to obtain some explanation, he says, and failing, he started the post card campaign.

The postal inspectors said the postal cards had been sent in a steady stream for eight years and while there was nothing scurrilous or defamatory written upon them, they had become very annoying to the recipients.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler said last night that he had been annoyed with postal cards sent by Elkins for twelve or fifteen years, sometimes at the rate of five to six a day, and again at intervals of several months. All the cards, he said, were disconnected and irrational, sometimes abounding in names of various persons, and often containing allusions to "Connecticut," but the contents of them he could never string together into sense. He said he did not recall Elkins personally, but believed he had been a student at the university for a time. He did not know whether Elkins had ever submitted a thesis or not.

DIX FORCED TO REST.

He Will Send Nominations to Senate Probably on Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Gov. Dix has been ordered by his physician to give up participation in public functions for the present. Dr. Spencer L. Dawes, who attended the Governor in his recent illness, said to-night:

"I have advised Gov. Dix that it is absolutely imperative he should forego all further social and public functions. The stress and strain of the Executive is so great that the additional burden which he has thus far carried is more than even his splendid physique should be asked to stand."

Gov. Dix has freely responded when invited to public dinners and receptions, and there have been many demands for his presence on public occasions.

The Governor expects to leave Albany to-morrow morning for Lake George, where he will remain until Tuesday. It is expected that he will return then to send several important nominations to the Senate.

Stabbing Case Not Heard.

After spending most of yesterday in the West Side Court, Alberto Robert and Edward L. Dwyer, each of whom accuses the other of having attacked him in the apartments of Mrs. Frances Carrier, 817 West End Avenue, on last Tuesday evening, obtained bail yesterday afternoon and were released to appear in court against this morning.

Killed Under a Motor Van.

Samuel Homer, 23 years old, a private detective of 433 Hopkins Avenue, Brooklyn, was struck and killed by a motor moving van at Avenue C and Twenty-seventh Street, Bayonne, yesterday. He is said to have slipped on the ice and fallen between the forward and rear wheels.

GROUT WINS APPEAL IN UNION BANK CASE

Court Rules Van Tuyl Cannot Hold Judicial Investigation After Banks Fail.

MAY TRY TO AMEND LAW

Decision Will Not Affect Indictments Against Union Bank Officials, Says District Attorney Cropsey.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Ex-City Controller Edward M. Grout, who refused to obey a subpoena issued by Supt. George C. Van Tuyl commanding him to appear to testify in the case of the Union Bank of Brooklyn, was sustained to-day by the Court of Appeals, which holds that the Superintendent of Banks as receiver of a failed bank has no right to conduct a judicial investigation as to the causes which led to the failure.

In the opinion of the court, which was written by Judge Werner, it was held that the Superintendent had the power under the banking law to investigate the conditions of a bank which had not failed, but that he cannot take charge of a bank as receiver and then investigate it.

"The Superintendent does not take charge of a bank as a public inquisitor, but as a receiver and conservator of its assets," Judge Werner holds.

Several arrests have been made as a result of the Superintendent's investigation. Mr. Van Tuyl has charge of several other banking institutions which are affected by the decision.

It is probable that an effort will be made to amend the law, giving the Superintendent power to investigate after failures have occurred.

When the news from Albany that the Court of Appeals had upheld ex-Controller Edward M. Grout in his refusal to testify in the Union Bank investigation was received in Brooklyn yesterday the day's hearing in the Borough Bank inquiry was adjourned for a week. The belief obtained that because of the decision no attempt would be made to resume this investigation, which has been dragging along before Second Deputy Superintendent of Banks Edward J. Graham in the Brooklyn Borough Hall for some weeks.

The Union Bank investigation ended some time ago, and is not now affected by the Court of Appeals' ruling.

EARLY ARGUMENT OR NO PAY.

To Avoid Delay in Murder Appeal, Court Fixes Six Months' Limit.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 2.—The Court of Appeals to-day assigned Charles J. Campbell to represent Joseph Ferrone, convicted wife murderer of New York, whose appeal is now pending.

To guard against delay in bringing the case on for argument such as was experienced in the Wolter case, the court stipulates that unless the appeal is argued within six months the attorneys shall not be entitled to compensation.

VISIT THEIR OLD PRINCIPAL

March the Streets with Strike Banners — Will Probably Be Taken Back in Former School.

Fifty schoolboys of the two highest classes of Public School 51, in West Forty-fourth Street, near Eleventh Avenue, were transferred on Wednesday morning to Public School 67, in West Forty-sixth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, and they attended school for just one day. Then they held a conference with the result that yesterday morning they didn't enter their classrooms at all, but spent the day in a demonstration before their new school. They marched through the streets with banners: "We are on strike, Public School 51," and sang and shouted defiance to the teachers who tried to conquer them. Finally the police were called upon to keep them away from the school, as it was not considered advisable to have the bluecoats try to put them in the classrooms.

John Colton, a stocky boy of 16 years, who lives at 549 West Forty-eighth Street, and Captain of the basket ball team of Public School 51, naturally assumed the leadership in the demonstration. He had as lieutenants two other members of the team, Otto Rispoli of 663 Tenth Avenue, and Arthur Leiman of 518 West Forty-seventh Street. According to these boys the trouble is that the new school is too far away from their homes. They point out that they had been going to the school in West Forty-fourth Street for a long time and that they were soon to graduate. They also say that there is no room for them at the new school.

"We didn't have any room to ourselves," said one of the trio yesterday afternoon. "They made us sit in the assembly room, and we aren't going to stand it."

Protests to The McManus.

Two of the boys who were transferred have taken the matter up with their Alderman and The McManus, the Democratic leader of the district, in order to get back to Public School 51. They are Urban and Joseph Haff of 584 Ninth Avenue. Their mother, Mrs. Jennie Haff, went to see McManus, and got his promise to send an Alderman to see Principal Fretz of Public School 51. As a result of the protests another class will probably be formed to take care of the boys who were transferred, so that they may continue at Public School 51 until they are graduated in June.

After a demonstration before Public School 67, the boys moved on the school in Forty-seventh Street. Principal Fretz came out and was greeted with loud cheers. He made a speech in which the boys say he promised to do what he could to get them back and give them a place next Monday morning. The boys say that they really ought to have two classes of Grade 8A and two of 8B. If this expansion is made, the boys declare that they will be satisfied. But if it is not, they announce that they will not go to school at all.

Teacher Asks for Police Whistle.

One of the teachers in Public School 67 called upon the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station yesterday to furnish her with a police whistle. She did not make a complaint, according to the Lieutenant in charge, but said that she wanted the whistle in case she should need assistance from the police in the future.

Principal McNally of School 67 got into communication with some of the boys' parents in the afternoon as the first step toward restoring order, and a number of the youths were brought around to a different view of the situation.

Many of the parents, however, stand with their children. Mrs. Haff is very firm in her opposition to the change. She said last night that she intended to take the matter up to Supt. Maxwell if necessary. She visited the District Superintendent, but did not see him. She is counting on the support of the Alderman and The McManus to have her sons taken back to School 51, which they have attended for seven years. She said that they had no teacher at School 67, and that they will fail to finish this June unless they are allowed to remain at School 51.

"We are hard-working people," she declared, "and we have made sacrifices to keep the boys in school. We have been thinking all along how fine it would be to have them graduate, but now they are really turned into the street."

MASON AGAIN GOES TO PRISON

Burglar, at 63, Has Served 23 Years and Now Faces 18 More.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 2.—"Big Bill" Mason, bank robber and burglar, who has served twenty-three years of his life in prison, was sentenced to-day by County Judge Platt at White Plains to eighteen years and six months at hard labor in Sing Sing Prison. For the first time in his long record in different criminal courts tears rolled down the cheeks of Mason as he pleaded with Judge Platt for leniency. He declared that he was a criminal by necessity and not by instinct, and that on account of his age he should receive a short sentence.

Mason and George Kelly were convicted of attempting to rob the country home of John H. Snagg of Port Chester, a few months ago. Mason insisted that Kelly, who was arrested with him, was not his pal, and that he did not even know him. Nevertheless Judge Platt gave Kelly seventeen years in prison. "Birds of a feather flock together," said Judge Platt as he imposed the sentence upon Kelly.

MISS BECK LOSES BONDS.

Fiancee of Dr. Huber Fails to Establish Her $10,000 Claim.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday holding that Miss Elizabeth M. Beck is not entitled to $10,000 worth of the bonds of the Brooklyn Union Elevated Railroad. Miss Beck was engaged to be married to Dr. Joseph Huber, who died in February, 1909. After his death the bonds were found in an envelope among his effects. On the outside of the envelope was marked in the doctor's handwriting: "The property of Miss Lizzie Beck, 842 Forest Avenue."

In holding that Miss Beck, who got $50,000 in a legacy under Dr. Huber's will, may not claim the bonds, the court said:

"The essential element of delivery to constitute a gift was wanting."

DETECTIVES PROMOTED.

Waldo Singles Out Three Men Who Were Daring in Capturing Crooks.

Police Commissioner Waldo promoted three detectives yesterday for efficient service, advancing Michael J. Londrigan, Charles G. Flaherty, and Bernard J. Devanney to first grade. Their salary will be increased from $1,400 a year to $2,250, a police Lieutenant's salary.

Detective Londrigan found loft thieves at work in a Canal Street building, and single-handed he walked in upon them. was attacked, and his head was cut in several places by a blackjack in the hands of one of the crooks. Despite the combined attack, Londrigan gave a good account of himself. He clubbed one of the men into submission, and put the others to flight, and later caught and arrested them all.

Detectives Flaherty and Devanney did some particularly good work in rounding up flat burglars who were operating in the Twenty-second Precinct, and recovered between $5,000 and $6,000 of stolen property.

Mrs. Wagner Charged with Contempt.

Surrogate Fowler gave Mrs. Elizabeth Wagner, widow and executrix of the will of Philip Wagner, fifteen days from yesterday to show cause why she should not be punished for contempt, for failing to file her accounts as ordered by the court. Mrs. Wagner lives at 52 Hamilton Terrace. The contempt proceedings were brought by Sidney Palmer, who is trying to collect a $1,600 judgment from a son [illegible] is a legatee under the will.

PEARL CAN BE IDENTIFIED.

Appellate Division Thinks So and Orders New Trial of Meyer Bros.' Suit.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court reversed a verdict yesterday awarding $1,600 or the custody of a certain pearl to Meyer Brothers, jewelers, who sued Alfred H. Smith & Co., another jewelry firm. A new trial of the case was ordered.

The pearl was bought originally by Meyer Brothers on May 27, 1909, from Henry Sessler for $1,000. They placed it in the hands of a broker for sale, and he took it to the Smith firm. The buyer of this firm scrutinized the pearl, and declared that it was one which had been stolen from his employers. The matter was then taken to the police courts, and the pearl found its way to the property room at Police Headquarters.

The man who sold the pearl to Mr. Sessler was arrested and discharged in the Police Court, and then Meyer Brothers tried to replevin the jewel. The court in discussing the case said:

> Alfred H. Smith & Co. claimed and gave evidence tending to show that they purchased the pearl in April, 1909, from one Brower, through his salesman, named Kohut; that the firm set it in a ring with diamonds; that their manager, Vogel, delivered the pearl with eleven other articles to be sold at auction by a Fifth Avenue auctioneer; that the articles were not sold, but returned to Vogel in an envelope and checked off by a clerk, and when Vogel got back to his office he found that the pearl and its diamond setting and ring had not been returned, but that a "fake ring" had been delivered to him by the auctioneer's clerk.
>
> The undisputed evidence shows that the auctioneer did not account to the defendants for the sale of the ring and pearl. The auctioneer had testified that he sold one of the articles delivered to him, but did not know what the article was. It thus appears that the auctioneer was authorized for a period of five days at least to sell the pearl, and that if he sold it during that time good title passed to the purchaser, and the defendant's recourse would be against the auctioneer.
>
> The case, however, was not tried on that theory, but upon the theory that the pearl could be satisfactorily identified as the one owned by Smith & Co., and that was the question of fact submitted to the jury, and in submitting it the court charged that there was no evidence that the auctioneer sold the pearl, and that it does not appear that any exception was taken thereto.
>
> On the question of fact submitted to the jury for its determination we are of the opinion that the verdict is clearly against the evidence. On the part of the plaintiffs it is claimed and evidence was given tending to show that such pearls may readily be matched, and that it is impossible to identify them; but on the part of the defendants, evidence was given by the testimony of Kohut, from whom the pearl was purchased, and others, positively identifying the pearl as the one owned by the defendants, and the ring and diamond setting were found in the possession of Lowey, from whom Sessler purchased it. It follows, therefore, that the judgment should be reversed and a new trial granted.

ART COLLECTIONS ON VIEW.

John P. Townsend's Engravings and Richard H. Halstead's Carvings.

At the American Art Galleries two collections are on view until next week Thursday when both will be dispersed by auction. Upstairs are the engravings and etchings collected by the late John P. Townsend of New York, some very fine impressions of beautiful plates by Rembrandt, Dürer, Meryon and Whistler. Among the Rembrandts is the beautiful "Christ Healing the Sick" in the second state, which is usually accounted the masterpiece of all etchings, and which exhibits a truly marvelous control of all the resources of the technical process as well as the deep religious sentiment of the artist. The "Return of the Prodigal Son" is also found in an excellent impression, and the "Rembrandt Leaning on a Stone Sill," which is the most esteemed of all Rembrandt's etched portraits of himself. A curious plate of which an exceptionally fine impression is shown is the one called "A Painter Drawing from a Model."

Among Dürer's engravings may be noted the "Adam and Eve" in good condition, and in the second state, a group from the "Small Passion" on copper, "Two Angels Displaying the Sudarium," "The Prodigal Son" and "The Virgin Seated by a Wall." Most of the Whistlers are from the Thames series. Among the exceptions is "The Rag Shop" in the fourth of five states, before the figures in the background.

In the lower gallery Japanese temple and palace carvings from the Richard H. Halstead collection are arranged with extraordinary taste and felicity of effect, the gallery resembling a room furnished with these precious objects rather than a public exhibition hall. To add to the illusion of domesticity a live bird is chirping in a beautiful red lacquer cage of Chinese workmanship.

One of the most elaborate and interesting pieces of furniture is the combination secretary and cabinet ingeniously adapted for Western uses and for lighting by electricity. A conspicuous feature of the rich carving is the turtle motive placed against a background of conventional waves. Upstairs are temple lamps, bronzes, and metal work, in all a remarkably entertaining collection that will tempt many an amateur of Oriental art not too exigent for pieces of great age.

$7,100 FOR JACQUE PAINTING.

"Shepherdess and Flock" Brings Highest Price at the Brandus Sale.

The Edward Brandus sale at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries closed last night with the returns for the evening $76,905 and for the two evenings $104,885. Joseph Pettic paid the highest price, $7,100, for a Jacque, 29 inches by 40, "Shepherdess and Her Flock." G. Saulhaber bought several pictures, paying $6,500 for Isabey's "The Harbor of Fecamp," $2,850 for Harpigny's "Road Along the River Loire," and $2,300 for a Cazin, 16 inches by 19, "The Village."

The portrait of Caroline Bonaparte, Queen of Naples, with her two children, from the collection of the Comte de Ganay, went to W. A. Wallace for $5,100. Another Cazin, "The Hut of Coast Watchers," went to P. Roux for $4,400, and Louis Ralston paid $2,400 for a picture of "The Virgin," by Bouguereau; William Mitchell gave $2,300 for "Le Galant Jardinier," by Nicolas Lancret, and Lancret's "In the Swing" went to A. A. Smith for $4,100.

Jordaen's "The Family Concert," from the collection of the Burgomaster Van Thielen, Belgium, went to F. R. Johnson for $2,100; Mrs. Rumsey paid $2,400 for "Miss O'Neill," the celebrated Covent Garden actress; S. A. Lawe gave $1,800 for "Portrait of a Young Lady," by Jan Verspronck; Aime Perret's "Plucking Roses" went to William Drew for $1,050, and J. R. Lamb paid $1,100 for "Port of Fecamp," by Richard Parkes Bonington.

MILK PASTEURIZING BY A BETTER METHOD

Heating It in Closed Bottles Destroys More Bacteria and Prevents Recontamination.

TESTS PROVE ITS VALUE

Resulting Advantage Can't Be Overestimated, Says Journal of American Medical Association.

The pasteurization of milk in closed bottles is indorsed by the American Medical Association, which says through its official organ:

"While the opinions of physicians and health officials as to the pasteurization of milk are not unanimous, yet it would seem that when properly carried out it is an additional method of securing safety which cannot be disregarded; and it cannot be denied that it does have the effect of reducing infant mortality. According to Straus, who has published data regarding this matter in Karlsruhe, in 1909, the death rate among infants fed on raw milk was 17 per cent., while among babies supplied with pasteurized milk the mortality for the same year was 6.3 per cent.

"In New York City, in 1892, the death rate of children under five years of age was 96.5 per thousand; in 1910, 45.8 per thousand. This reduction was coincident with the increase of the number of stations for the distribution of pasteurized milk and increase in the output of those stations. It is probable, however, that the general improvement of the milk supply aside from pasteurization was to some extent responsible for this improvement.

"The germs of typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever and other diseases are destroyed at pasteurization temperature. Much depends on the method of pasteurization, however, as it cannot be denied that even after pasteurization contamination is possible. A method, more effective than those hitherto employed, of pasteurizing the milk in bulk, has been recently recommended by North.

"According to this plan, milk is bottled and then pasteurized in the same manner as beer has been pasteurized for some time past. The bottles are placed in baskets and then carried by an endless chain through tanks of water, each tank having a higher temperature than the previous one. Gradually a temperature of 142 F. is reached. Here the bottles remain for from twenty to thirty minutes and after that are cooled. The bottles are now ready for delivery, further handling by which recontamination might occur being unnecessary.

"Three years ago, Heinemann recommended the use of bottles with narrow necks and caps fitting tightly over the outside of the neck. This type of bottle is the same as used for bottling beer. The objection raised to this style of bottle is chiefly the alleged difficulty in cleaning them. In breweries they are cleaned in machines in a perfectly satisfactory manner. North reports a series of experiments made with milk bottled in this style of bottles and carried through a pasteurization process in a brewery.

"Tests of the milk were made and compared with the results obtained by pasteurization in a holding machine and with the initial content in the raw milk with the following results: The average number of bacteria in six samples of raw milk was 3,426,000 per cubic centimeter. The number in the milk after having been pasteurized in a holding machine was 73,800, showing that 97.9 per cent. of all bacteria had been destroyed. The number of bacteria in the milk pasteurized in bottles was 18,980, showing that 99.6 per cent. of all bacteria had been destroyed.

"Pasteurizing milk in closed bottles offers two distinct advantages over methods in vogue at present. There is, in the first place, a material reduction in numbers of bacteria, this reduction being greater than the reduction obtained by the holding process. With a greater reduction of numbers of bacteria follow a greater reduction of the chances of pathogenic germs surviving. The second advantage—and this cannot be overestimated—is the assurance that recontamination cannot take place, as no handling of the milk is necessary after pasteurization, and protection against pathogenic bacteria is assured."

POLICY HOLDERS PROTEST

Against the Increase of Premiums in Assurance League of America.

Seventy-five members of the Assurance League of America met at the Astor House yesterday to decide what course they should take in regard to the proposed increase of premiums or reduction of policies, which have stirred up much opposition among the members, many of whom are working jewelers. The question was whether a meeting of all the members concerned, of whom there are more than 1,000, should be called to ascertain what has made necessary the drastic revision of rates put forward by the officers.

The officers have opposed holding such a meeting, and have refused to give the complainants a list of members to whom they could address the call.

The officers present yesterday were: George W. Street, President; James E. Kerr, Secretary-Treasurer, and Samuel Crook, counsel. John E. Diefendorf, Chief Examiner of Fraternal and Assessment Companies, was also present, representing Supt. of Insurance Hotchkiss. Mr. Diefendorf indorses the changes as necessary to the solvency of the league.

It was decided that Ludwig Nissen, who was Chairman of the meeting, should appoint a committee of five to confer with the Executive Committee of the league in regard to calling a general meeting.

Former Partner of John Arbuckle Gave Bulk of Estate to Widow.

When the transfer tax appraiser's report on the estate of the late William Van Rensselaer Smith, at one time the partner of John Arbuckle in the sugar and coffee business, was filed in the Surrogate's office, Brooklyn, yesterday, it was found that the testator had left a fortune amounting to $5,858,343.32. The bulk of this inheritance goes to Mr. Smith's widow, Mrs. Roxy M. Smith, according to the will, which was filed in December last. She is 78 years old.

Mr. Smith died in November of last year at the Hotel Plaza. Five years before his death he retired from the business, and was reputed to be a millionaire, but few knew the value of his estate until the tax appraiser's report was made.

Mrs. Smith lives at the Hotel Vanderbilt. Her son, William E. Smith, who is 50 years old, lives there with her. There are a number of legacies mentioned in the will, but they aggregate only a small portion of the estate.

WILL SIGNED WITH A CROSS.

Surrogate Doubts Mrs. Leddy Marked the Testament.

Surrogate Fowler refused yesterday to admit to probate the will of Elizabeth Leddy, which was signed with a cross some fourteen hours before Mrs. Leddy's death. The cross was so firmly made that the Surrogate did not believe that it was the work of a dying woman.

The will made Bridget Malone, housekeeper for Mrs. Leddy, the principal legatee. It was shown that the document was drawn in the kitchen by Miss Malone's cousin, a lawyer, and that the witnesses were a janitress and maid, who had been hired by Miss Malone. The will left bequests to nephews and nieces of Mrs. Leddy. In the list was a Patrick Hyland. Mrs. Leddy had no nephew of that name. It was argued that these bequests were inserted to prevent a contest.

GIRLS IN A FIRE PANIC.

Blaze Two Floors Below Them When They Escape in Elevators.

Hundred of employes on the upper floors of the Cluett Building, at 23 West Eighteenth Street, were thrown into a panic yesterday morning when fire was discovered below them on the seventh floor, which has been unoccupied for several weeks. Only about $1,000 damage was done by the flames, and there was really little danger, but when the smoke was first noticed the employes, most of them girls, made a rush for the elevators and stairways.

Howard Jackson, the negro operator of the first of the passenger elevators to reach the ninth floor, where the excitement was at its height, was hurled to the rear of his car by the terror-stricken girls when he opened the door, but he fought his way back to the lever. He made five trips before all of the passengers were carried to safety. Another passenger elevator and two freight elevators were also kept running.

The fire was discovered by a man in an office building in Nineteenth Street, and he sent in an alarm from Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street. In the meantime the alarm in the Cluett Building had also been rung, and a few minutes later another alarm was sent in from Fifth Avenue and Eighteenth Street. As a result of these calls, the streets were clogged with fire-fighting apparatus. The flames reached the eighth floor.

A number of cloak and suit and other manufacturing businesses have their workshops in the building, and considerable damage was done to the stock. The cause of the fire was not determined.

MANY SHORT MILK BOTTLES.

Dealers and Manufacturers Deny Intent to Defraud.

Commissioner Walsh of the Bureau of Weights and Measures held a hearing in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall yesterday on the subject of milk bottles. Several hundred bottles condemned in one month by seven Inspectors from his office were presented as exhibits. Some of the bottles showed shortages ranging as high as eight drams to the quart. In a few instances bottles which were condemned proved to contain more than the measure required by law. The law permits a deviation of four drams to the quart.

B. H. Pendry appeared as counsel for the Milk Dealers' Association. He said that the dealers should not be held responsible when evil intent was not shown. In many cases of short bottles, he said, the dealer was as much a victim as the purchaser. Representatives of the bottle manufacturers said that it was almost impossible to avoid slight deviation in sizes. There will be other hearings.

HYDE RENEWS HIS PLEA.

Asks Appellate Division to Grant Him a Change of Venue.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court heard argument and reserved decision yesterday on the appeal of ex-City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde from an order of Supreme Court Justice Lehman. Justice Lehman denied Hyde a change of venue for his trial on an indictment for bribery. The indictment charges that Hyde forced banks to deposit in the Carnegie Trust as a condition of getting deposits of city money.

Hyde did not appear in court. John B. Stanchfield, who argued in behalf of the appeal, declared that a deep prejudice against Hyde makes it impossible for him to get a fair trial in this county.

ILLUSTRATED EDITION
A New Work by Henryk Sienkiewicz
Author of "Quo Vadis," etc.
THROUGH THE DESERT
A Romance of the Time of the Mahdi
With Ten Full Page Illustrations by F. Schwormstadt
Cloth, net, $1.35. (Postage, 15 cents extra.)

The author of "Quo Vadis" has here shown himself in a new vein, but although his latest book is a decided departure from his earlier method, the same strength and power and the same inimitable and graphic style recall the splendor of his Roman masterpiece and the brilliant and fascinating pages of "Pan Michael" and "With Fire and Sword."

Throughout the book, whether we follow the principal characters through storm or calm, at peace or at handgrips with death, the compelling motive of Sienkiewicz's narrative is never lost sight of, while, as a fitting background for the action of this vivid and picturesque drama, the keynote of the wild and desolate African Country is woven into the central theme in the author's description of the desert, its moods, its strange and terrible surprises, its mystery, and its daily and hourly sleeping menace of danger and death.

The Joyous Wayfarer

By Humfrey Jordan $1.30 net.

"A most excellent story; but aside from its story interest, which is lively, the thing that will strike one most is the quiet charm of the narrative. It is told in a reminiscent vein, as if through a softening mist of years, quite as if it had all happened just so. There can be no hesitancy in recommending it."—New York Globe.

Jacquine of the Hut

A Romance of the Channel Islands.

By E. Gallienne Robin Frontispiece in Color. $1.30 net.

The hero, a smuggler living on the Island of Sark, is a lusty, selfish, happy-go-lucky type of his day. Poor, friendless Jacquine loves him with an uncalculating, headlong devotion. Tragedy enters, but Jacquine comes to her own in the end. The superstitions and customs of the people are richly interwoven with a narrative of decided dramatic power.

Riders of the Purple Sage

By Zane Grey

Here is an American romance of a time and place and life which seem as strange, picturesque, and dramatic as the days of Lorna Doone. The scene is the vast plains of purple sage-brush and the canon fastnesses of Southern Utah, when "rustlers," "gun-men," and avenging Mormons made their own laws. It is the story of men who dared greatly and women who could both ride and love.

A Personal Record

By Joseph Conrad

As author and seaman, Conrad tells in this book the beginnings and interweavings of his two passions. There are picturesque recollections of his childhood in exile with his patriot Polish father, his romantic feeling at his first physical touch of an English ship, his voyages into out-of-the-way parts of the world—the Congo and other romantic places.

Music and Morals

By H. R. Haweis

Just published in a new and enlarged edition, with forty pages of illustration. The term is comprehensive and here covers the author's elaborate analysis of the connection of music with emotion. The biographies of great musicians and the chapters describing the development of the piano and violin from humble beginnings are particularly valuable.

With Supplementary Notes Continuing the Record to 1910

Cr. 8vo. $1.35 net. (By mail, $1.50.)

Mr. Sterne was recognized as an authority on the question of railways, and, excepting for the fact that the problem is larger to-day than when first considered by the author, and that its vital interest for the community has been more clearly emphasized, the conditions differ little from those in force at the time his conclusions and recommendations were first brought to the attention of the public.

The Children's Encyclopedia

Superbly Illustrated with 9,000 Pictures; 350 Colored Plates

The Greatest Gift to Growing Minds

You cannot force a child to learn, but you can win him to learn. That is the wonderful thing that THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has done for all the children, little and big. The simple, clear and winning language, the thousands of beautiful and singularly interesting pictures, and the arrangement of the entire work so that the child's attention never wearies, but is drawn on from subject to subject and from picture to picture, makes learning the real delight that it ought to be. There is no member of the family from the youngest reader to the oldest who does not fall under the spell of these magic volumes.

Simplest Scheme of Universal Knowledge

The long road to learning is not a straight road; it is a beautiful circle, in which all the great departments of knowledge are closely related. The perception of this important truth has made possible the simplest scheme of knowledge ever devised. In the 15 Great Departments is contained what it is essential and important that every child or adult should know. The method of presentation and wonderful drawing power of this new work will at once be recognized upon examination.

Fascinating Familiar Things

It is often the most familiar things about which we are the most ignorant, and it is just these familiar things about which the children ask the thousand and one questions which we cannot answer. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE contains hundreds of descriptive story-pictures which show and tell all about such subjects as "How a Light House Is Built," "How a Stick of Chocolate Is Made," "How an Oyster Makes a Pearl," "The Story of a Fur Coat," "The Tale of a Knife and Fork," "Where the World's Bread and Butter Comes From," "The Making of Iron and Steel," and other important industrial processes. Fairie-tales of Science more fascinating than fiction interest and stimulate growing minds.

MORE LIGHT ON THE SHERMAN ACT

If the Steel Dissolution suit should go against the Government, the opinion of the court would be illuminating. It would light up that part of the whole field covered by the act which still remains in partial obscurity. When the Standard Oil case and the Tobacco case were decided the country learned what a corporation could not do without violating the law. The court made that very plain in its recital of the oppressive acts and unfair dealing of those corporations. But business men and the lawyers are still in doubt as to the legality of certain things that trusts and combinations are doing all the time without sure knowledge whether they are legal or illegal; there are large corporations that to-day, while conscious of no intent to violate the law, are not at all certain that either in their form of organization or in their business methods illegality might not be found to exist. No one has the right to assume what the court will do, but if the court should decide against the Government and should decline to issue a decree ordering a dissolution of the Steel Corporation, the country will then know that the form of organization and the business practices of that particular trust were not illegal, and that would be of priceless value for guidance.

To some of the allegations of the Steel Corporation's answer the court will pay little or no attention. It is of no consequence that the Government has for ten years acquiesced in the organization and in the operations of the Steel Trust. It is immaterial that the beneficial owners of the stock of the corporation now number 150,000, and that many of them hold their shares in trust for others. But the court should, and doubtless will, take some account of the conditions set forth by the answer when it declares that the Steel Corporation "has cheapened the production of steel to the consumer, has extended the home market for steel products, and has increased its foreign trade in said products by natural development from $8,000,000 in 1901 to $60,000,000 in 1911." The foreign trade of this corporation now constitutes upward of 90 per cent. of the total iron and steel exports of the country. This, assuredly, is no restraint of trade. If the court finds that the evidence sustains the contention of the Steel Corporation that continuously since its organization "it has been the declared and consistently followed policy of said corporation to encourage rather than to restrain the utmost freedom of trade and commerce; to refrain from acts of oppression or injustice to the competitors of said corporation; to abstain from efforts to harass such competitors or to exclude them from their fair share of inter-State or foreign commerce," these facts will have weight. As against the charge that the corporation has violated the monopoly clause of the act, its averment that its average output has decreased from approximately 60 per cent. of the total iron and steel business of the country in 1901 to less than 50 per cent. in 1911 is one of which serious notice will, of course, be taken. Knowledge common to all men, as well as the declarations of the company's answer, make it clear that no such recital of wrongful and oppressive acts against competitors as were made a part of the opinions in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases will appear in the conclusions of the court in the Steel suit.

The petition of the Attorney General asks that the Steel Corporation "be decreed to be illegal and in restraint of trade," and that it be decreed that the individual defendants have combined with other persons and corporations to restrain trade and commerce and to attempt to monopolize the steel industry. Yet this same petition sets up as a ground of action the Gary dinners, at which, the petition alleges, the men of the Steel Corporation and the men of its independent competitors met together and listened to mutual admonitions as to the high moral obligation each was under toward his neighbor, and that none of them should make the mistake "of running the risk of trespassing within the domain of the rights of his neighbor who had given his confidence and trust." That, as has always seemed to us, is rather dangerous matter to put into a bill of complaint against a corporation charged with restraint of trade. The Gary dinner charge and the restraint of trade charge are destructive one of the other. The chiefs of the independent companies would have coldly, or perhaps insolently, declined Judge Gary's invitations to dinner had they felt that they were being ground under the iron heel of the big corporation. Anybody can see that the charge of unfair dealing toward competitors is knocked into a cocked hat, as Gov. Wilson said about Mr. Bryan, by the pleasant recital of how all the steel men met together in sweet accord at Judge Gary's dinner table. And the allegation, if proved, that the Steel Corporation has not maintained its proportion of the country's output, and the fact that prices themselves have not been maintained but are now much below the level formerly prevailing will naturally have some weight as against the charge of monopoly control of prices. The bigness of the corporation, even though it controls less than half the output, and its great power in the trade cannot be denied, and the answer attempts no denial. The ore leases are to be surrendered and the advantage the corporation has had through its control of transportation lines is to be in part voluntarily relinquished. The case has elements of interest different from those which entered into the Standard Oil and the Tobacco cases, and the court's conclusions, whether for or against the Government, will in many ways be more serviceable for guidance than the opinions in the other two cases.

A REFERENDUM FOR WOMEN.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement in The Outlook of his position in regard to woman suffrage indicates that it is similar to the position of many, if not most, other intelligent men. He is not strongly in favor of giving votes to women, obviously, yet he is not strongly opposed to letting them vote if they want to:

> I believe in women's suffrage wherever they want it. Where they do not want it the suffrage should not be forced upon them.

No argument could be simpler or fairer. As a way out of the difficulty of learning what proportion of the women want to vote, he proposes a referendum. At a special election the women should vote upon the question "whether they do or do not want the vote as a permanent possession." Obviously the result of this special election would mean nothing at all if only the women voted who want always to vote. The vote should be judged in its relation to the number of women, in each district, qualified to vote. We fancy that it would be very difficult to induce many women to vote even to reject the right of suffrage.

Mr. Roosevelt's article will not please the advanced woman's-righters. They will consider his remarks on the distinction between rights and duties as superfluous. Particularly will they resent this statement of his feeling toward the agitators:

> If the women-suffrage movement were to be judged only by those advocates of it who discredit themselves and their sex by disorderly antics in public, and who assail the foundations of private and public morality in their endeavor, not to raise the sense of moral duty in man, but to lower the sense of moral duty in woman, I should certainly oppose the movement.

They will feel that the Colonel knows that great movements have always been advanced by agitation, and that agitators cannot afford to be too nice. Mr. Roosevelt's suggested referendum, however, may be worth while, if its result can be made to prove how large a proportion of the women want to vote. If, however, the result is to be decided by the larger number of votes cast, it will serve only as a census of the number of woman suffragists, which may turn out to be, as yet, a very small proportion of the female population of adult years.

FORECASTING HOME RULE.

The plan for Irish home rule, published in our London dispatches yesterday, cannot, of course, be taken as final, but it is along the lines that have seemed most likely to secure the assent of a majority in the Commons. It shows at once how extremely thorny any project of this sort is bound to be.

The first point of difficulty is the regulation of the tariff. Here we are told that the Irish Parliament shall have full control, but provision will be made for the continuance of complete free trade between England and Ireland. It is obvious that if complete freedom of trade between the two countries is to be maintained the tariff to be enacted by an Irish Parliament will have little scope. Anything that the Irish undertook to tax would be imported free through England if the demand for it warranted any considerable importation. The control of excise is also granted, which would be important and valuable, but that of the customs would be shadowy.

Provision for representation in the Imperial Parliament is made, but in greatly diminished numbers. This clause will certainly arouse great opposition among the Home Rulers, and will be accepted only as a last resort. Undoubtedly Ireland is greatly over-represented in Parliament, but that is due to the large decrease in population, about one-half, since the basis of representation was fixed. The active Home Rulers have always claimed that the present representation is but decently fair, since, they assert, depopulation is the direct result of British misrule, which is by no means an assertion without foundation. The present ratio does, however, give great advantage to the Irish members, whenever they can act together, and it will be surrendered with much reluctance.

By the plan published, the Irish Parliament is to have no voice as to the army, navy, militia, foreign policy, coinage, or military camps, and for twelve years no control of the constabulary. These are reservations of great importance, but it is quite likely that they represent the irreducible minimum of power that the Imperial Government must retain. The vexed question of revenue remains. Ireland is to be allowed a subvention of $10,000,000 a year for fifteen years, and after that time will make contribution to imperial expenditure based on a percentage of revenue. This again will doubtless encounter opposition from the radical Home Rulers, but there is good reason to believe that Ireland would prosper under such an arrangement. Her material interests are steadily improving. The value and yield of land in the island actually make a better show of advancement than those of England, and it is generally acknowledged that the measure of land ownership already attained has immensely stimulated the energy and thrift of the people.

The clause forbidding the establishment or endowment of any religion, or legislation dealing with religious matters, is sound enough in principle, but is, we are convinced, essentially needless. No such legislation is desired by the Catholic Church, or could be secured by any other.

THE BRANDT CASE.

Gov. Dix has given his decision in the much-talked-of case of Brandt, sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment for his assault upon Mortimla L. Schiff during the commission of a burglary. The Governor declines to commute or in any way to interfere with the execution of the sentence. This determines the state of the crime, and it is a just and righteous determination. An attempt has been made to have this convict set free on the ground that a thirty years' sentence was too severe for a burglar who had pleaded guilty. Was it, in fact, too severe for a criminal who was armed and ready for murder and who committed a murderous assault when detected in the act of burglary? The Penal Code and the record of court sentences should answer that question.

But in the hope of getting a pardon or a commutation the convict committed a more serious offense. He wove a fabric of lies and prepared false and spurious letters designed to serve his own case by destroying the reputation of another and innocent person; and he seems to have found in this community those willing to aid and abet him in his design. Thirty years is not too much, nor would a life sentence be too much, for a criminal of that type. Gov. Dix has acted with a due regard to the demands of justice in the case of Brandt.

But some questions are not yet answered. On what principle are certain newspapers in this town conducted? On the jackal principle that the scent for scandal is a sure guide in news gathering, and that the fabrications of a crook in prison are a good enough basis for columns of insinuation against private character? And on what information or belief or on what theory of official duty did District Attorney Whitman base his activities and procedures in this case? He may have been misrepresented, but it is understood that Mr. Whitman interested himself in Brandt's effort to secure a commutation of sentence. If that is true, Gov. Dix's dismissal of the application is a rather severe rebuke to the District Attorney.

THE ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION.

No one can seriously criticise in its modified form, we think, the bill establishing under Federal auspices the fund of $100,000,000 which Mr. John D. Rockefeller proposes to give to the Nation. Modified to meet sober criticism, it has been reintroduced by Senator Gallinger and Representative Peters. The "dead hand" cannot hamper the use of this fund for the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge. Its income cannot be accumulated, but must be spent for its avowed purposes. Its Trustees are not independently self-perpetuating; their new membership is subject to veto by an outside body. The affairs of the Foundation may cease and determine by the Trustees' vote after fifty years, or Congress may put an end to them after a century; moreover, the Federal Legislature may impose any limitations it pleases, and at any time, on the business of the incorporated body.

The gift is made directly to the American people. Philanthropical enterprises like the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, which has already rendered a great service of healing to humanity, will be brought directly under the supervision of Congress. After the death of its founder, and even during his lifetime, the Nation itself will guarantee to the Institute, with proper safeguards, a life beyond his life in the interest of the whole people.

But if the life of this great institution to destroy the causes of human ills should at any time seem harmful, it may be cut off at a stroke. So, also, the power is given to Congress to determine whether any of the institutions which the Trustees may endow shall continue. The Trustees themselves may be cut off. But, as Mr. Jerome D. Greene, the Manager of the Rockefeller Institute, said at Washington, on Thursday, the plan of a self-perpetuating body of Trustees, subject to the veto of its new members by an outside body, has proved conspicuously successful in this country. The outside veto power prevents a perversion of the trust. Above that, moreover, is the dominant power of Congress, to change at any time in the interest of the Nation the purposes and methods of the fund.

UNCONQUERABLE ZAPATA.

The revolt in Juarez soon subsided. Mr. Emilio Vasquez Nunez has not taken office as President of Mexico. The rebels have been mollified, and the Government of Madero still lives. There may be another revolution of the same proportions in the north to-morrow or next week, but it will not last. The worst thing about the recent uprising in Chihuahua is that it was probably aided and abetted on American soil. The steps taken by our own Government to enforce the neutrality laws have evidently been futile, so far as El Paso is concerned. Stronger measures are needed.

President Madero a few days ago declared that he saw the dawning of "a new era of progress, moral, social, and political." There is assuredly great business activity in the larger Mexican cities, while the business community still has faith in Madero's ability and sincerity. The troubles in and around Cuernavaca, however, continue with no signs of abatement. The whole State of Morelos is in disorder, while Zapata, the bandit leader, has armed men across the border of the Federal District. The persistence of this malcontent is amazing to outsiders who cannot understand his seeming hold upon Madero. Two regiments of well-disciplined troops ought to be able to subdue him and his followers. To be sure, they are all mountaineers, but they are not very dangerous while they are in their mountain retreats.

Cuernavaca has been in a state of unrest for a year, while smaller towns in the affected district are continually menaced. The explanations of the Government explain nothing, and Zapata is still clearly master of the situation in his part of the country. Porfirio Diaz would have suppressed such an enemy in a fortnight. That is why so many people who wish well for Mexico are somewhat disheartened.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Hains Wants Too Much. Through some mysterious working of whatever substitute for minds was possessed by the jurymen before whom Peter C. Hains, Jr., was tried for killing Annis he was sent to prison instead of to the electric chair. Later, for unknown reasons that must have seemed excellent and adequate to Gov. Dix, the man was pardoned and set free, long before he had served out the light sentence which had been imposed upon him. Now Senator Rayner of Maryland has been moved to introduce in Congress a bill not only restoring Hains to the army, but putting him back there with his old rank of Captain of Artillery.

By what argument the Senator has been convinced or has convinced himself that this should be done the dispatches from Washington do not reveal, and we are unable even to guess what they can be. As Hains escaped the death penalty, and as he was made the object of Executive clemency, the probabilities would seem to be that this strangely favored person will soon be wearing a uniform again and associating on terms of equality—or of superiority—with those who for cause are supposed to be the very best officers in our army.

In strange contrast with these proceedings is the fact that the killing of Annis was one of the most cowardly assassinations that was ever committed. Not only did Hains have no legal right to shoot Annis, but even "the unwritten law" did not justify in any circumstances the taking of deadly revenge upon an unarmed, unwarned, and helpless man. With the provocation Hains had, the obsolete system of systematized murder which in more barbaric days was called a "code of honor" would, indeed, have demanded the challenging of Annis by Hains, but it would have compelled the latter to risk his own life in attempting to kill the former in a fair fight with swords or pistols. The code, bad as it was, never countenanced slaughter in cold blood and from ambush. That is the "feud," as it lingers among ignorant mountaineers, but it was good enough for Hains, and he carried out his carefully arranged plan without any danger to himself.

The report is that in army circles the proposed restoration of Hains to his place in the Artillery Corps is viewed with disfavor—will be resented as a cruel affront. It is pleasant to think so—to believe so—to be sure of it.

Scholarships of a New Kind. It was not yesterday or the day before, of course, that railway managers began to realize the wisdom of doing something more than, and different from, extorting from the people living along their lines the last cent that could be taken in the shape of freight rates and passenger fares. At first a few, and lately a good many, of these officials have adopted the policy of getting traffic by creating it through the promoting of tributary industries.

The more recent attempts have often taken the direction of sending experts along the line to teach farmers new and scientific methods of agriculture. That this was not disinterested beneficence is true, but when self-interest becomes as much enlightened as was that of the officials who did these things, it has no reason to be apologetic, and it has the best of reasons to look with scorn on anything that is tainted with charity in the old, and still too frequent use, of that word.

The traveling experts carried light into many dark places, and, by bringing about the raising of bigger and better crops, undoubtedly earned for the railways their salaries and more. The plan is still good, but a new and most promising variant of the idea has been devised by President Finley of the Southern Railway. Instead of sending the experts to the farmer, or, rather, instead of remaining content with doing that, he is going to send the farmers to the experts. This he will do by establishing with railway money scholarships at the agricultural colleges in each State through which his road runs, and these scholarships, entitling the holder to a full course of instruction, will be given to boys who otherwise, because of poverty, would either drift to the cities or remain on the farm with little or no leading toward the only sort of farming that offers more than the poorest sort of a living and hardly that.

These boys, when graduated, will themselves become teachers, if only by example, and they will "make business" for the railway. By so doing they will repay the cost of their training, and therefore accept present help without the slightest feeling of humiliation. They can consider their scholarships as a sort of loan; and no young man need feel ashamed of going into debt to get his education—need not, that is, if, later, he pay his creditor in strict accord with the tacit or explicit terms of the agreement under which assistance was extended to him.

Big Diamonds Really Are Unlucky. Credulity is a little strained by the report that a bargain to buy an enormous diamond had to be enforced by legal proceedings for the absurd reason that the people who made the bargain heard that the stone was "unlucky," and therefore didn't want it. The explanation may be true, however, for superstition still lingers in many quarters that ought to be free from it.

Moreover, there really is some truth in the stories about unpleasant things happening to persons who in one way or another have gained possession of gems that are worth—or cost—fortunes. If such persons acquired these treasures in the fine old-fashioned way of stealing them, with or without murder of the former owners, they naturally exposed themselves to retaliatory measures and excited the dangerous envy of other brigands and looters. And that was "unlucky."

In later and milder days huge diamonds have usually been bought, but it is not very mysterious that seeming ill-luck has often continued to follow them, for investments so large in merchandise from which the possible return is so small is not apt to be made by people with the sound, wise minds which are, after all, the only insurance against falling into difficulties, financial and other. Some, of course, can as well afford to buy big diamonds as their neighbors to buy little ones, but every such purchase does excite and justify a certain disquietude as to the purchaser's future.

MILITIA MARKSMEN NEEDED.

Not Some, but All Guardsmen Should Be Unerring in Their Aim.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In one of the battles of the Franco-Prussian war, Gen. von Moltke says, a battalion of German infantry created great havoc to a detachment of about 2,000 French troops; had the result of the day's battle depended on this flank engagement, it would in itself have caused the ultimate rout of the French Army. But this encounter was only one of several of like result which decided this bitter war in favor of the Prussians.

The reason was simply this: they knew how to shoot. The German battalion was composed of good marksmen and many sharpshooters. They were drilled perfectly, obeyed orders strictly, and when they received the order to fire they did so with an aim so terribly destructive that within a few minutes the enemy was retreating in disorder, leaving the field covered with dead and wounded.

This is just one example of what good shooting means in time of war. In the case mentioned neither side had the advantage of ground, cover, or nomenclature. It was steady, unerring fire which won the day. It is needless to mention that shooting is one of the all-important qualifications of a soldier, be he regular or guardsman. The average militiaman, as a rule, does not give this matter the attention he should, although every regiment offers all sorts of inducements to its members to better their skill in the use of the rifle; still there are a great many men who simply live up to the requirements wanted of them, which is to qualify once during the year as a marksman in outdoor practice and on the indoor range.

This is surely not sufficient, and if these men of their own accord do not put in more practice, there should be some way of making them do so. If there should be a war in the future and the National Guard be called out, as it will be since it now composes the first line of defense with the regular army, where will these men be? What chance would a company of such shots stand? Just suppose them deployed as skirmishers on the field of combat, would they have the eye, the quickness, and the snap necessary to pick off the distant enemy as they advance?

Records show that many guardsmen are developing into some of the world's best shots. The trouble is not with these men; it's with those who follow the game indifferently. The aim of the Guard should be to make good marksmen of all, and it ought to be the especial duty of each man to encourage this in every possible way. It will mean everything in the long run.

THE TIMES'S COLLEGE NEWS.

Here Are More Appreciations of New Educational Feature.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a reader of many years' standing of your incomparable daily I want to express my sincere appreciation of your new departure of publishing news of the schools and colleges. The condensed account of the chief items of the great city system recently appearing in the week-day issue as well as the college pages in the Sunday issue certainly come under the category of "fit to print."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noted with interest the many features you have introduced which other papers wholly lack. Possibly the most noteworthy was the news from the colleges published in last Sunday's issue. Could not more of this sort of news be published? It seems fitting in these days when we hear much against our colleges to be able to read of the admirable works that are going on at these institutions.

AN INTERESTED READER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to express my sincere appreciation of the pages of "college news" which appeared in to-day's paper. I enjoyed greatly the items concerning not only my own university but others as well and hope that these pages will continue as a permanent feature of The Sunday Times.

Wants Subway Advisory Committee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As the Board of Estimate and Public Service Commission can not seem to come to a conclusion on the Subway situation, would it not be well to augment their forces through a referendum or advisory committee to be comprised of a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroad Companies, (the largest taxpayers,) Mrs. Charles A. Peabody of the Astor estate, John D. Crimmins, familiar with railroading, John Claflin and Louis Stern as representative merchants, Otto T. Bannard and Controller Moore for financial arrangements, Reginald P. Bolton, an engineer, and former Judge Charles F. MacLean for legal consultation?

LIQUOR SALES IN PARKS.

W. C. T. U. Head Proposes a Plan to Interdict Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have called attention to the fact that liquors are sold in some of the parks of the city and that these parks are owned by the city. In this big municipality, where there are thousands of certified places where liquors may be legally sold, and hundreds of uncertified places where liquors are illegally sold, the matter of a few places more or less is of comparatively little moment, but the location of any place where liquors may be sold is always a matter about which we have some privileges, and the right of protest. Perhaps it is not generally known that there are residence sections in Brooklyn and Staten Island, and there may be in other boroughs, where property owners are protected by a clause in their deeds that no liquors may be sold on the premises. Why should not the City of New York take the same position in regard to its property?

The State Legislature passed a law forbidding the granting of a license for any dance hall where liquors were sold, and the law is to be commended.

In the matter of the sale of liquors in public buildings and the parks it is not necessary to appeal to the Legislature, for as it concerns the use of city property it is in the power of the Board of Aldermen to pass an ordinance refusing to allow the granting of a license for the sale of alcoholic liquors in any public building or on any property owned or leased by the city. This would prevent the granting of licenses in any city-owned park, in any municipal building, or in any city institution. There is precedent for this not only in the fact that property owners have the right to decide the purposes for which they will lease their property, but Congress has enacted legislation that forbids the sale of liquors in all Government buildings.

Parks are provided that the young people and the children of the city may have public playgrounds, where, under the best surroundings, they may enjoy themselves. Roadhouses and cafés where liquors are sold are not a necessity, and the patronage of such places would yield a profitable return to their proprietors without a liquor license.

The W. C. T. U. will do all it can to secure the passage of this ordinance, but we cannot do it alone.

Will not every woman who wants the parks safe and clean, and who will indorse the petition to the Board of Aldermen send her name and address to our State Headquarters, Room 500, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City? Do it to-day, and we will see that the petition is presented.

Will not every man who believes that the city property should not be used for sale of alcoholic liquors, send us a postal to that effect with name and address, and also bring some influence to bear on his own Alderman to vote for the bill when introduced?

Tell us on the postal what you will do.

Paths in Central Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial under caption "Hands Off Central Park" is a very timely response to Mr. Lay of the Park Department. Indeed "hands off" so far as "more paths" and "more entrances" are concerned, but a very vigorous laying on of hands toward the repair of the now existing paths.

Have you noticed how little care is bestowed on the paths and shrubbery about the 110th Street mere and as far south as Ninetieth Street, as compared with that given to the section south of Ninetieth Street?

Officers Opposed to Canteen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I desire to submit for the enlightenment of your readers and in the interest of fair play for the devoted band of women wearing the white ribbon, who have stood so constantly against the army canteen, the following list of military commanders who have condemned the canteen—that canteen which sells liquors within army posts:

> Generals—Miles, Wheeler, Shafter, O. O. Howard, Corbin, Sternberg, Ludlow, Hayes, Boynton, Henry, Wilcox, Stanley, Harries, Rochester, Carr, Carlin, Graham, Lee, Bliss, and others.
>
> Naval Officers—Secretary John D. Long, Rear Admirals Sampson, Baker, Kimberley; Commodore I. H. Gibbs, Capts. Folger, Higginson, Crowninshield, Bradford.

Among the Colonels opposing the canteen was one Col. W. J. Bryan. To be brief, I will not cite some nearly fifty others which I have on record, as well as many minor officers.

No Call for New Pensions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read your criticisms of the $75,000,000 pension grab bill, which the Democratic House fell all over itself to pass recently. Having lately been on a tour as a special examiner for the United States Pension Bureau in various parts of the country, I am in a position to testify from personal knowledge that there is no call from any direction for the passage of any new legislation in the matter of pensions—not even from the soldiers themselves. Not only that, but there is a well-defined hostility among the people to such legislation as the Sherwood bill embodies.

In my travels I found a strong public feeling that the Government is providing bountifully for the old soldiers in the existing laws. As a matter of fact, the yearly pension payment is between $150,000,000 and $160,000,000.

Certified Checks Are Scrutinized.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I presented to an insurance company to-day a certified check in payment of a mortgage, and was told that it would not be accepted until the company had sent it to the bank to see if the certification was genuine, and that such was the rule.

Such a rule makes the certification of no value, and is a serious interference with business. It may be justified by some recent developments in the forgery line, but it seems to me that it is the business of our banks to devise some means to make their certifications of use to their customers. Perhaps a beginning might be made by having the certifying official write his name legibly, so that his signature might be recognized.

Trivial Blunders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with much interest your article under the heading "Explanation Not What She Wanted," and as a constant reader of your valuable paper must say that articles of this class one can find in The Times only. Here are the lines that should be borne in mind by every right-thinking man:

Omitting to Punctuate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an article on "Simplified Spelling" a writer in a Western paper says:

> So long as there is a conflict between adult spellers younger minds will spell to suit themselves.

That is true to a certain extent; but how about the fad introduced by newspapers and magazines of leaving out punctuation marks in headings and advertisements? Don't you honestly think, Mr. Editor, that that innovation is a great deal more harmful to young minds than the simplified spelling craze?

Tolerance of Religious Sects.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was with keen satisfaction that I read the account of Dr. Silverman's splendid plea at Temple Emanu-El for a more tolerant attitude of the different sects and religions toward each other and a more united attitude on the vital question of how they can best benefit humanity.

Would that this note could be struck oftener, so that men might see the eternal likenesses instead of the ephemeral differences in varying creeds and religions.

ODD CAUCUS VOTES IN SCHOOL BOARD ROW

Winthrop Men Claim 28 Votes and Churchill Men 25—Only 46 in All.

MAYOR GAYNOR EXPLAINS

Indorsed Churchill for President After Winthrop Had Said He Wasn't a Candidate.

Friends and fellow Commissioners of Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., President of the Board of Education, held a caucus yesterday afternoon to determine how many votes they could muster to insure his re-election on Monday afternoon, despite the known opposition of Mayor Gaynor, who has announced himself in favor of the election of Thomas W. Churchill, one of the new members of the board. After the caucus, the Winthrop men announced jubilantly that they were sure of at least 28 votes for their man. Only 24 are necessary for election.

"The question at issue is simply this," said Gen. George W. Wingate, one of the leading supporters of Mr. Winthrop. "Is the Board of Education to retain its individuality or to become merely a rubber stamp of the Mayor?"

The Churchill men, on the other hand, insisted that they were equally sure of the election of their candidate with 25 votes, and that the question at issue was indeed one of freedom, but freedom from steam roller administration by Chairmen of committees appointed by the President of the board, under which, they said, individual Commissioners have been powerless.

The Mayor's Attitude.

Park Commissioner Higgins of the Bronx attended a meeting of the board two weeks ago and conveyed to several members, they say, that he was a messenger from the Mayor and that the re-election of Mr. Winthrop or the voting of any Commissioner for him would be considered by the Mayor "an unfriendly act."

"We asked him what were the Mayor's objections to Mr. Winthrop," said one member yesterday, "and he replied that he did not know: that he merely knew his re-election would be considered by the Mayor an unfriendly act, as would any vote cast for him."

A second and more personal intimation from the Mayor as to his wishes in the election of a President, according to the same member of the board, was received on Thursday, when this letter, signed "Sincerely yours, W. J. Gaynor, Mayor," reached most of the members—Mr. Winthrop and Gen. Wingate received no copy:

> My attention has been called to the fact that one or two members of the Board of Education have caused the false statement to be published that I have tried to coerce members of the board to vote for Mr. Churchill for President of the board. It has long been the custom to consult the Mayor and ask for his views in respect of the selection of the Chairman of the board.
>
> This custom is based on the facts that the Mayor appoints all of the members of the board, and has to have constant official relations with the board through its Chairman, and it has therefore been thought reasonable that the Chairman should be a member who is agreeable to the Mayor. It would seem that no fair-minded person could object to this custom.
> Mr. Winthrop followed this custom last year and came to me personally. This year he did not broach the subject to me in any way, and it was given out that he was not to be a candidate. Thereupon several members of the board were announced as candidates. Thereupon many members of the board came to me singly or together and stated that it had long been the custom for the Mayor to be consulted in the matter, and asked me to express a preference. I refrained from expressing any opinion until I had been repeatedly requested to do so. I finally said after considering all the candidates that the selection of Mr. Churchill would be agreeable to me. I was not a volunteer in the matter. I only expressed a preference on request. The election of Mr. Churchill will be most agreeable to the Mayor.

"It is not true, as stated in the Mayor's letter," said one member who had received the letter, "that it has been customary for the Mayor to be consulted for a preference as to the election of the President. Moreover, the Mayor, though disclaiming any intention to coerce members, fails to mention the fact that he did tell Commissioners Whalen, Barrett, and Martin at the City Hall that he was not in favor of Mr. Winthrop's candidacy, but that any of them would be acceptable to him if they would become candidates. This they refused to do, declaring that they would vote for Mr. Winthrop. I, for one, consider the Mayor's letter merely a personal appeal to vote for his candidate, and do not think it calls for an answer."

Demand for a Complete Change.

Jeremiah T. Mahoney of 51 Chambers Street, who was appointed by Mayor Gaynor on the Board of Education and who has taken a leading part in the fight for Mr. Churchill, declared yesterday that he was sure of Mr. Churchill's election by at least twenty-five votes—there are forty-six members on the board.

"Personally, I like Mr. Winthrop and think he would make a good Commissioner of Education," he said, "but I think a stronger and more aggressive man is needed as President. Mr. Winthrop was appointed by Mayor McClellan, who is his brother-in-law, and the city is tired of McClellanism. Mayor McClellan himself had not kept his hands off the Board of Education, for he made several appointments of Commissioners of Education, intimating to them that he would like to see them support his brother-in-law.

"The present situation requires a radical change. If the board had the right sort of President it would not require outside investigation, such as that now being carried on by Dr. Hanus and his committee, but could investigate all educational matters itself. Too much time, too, is being devoted by the present administration to making courses uniform for all children under present committees, instead of fitting education to the needs of different types of children. Once there is a different President, the complexion of the committees will change for the better. The Mayor is not trying to exert political influence in the Board of Education—his policy in the Police and Fire Departments shows that he is trying to free the departments from politics. He simply wants to bring about a reform in conditions."

Joseph Barondess, one of the Mayor's recently appointed Commissioners, likewise declared that the election of another President would bring about better administration and truer freedom in the board.

"At present," he said, "everything is run in steam-roller fashion by the Chairmen of committees, and we have to vote on their recommendations without knowledge of the facts themselves. Once a new President is elected there will be a change in the spirit of the entire board, and the by-laws can be amended so as to give the Commissioners power to act in certain cases. At present we have no right even to nominate District Superintendents; the Board of Associate Superintendents runs the whole shebang. Likewise, we are asked to vote on charges brought against teachers without having an opportunity to know whether the charges are true or have been proved. With a new administration the Commissioners would know what they vote for."

Mr. Barondess said he did not know what objection the Mayor had against Mr. Winthrop other than that after the announcement of Mr. Winthrop's declination to serve again the Mayor had selected Mr. Churchill as most fit and promised him support. Mr. Winthrop had been persuaded with much difficulty by his friends to become a candidate again, said Mr. Barondess, but he held that an unwilling candidate usually proves an inefficient officer.

Mr. Winthrop has been President of the Board of Education for five years. Mr. Churchill, who was formerly a Deputy Fire Commissioner, was appointed by Mayor Gaynor to the Board of Education last June. The Mayor appointed eleven other Commissioners with Mr. Barondess some time afterward, and most of these, together with enough others to insure a plurality, according to Mr. Barondess, will vote for Mr. Churchill, as shown in a caucus of his friends held on Saturday.

DINNERS AND DANCES BRING OUT SOCIETY

DANCE AT THE COLONY CLUB

Mrs. Howland Davis Entertains for Her Debutante Daughter—Mrs. F. E. Lewis Gives Home Party—The Guests.

There were several interesting dances and dinners given last night to attract society. Mrs. Charles B. Alexander gave a dance at her residence, 4 West Fifty-eighth Street, and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock gave a dinner at Sherry's for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., taking her guests afterward to Mrs. Alexander's dance.

Mrs. Edward S. Harkness gave a dance at Sherry's for her niece, Miss Elizabeth Stillman Kendall, the débutante daughter of Mrs. William Armstrong by her first husband; Mrs. Howland Davis was hostess at a dance at the Colony Club, given for her débutante daughter, Miss Sybil Davis, and Mrs. Frederick E. Lewis entertained at her residence, 23 West Fifty-second Street, for her son, Wadsworth Lewis.

There were about 200 asked to Mrs. Alexander's dance. The house was decorated with Spring flowers, Forsythia and American Beauty roses entering into the decoration of the ballroom. The guests began arriving about 10 o'clock, and dancing continued until midnight, when supper was served, after which dancing was resumed.

The large ballroom and banqueting suite at Sherry's were taken for Mrs. Harkness's dance. A dinner for sixty-eight guests, seated at four large tables, was served before the dance. The large ballroom was done in pink flowers and smilax, and Mrs. Harkness, in white with touches of blue, Mrs. Armstrong in pink, and Miss Kendall, also in pink, received in the rose red room adjoining the large ballroom. The dancing was general and informal.

Mrs. Howland Davis's dance was a small one, the guests numbering about 150. The guests were asked for 9:30. The assembly room, where Mrs. Davis and the débutante and her two sisters, the Misses Hester and Ruth Davis, received, was decorated in smilax and green trees, and this forest effect in green, with no color whatever, was also used in the other rooms, including the gymnasium, which was used for sitting out, the supper being served in the dining room at 12:30 at small tables.

Mrs. Davis wore a gray satin frock, and the débutante's gown was of pink taffeta with a white lace kerchief and lace flounces. Several dinners preceded the dance, the hostesses being Mrs. Hilborne Roosevelt, Miss Davis's aunt, who gave a dinner for Miss Marion Butler of Philadelphia, a cousin of Miss Davis; Mrs. James Remsen Strong, and Mrs. James Gayley.

Mrs. Lewis's dance was preceded by several dinners, including those given by Mrs. Robert Ludlow Fowler for Miss Elizabeth Fowler, and Mrs. F. Egerton Webb for Miss Laura Webb. There were about 160 guests. The house was decorated throughout with yellow flowers, jonquils, Forsythia, and the tables were also decorated in yellow. HOPE DIAMOND WORN AT M'LEAN DINNER

Famous Gem Seen for the First Time in Public Since It Changed Owners.

A NOTABLE GATHERING

Guests Members of Diplomatic Corps Entertained by Metropolitan Singers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—Mrs. Edward B. McLean wore the Hope diamond to-night. The occasion was the brilliant reception in the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts Avenue, given to her husband's uncle and aunt, Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmatief.

It was the first time the famous gem was worn in the United States and the first time that its new possessor has worn it in public. Besides this world-famous jewel Mrs. McLean wore the famous Star of the East diamond, which weighs 98 carats, and which is regarded as one of the most valuable stones in the world.

The reception to the Russian Ambassador and his wife was held at the residence of the late Thomas F. Walsh in the ultra-fashionable residential section, where Mr. and Mrs. McLean, the hosts, make their home, Mrs. McLean being the only daughter of Mr. Walsh and the heir to the fortune left by her father.

Yellow lilies, imported from England especially for the occasion, were generously used in decoration of the tables. These flowers alone are said to have cost more than $8,000.

The whole interior of the house was profusely decorated with blooming fragrant plants, palms, cut flowers, and foliage that made the atmosphere that of the Spring time.

The dinner company of forty guests brought together to meet the Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmetief, included the Ambassador of Great Britain and Mrs. Bryce, the Brazilian Ambassador, the Ministers of Denmark and of the Netherlands, and the Belgian Minister and Mme. Havenith, in addition to representatives of the smart circles of official and resident society.

The musical artists, who came from New York for the occasion, were Mme. Gluck and Mr. Ricardo Martine, members of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The stairway, which occupies the centre of the hall, was lined with rare blooms, white lilacs, the exquisite pink of Japanese azaleas, crab-apple blossoms, with delicate green ferns which carried the eye to the grottolike landing where a marble group of dancing nymphs, one of the many art treasures of the house, was thrown into relief against branches of flowering almonds.

Half concealed among the flowers were the delicate rose colored lights which supplemented the overhead illumination of the hall, which is one of the architectural features of the house, rising from the ground floor to the dome-like roof of stained glass, a gallery protected by bronze railings encircling it at each floor.

In the music room with its rose and gold furnishings and the library opening from it were 1,500 guests in addition to the dinner guests, who were entertained at the musicale which followed. These rooms were decorated with huge standards of palms and American Beauty roses, combined with pussy willow branches, giving a Spring-like touch.

The dinner was served at a long table decorated with yellow lilies and orchids. In the centre of the table a miniature fountain played into a gold-rimmed basin outlined with a border of yellow orchids. A single tier of farleyence ferns with a centre of red roses flanked the fountain.

At intervals down the length of the table were chandelabra of massive gold, filled with lilies. The gold service added a final touch of sumptuous beauty to the table.

The young hostess wore a Worth gown of silver net over white charmeuse, the net exquisitely wrought in border design of white roses, which followed the line of the train.

The Hope diamond she wore on her head, and the McLean diamond, suspended from an almost invisible platinum chain, hung on her neck.

The dinner guests were the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, the Brazilian Ambassador, the Netherlands Minister, Mr. Loudon, the Danish Minister, Count Moltke, the Belgian Minister and Mme. Havenith, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. MacVeagh, the Post Master General, Senator Brandege, Senator Du Pont, Representatives Gillette, Butler, Ames, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Huntington Wilson.

THE NEW YORK SYMPHONY.

Mr. Chadwick Conducts His New Symphonic Suite—St. Cecilia Club Sings.

There were pleasing variety and interest in the sixth of the Friday afternoon concerts of the New York Symphony Society. A new composition—new to New York—a "Symphonic Suite," by George W. Chadwick, was played, conducted by the composer. The St. Cecilia Club of women's voices, conducted by Mr. Victor Harris, took part in the concert and gave five compositions for women's voices, three with orchestra and two "a cappella." The symphony was Schumann's in D minor, which Mr. Damrosch played a short time ago at one of the Sunday concerts.

Mr. Chadwick's suite took the prize offered recently by the National Federation of Women's Clubs and was first played in Philadelphia last Spring, though it was finished some two years ago. It is in the form of a symphony; the fact that its content is somewhat lighter and at some moments more jocose than composers are in the habit of putting into a symphony no doubt led the composer to let it go as a suite. The first movement is the most serious of the four, and in its substance and treatment the most interesting. There is an engaging quality of freshness and vigor in its themes, especially the first, and its development is ingenious, yet spontaneous, with taking rhythms and much that is effective in the orchestration. The slow movement is pleasingly, and perhaps rather obviously, melodious. The third movement is called "intermezzo and humoresque," and as Mr. Damrosch said in his few words before the concert began, there is something tangible of a humorous nature in the movement to justify the title of "humoresque." A "Cake Walk," in five-four time, and a bit of parody of the modern French style, the "whole tone" scale of Debussy, the consumptive frogs in dismal pools of the decadent poets.

The cake walk is not very definitely outlined in the music, though the quintuple rhythm is unmistakable; so is the hint of Debussy, which is scarcely more than a hint. As nothing is easier to parody than this idiom, Mr. Chadwick's self-restraint in the matter is commendable. But more than these things is the essential gayety and jocose spirit of the music, which require no elucidation. In the last movement there is a return to something more serious, though the energy and spontaneity of the first movement are again felt in it. The suite gave pleasure and was applauded heartily. It discloses a characteristic side of Mr. Chadwick's talent that is most ingratiating, and that has given pleasure before.

The singing of the Cecilia Club was a charming addition to the programme. It was better in the unaccompanied pieces than in those with orchestra, perhaps because in them Mr. Harris felt more at home and had the performance more under his control. With the orchestra were sung Brahms's melodious "Ave Maria," Opus 12; a pretty "Rosenlied" by Ludwig Thuille, composer of "Lobetanz," in which the orchestral part was arranged from the orchestral pianoforte accompaniment, and a setting by Hugo Wolf of "Ye Spotted Snakes" from "A Midsummer-night's Dream"; not, certainly, one of the productions that have made Wolf's name, though there are interesting pictorial details in it. Without accompaniment were Verdi's setting of the "Laudi alla Vergine Maria," from Dante's "Paradise," a beautifully poetic composition, and MacDowell's "Summer Wind." In these there were an excellent quality of tone and not a little finish of performance.

TOOK DOWN IMPERIAL FLAG.

Russian Ambassador Acted on Complaint Against Winter Garden.

The Winter Garden has lost some of its exterior decorations, because the Russian Government objects to the display of the imperial flag for commercial purposes. Since Mikail Mordkin, Lydia Lopoukowa, and other Russian dancers have been appearing at that playhouse, part of the outside ornamentation has been a Russian flag—the double eagle in black on a yellow ground. It seems that some loyal Russian saw the bunting and notified the Russian Ambassador in Washington. The Ambassador notified the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State notified Police Commissioner Waldo, who, in turn, notified J. J. Shubert of the Winter Garden management, who thereupon notified the house manager. The flag was taken down and a French flag substituted.

Baron Schlippenbach, the Russian Consul General in New York, was also notified of the affair, and, presumably, was asked to look after it. He said last night that while it was impossible for him to give out the text of the communication from the embassy in Washington for diplomatic reasons it was quite true that there had been serious objection to the theatre using the imperial flag. He explained that there were three Russian flags; one used for commercial purposes and flown by merchant steamships, one used by the army and navy, and one used only to signify the presence or authority of the Czar. The flag at the Winter Garden was of the last sort and could not be displayed without creating a wrong impression.

The Police Department said that it was not at liberty to disclose any correspondence with the State Department in Washington and refused to give the text of the communication received here.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILWAY COMPANY,
71 Broadway, New York.

Minute of action taken at a Meeting of the Executive Committee held February 2, 1912.

We have assembled in the shadow of our great loss to bear public testimony to the memory of our associate, Mr. Edwin Hawley, who died on February 1, 1912.

He was a Director and a member of the Executive Committee of the Company; and in all respects was scrupulously attentive to his duties. In their discharge his main consideration was the proper and permanent development of the property, whose ownership he shared with many thousand holders of its stock and other securities; to whom he felt and acknowledged many times the full responsibilities of a trustee.

His wide experience prompted him to maintain his own convictions. Notwithstanding the decisiveness of his character, he was unusually considerate of the view of others, standing, however, at all times for justice and fairness.

His sympathy for all subordinates in the service was especially characteristic; and in times of agitation and discontent he would insist upon equitable treatment commensurate with adequate control of the property by its owners.

He looked far into the future; and the developments which he advocated, and which mark the progress of the Company in the past two years, were cheerfully co-operated in by every officer, and are speaking evidence of his genius.

His frequent visits to the railway, and the familiarity thus secured with its details, augmented the power of his personality in the influence he exerted for the benefit of the owners of the Company's securities.

To us who remain to carry on the work which he has laid down, his example will ever be an inspiration to continue our best efforts for the advancement of the interests intrusted to us.

By order of the Committee,
JAS. STEUART MacKIE, Secretary.

FOOTBALL RULES GET ANNUAL GRILLING

Committee Discusses All Day Methods to Strengthen the Offense Play.

MAY CHANGE CODE TO-DAY

Number of Yards to Gain in Three Downs, Forward Pass, and Onside Kick Principal Points of Debate.

The Football Rules Committee at its annual meeting held at the Holland House yesterday talked all day about different schemes to improve the gridiron pastime so that it would be possible to have more touchdowns. A dozen and one different changes were suggested, but no action was taken on any of them. The discussion continued long into the night, and the committee will be up bright and early this morning and adopt a few new rules intending to bring about a better balance between the offensive and defensive possibilities of the game.

There is no doubt that decided but not radical changes will be made in the game. The members of the committee announced that they were here for business and that when their work was finished new rules would be adopted which would make the scoring of touchdowns easier than under the present code. The rules covering the defensive part of football seem to be satisfactory, and all their attention will be given to strengthening the attacking possibilities.

Among the suggestions which came before the rules makers for their consideration was one to reduce the number of yards necessary to gain in three downs from 10 to 8, and another to allow the forward pass to be used as a scoring play, permitting it to be thrown over the goal line. Another suggestion was the dropping of the onside kick entirely. Still another suggestion was to cut down the number of yards to be gained in three downs, between the 25-yard line and the goal, from 10 yards to five. Some one also offered the innovation of four downs instead of three.

There were also many suggestions concerning the forward pass. It was said that some of the rule makers are in favor of eliminating it entirely, while others want all restrictions taken away, so that it will be permissible to make a forward pass for any distance, and from any place behind the scrimmage lines. There seems to be a general desire to eliminate all restrictions concerning the onside kick, and one of the members suggested that the neutral zone between the two lines of scrimmage be done away with.

It was a general discussion of these points that kept the committee busy all day and evening behind closed doors. Many of the suggestions have merit, while others will not be considered very seriously. The members of the committee present were: Walter Camp, Yale, and alternate, Arthur Howe, who will be head coach at New Haven next season; Percy Haughton, Harvard; W. N. Morice of Pennsylvania, alternate for Dr. Carl F. Williams; James M. Sheldon of Chicago, alternate for A. A. Sagg; Parke H. Davis, Princeton; F. D. Berrien, Annapolis; Joseph Beacham, Cornell; Dr. Harry L. Williams, Minnesota; Dr. James A. Babbitt, Haverford; E. K. Hall, Dartmouth; Lieut. V. W. Cooper, West Point; W. L. Dudley, Vanderbilt; C. W. Savage, Oberlin, and S. C. Williams, Iowa.

When the committee met yesterday morning several well-known football men appeared before the committee and made suggestions in relations to the improvement of the game. Among these were Bill Edwards and Addison Kelly of Princeton, George Foster Sanford, Carl Flanders, Herman Olcott, and George Adee of Yale, Glen Warner of Carlisle, Paul Dashiel of Annapolis, and Ed Coochems of Wisconsin. Coochems had the most novel suggestion of the lot. He wants the game changed so that each team will be permitted to make five rushes with the ball, and then give it to the other team for five attempts at advancing the ball. The plan is to alternate the attack after every five rushes, something after the fashion of innings in a baseball game. This suggestion, however, will not be seriously considered by the committee. Sanford made a bold, straight-from-the-shoulder plea for the old-fashioned game. He considers the forward pass a dangerous play and predicts that some day a very serious accident will result from it. Sanford has no sympathy for the present game at all.

Of course, much interest was centred on Yale's attitude on the game. Walter Camp and Arthur Howe, representing the Elis, had little to say about any probable changes. Yale's attitude on the matter, like Harvard's and Princeton's, is not to tinker with the rules too much. Princeton, while favoring no radical changes, is willing to join the other colleges in any new rules which will improve the offensive playing.

The meeting was harmonious, but when it comes to voting on probable changes to-day it is expected that there will be a split. There is a large Western delegation on this committee, and the position of the Western football men is said to be in favor of changes, while the Eastern contingent is more inclined to "stand pat" on the rules as they now appear on the books.

Seven members of the committee represent the National Collegiate Athletic Association, of which Capt. Palmer E. Pierce is President. This organization was instrumental in changing the rules a few years ago, and this year the organization instructed the committee to follow out the suggestions made by Dr. Harry L. Williams, the Chairman of its Football Committee. This body favors the removal of all restrictions on the forward pass, also five yards to gain in three downs between the 20-yard line and the goal. It is very likely that some suggestion of this kind will be adopted.

No team since the new code was adopted has ever developed the onside kick to a state of perfection, and it is not improbable that this play will be stricken from the code.

CHESBRO WANTS NEW TRIAL.

Manager Wolverton Will Take Old Yankee Pitcher South on Training Trip.

The most surprised man in New York yesterday was President Frank J. Farrell of the Yankees when Jack Chesbro, the old New York pitcher, walked into his office and announced that he wanted to play ball again. Chesbro for the past few years has been in the lumber business in Conway, Mass., and to-day looks to be in as good shape as ever. He has been active all Winter, and reduced his weight to the same figure as when he almost pitched the Yankees into a pennant in 1904.

Chesbro was a performer de luxe with the famous "moist ball." He used it with greater effect than any twirler of his day or since, although it was one of these wet twisters which became unruly and wild in the final game with Boston on the Hilltop in 1904, and gave the Beantown team the victory and the American League pennant. Chesbro's work that season was a wonderful accomplishment.

He pitched 52 games in 1904, winning 38 and losing 14. This entitled him to the nickname of "Iron Man," although he never repeated this great feat. He is still on the New York American League Club roster, but is under suspension by the National Commission because of his failure to report to the club during the past few seasons.

When Chesbro went back to the lumber business in Conway he announced that he was through with baseball for all time. Like many other players, Chesbro has heard the call of the game, and wants to get into harness again. He sees Cy Young and other old-timers still in harness, and he has felt the lonesomeness of the player who has been active for many years and then suddenly drops out of sight.

Chesbro says seriously that he knows he can come back. President Farrell talked with him for some time, and then turned him over to Manager Harry Wolverton, who had a long talk with the famous pitcher. When the office doors opened after the interview it was announced that Chesbro would apply to the National Commission for reinstatement, and will go South on the training trip with the Yankees.

Of course, the chances are against Chesbro ever again being an effective pitcher in the major leagues, but he is not so old that he cannot do good work in a minor league. The chances are that Chesbro may try to land a job as manager or owner of some minor league organization. The veteran is anxious to try to come back, and the Yankees will give him a chance. Chesbro broke into fast company with Pittsburgh, and reached the zenith of his pitching fame with the Yankees in 1904. He is 35 years old.

Roy Hartzell, the Yankees' third baseman, sent in his signed contract yesterday. The former St. Louis player is not likely to hold down the dizzy corner this season, but, being a good hitter and having a fine throwing arm, he may get a chance in the outfield. He batted for .296 last year, and about his only shortcoming was slow base running. As a third baseman Hartzell was remarkably steady and reliable, although not brilliant.

The contract of J. L. Curry was also received yesterday. Curry had a trial on the Hilltop at the end of last season. He comes from the Reading team of the Tri-State League, and is an infielder. Last year he had a batting average of .282 and fielded for .963.

Manager Wolverton announced that he would go South a week or ten days before the players, and have everything in readiness for them when they reach Atlanta. Charley Hemphill, the former Yankee outfielder, who is now manager of the Atlanta Club in the Southern Association, is personally supervising the work of getting Ponce de Leon Park, at Atlanta, in shape for the Yankees. The New York squad of regulars and rookies are due in the Southern city on March 4. Wolverton expects to be there about Feb. 25.

Trinity College Baseball Dates.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 2.—The Trinity College baseball schedule, announced to-day, contains nineteen games, including those of the Southern trip. DECIDE YALE STADIUM PLANS

Yale Corporation Will Pass Upon Report at Its Meeting Feb. 19.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 2.—Definite plans for the new Yale stadium were to-day accepted by the General Committee at the most important meeting yet held. The committee declined at the close of the session to announce details of the stadium, which has been accepted. These will be presented to the Yale Corporation at its next meeting on Feb. 19.

At to-day's meeting it was decided to choose two undergraduate members as additions to the General Committee. Vanderbilt Webb and George Bruce Cortelyou, Jr., of the class of 1913 were selected.

It is understood that not only were the building plans ratified to-day, but that a scheme for raising $500,000 needed to finance the proposition was decided upon.

Wonderful Schoolboy High Jumper Will Try for Record at Barnard Games.

Everything is in readiness for the Barnard School games this afternoon in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory which have attracted the pick of the schoolboy track and field talent of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

Among the best of those who will compete is Wesler Oler, Jr., of Pawling, the most wonderful schoolboy high jumper in the world, who is expected to set up a new record at his favorite event. Glendon Begins Navy Crew Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 2.—Richard Glendon, who has coached the Naval Academy crews with much success for a number of years, arrived at the Naval Academy to-day and took charge of a squad of ninety midshipmen who are candidates for the different crews. Glendon had seven crews of lights at work in the tank during the day. The material for the first crew is excellent, but that for the fourth class crew does not appear as strong as usual. The crews will probably get on the water about the middle of March. Owing to Columbia's races with Princeton and Pennsylvania, it is not certain that it will make the Annapolis trip this year.

To Reorganize Fair Haven I. Y. C.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Feb. 2.—The Fair Haven Ice Yacht Club will be reorganized the latter part of next week, and fifteen new ice yachts will be added to the club. The other ten boats will contain a ten-foot spread and carry about 140 square feet of canvas. At the time of the reorganization officers and Directors will be elected and plans discussed for the erection of a new clubhouse. Capt. Edward Little is now acting as Commodore of the club.

CONKLIN WINS IN CLASS A BILLIARDS

Chicagoan Defeats Joseph Mayer and Poggenburg Beats Dr. Douglas.

Charles F. Conklin of Chicago, the international amateur billiard champion, last night defeated Joseph Mayer of Philadelphia in their game of the National Class A amateur 18.2 balkline tournament at the Hanover Club, Brooklyn, by the score of 400 to 235.

It was ladies' night, and, in addition to the large gallery of male spectators, there was many of the fair sex present.

The Philadelphian won the bank, but retired to his chair with a lone tally. Conklin came up and with the ivories in good position got off to a wildfire start, recording 30 points. In his next time at the table he continued his good work and corraled 22 points.

With a lead of 50 points, the Quaker began to play his game, and before the ninth period was concluded closed up the gap to within 5 points, when the score stood 75 to 70 in favor of Conklin.

The Quaker again experienced a slump, in which he collected only meagre scores, executing difficult shots and falling down on comparatively easy ones. The Chicagoan went over the century mark in the twelfth inning, with a string of 42, which brought his score up to 139.

Mayer did not show a three-figure score until the twenty-fifth inning, when his string recorded 103. His execution was very erratic, falling far behind his standard of work. Nearly all of his play was of the open table style, but in the twenty-seventh session his spell was broken, when he ran 41, in a capital exhibition of nursing and close table play. He appeared to have a good run on the globes here, but missed his forty-second point on a cushion draw.

During the slump of Mayer, Conklin, who is known as the hammer and tongs billiardist, lived up to the reputation and reeled off high runs with great rapidity. At the close of the twenty-fourth inning Conklin's score was 276, while Mayer's tally was only 97, the Chicogan amassing all his high runs by careful nursing and close table shots. The score:

Charles F. Conklin—30 22 0 1 0 8 4 0 15 7 15 42 0 0 65 0 0 0 11 3 28 0 0 30 0 0 3 1 57 0 1 30 2 4 15 0 11. Total—400. High Runs—65 57 42. Average—10 30-37.

In the afternoon game J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Leiderkrantz Club was victorious over Dr. Walter G. Douglas of the Amateur Billiard Club of New York by the score of 400 to 374. Poggenburg established a new high run record for the tourney by corralling a string of 85 in the nineteenth inning. The best former high run was made in Wednesday afternoon's game by Percy Collins, with a run of 77. The scores:

J. F. Poggenberg.—18 15 8 45 7 4 0 0 0 0 21 3 1 2 31 4 30 2 85 10 2 3 0 3 0 6 0 15 8 0 0 0 0 0 14 23 14 2 5. Total—400. High runs—85 45 31. Average—9 4-44.

TERRY CLASS C CHAMPION.

Defeats Sylvester L. Levy for Title by Score of 200 to 137.

C. B. Terry won the Class C 18-2 amateur balkline billiard championship of America last night at the Morningside Academy by defeating Sylvester L. Levy in the final game for the honors by the score of 200 to 137. Incidental to his victory Terry showed the gilt-edged average for the class by making 4 12-47, with high runs of 24, 23, and 18. This average compares favorably with the best of the tourney made by himself of 4 32-42.

Aside from carrying away the first prize Terry accounted for the high run and high and grand average trophies. Directly he had won, a match of a handicap nature was arranged between him and G. F. B. Clark, the Class B title holder, which is to be decided in the Morningside room next Tuesday night. Both players practically learned all their billiards in the scene of their most recent conquests and great interest is already in evidence over the result of the coming match.

Terry went right away in the van with some clever manipulation in his first essay at the table, corralling 23 before he slipped up on a fairly difficult single cushion draw. He proved a bit unsteady in his play during the next dozen innings. While Levy made a rather poor beginning, he soon warmed up to his work and gave a fairly good interpretation of the game.

He was unable to coax the spheres to roll as kindly as he desired and the balls would line up in a most tantalizing manner. Every once in a while Terry would get the balls rolling for double figures, and it was these breaks which enabled him to win in the rather easy fashion that the score denotes. In his last five innings Terry played the best billiards of the match, netting 53 as the result of his efforts. The summary:

C. B. Terry—23 0 1 1 5 0 3 3 0 5 0 0 0 2 1 1 13 2 10 0 1 18 0 8 0 0 7 3 0 1 0 0 11 0 4 0 1 1 0 5 10 2 4 13 0 24 9 9. Total—200.

Averages—Terry, 4 12-47; Levy, 2 43-47. High runs—Terry, 24, 23, 18; Levy, 15, 12, 12. Referee—Mr. Johnson.

The standing of the men who played off the final round follows:

BROWN'S FINE BILLIARDS.

Hamilton Club Player Wins Knickerbocker Tournament from Scratch.

Playing the most remarkable 18.2 balk line of the tournament, Morris D. Brown of the Hamilton Club last night won first prize in the last play-off of the triple tie which existed in the Knickerbocker Academy series in Brooklyn. He tallied 300 to G. Scheidig's 184, the latter being scheduled to play 200. The winner's average was 7 34-38.

The wonderful feature of the match was the fact that in his last nine innings Brown averaged 17, running 153 at this stage of the contest, which was absolutely necessary in view of the fact that his opponent was tied with him by actual count and had a hundred less to go on the string. Therefore, the strength of Brown's game becomes apparent.

He was absolutely in a slump for most of the time up to this turning point, and the uphill billiards he played proved a delightful sight to both his own and his opponent's adherents. There was no phase of balk line that he left untouched, and during this part of the game he executed in almost faultless fashion, playing for the next shot in a manner most daring at times.

Seven double figure runs rewarded his efforts in these last nine innings, in which he gathered the best of the game, by tallies of 41, 30, and 23. Although Scheidig played in a gallant style, he was unable to stand off the specially high-class work of his opponent, who, by the way, has won both of his games in the Class A championship of America tournament. The summary:

Brown—2 1 0 3 11 17 4 0 8 11 1 3 9 15 3 4 6 2 0 21 10 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 12 1 11 30 19 41 11 23 5. Total—300.

Scheidig—0 5 3 0 0 0 28 4 1 0 0 2 3 2 2 3 0 0 13 12 21 1 0 9 10 5 2 9 0 12 11 7 13 2 0 4 0 0. Total—184.

Averages—Brown, 7 34-38; Scheidig, 4 32-38. High runs—Brown, 41, 30, 23; Scheidig, 28, 21, 13.

Townsend Wins at Doyle's.

In the rapid-fire three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at Doyle's Academy last night Harry Townsend won four games straight, his last opponent being Dr. J. Holden, who he defeated by the score of 15 to 13 in 30 innings. In the semi-final games Townsend defeated Floyd Pomer 15 to 11, and Holden defeated Harry Ross 15 to 14. Sixteen cue wielders started in the tournament.

TO PROHIBIT BOOKMAKING.

South Carolina House Passes Bill Which Now Goes to Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 2.—By a large majority the House of Representatives to-day passed the bill prohibiting bookmaking and pool selling at horse races. It is confidently expected that the Senate will also pass the bill and the Governor will sign it. The law will then go into effect at once.

It is said it will have the effect of stopping a racing meet which recently began in Charleston and has attracted horsemen from all parts of the country.

The bill contains a feature by which racing can be prevented by injunction.

GOODMAN'S FORFEIT NOT PAID

Young Erne Receives Check, but Payment Is Stopped.

At the next meeting of the Boxing Commission on Wednesday the board will be asked to render a decision on a phase of boxing that has never been presented to it. Young Erne of Philadelphia, who was matched to box Jack Goodman at the National Sporting Club last Wednesday, claimed the $250 posted by Samuel Kelly for Goodman, owing to the latter calling the bout off. Kelly and Erne's manager each deposited $250 for weight and appearance in the ring. After making the match with Erne, Goodman boxed Young Otto, and during the bout injured his hand. Goodman notified the National Sporting Club management of his injury and canceled the bout. Erne in the meantime had declined two bouts owing to his engagement with Goodman. In view of this, the Philadelphian demanded the forfeit.

Goodman and Young Erne weighed in at the clubhouse at the time appointed, and both men made the required weight. Young Erne's manager made a demand on the forfeit holder for the Goodman forfeit. Kelly objected, but the forfeit holder notified the two managers that he would turn over the money to Young Erne at 8:30 last Wednesday night, which he did.

Young Erne's manager accepted the two checks, and when Kelly's was presented at the bank for payment it was found that it had been stopped by H. A. Stoneham, who drew the check to the order of Kelly. A demand for the money was made on Stoneham, which was refused, and the representative of Young Erne notified both Stoneham and Kelly that the claim would be turned over to the Boxing Commission.

Boston Fight Club Loses Charter.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 2.—The charter of the American Athletic Club of this city, under which Edward E. Keevin of Boston has been conducting his amateur and professional bouts, has been revoked by A. P. Langtry, Secretary of the Commonwealth. Secretary Langtry's action is based upon the court decision against Keevin earlier in the week, when he was convicted and fined $500 for conducting prize fights not in accordance with the law. Keevin appealed and is now out on bail awaiting the calling of his case in the Superior Court. The American Athletic Club was incorporated under the laws of the State in 1903.

Sherman Outpoints Young.

Eddie Sherman and Tiger Young, local featherweights, fought ten hard rounds at the New Polo Athletic Association last night, with the honors generally in favor of Sherman. He was the aggressor from the start and much cleverer than his opponent. In the eighth round Young held Sherman to an even break, but he ran second in each of the other nine chapters. In spite of his defeat Young fought a creditable battle, and no matter how fast the punches came in, he always came back for more. In the six-round semi-final Johnny Harvey outpointed Petro Vito.

Among those he is said to have beaten is Robert McLean, one of the best of the many skaters in and around Chicago.

Twenty-one events have been scheduled for decision at the annual games of the Intersettlement A. A. to-night in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. The entry is the largest in the history of the organization, the senior contests having been handicapped by Herman Obertubbessing, the A. A. U. official.

Dominican Lyceum will hold its fourth annual games at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory Saturday evening, March 2, with the following events, open to all registered athletes, all being handicaps; Seventy-yard dash, 440-yard run, 1,000-yard run, two-mile bicycle race, and 1,200-yard relay, open to all clubs and colleges. CRESCENTS DEFEAT NEW YORKS ON ICE Athletic Club Teams in Rough Battle for Amateur Hockey League Honors.

The Crescents and the New York Athletic Club team, old rivals for hockey honors, battled overtime at the St. Nicholas Rink last night in a game which meant a tie for first place to the winning team. The South Brooklyn boys finally won by a score of 3 to 2, Campbell driving in the deciding goal three minutes and fifty seconds after the overtime period began. As a result the Crescents climbed to even terms with the Wanderers for the first place, and the New Yorkers droped back to a tie with the St. Nicholas Club.

As in the Amateur Hockey League game Tuesday night, when the Wanderers won in overtime, the winners shot in a goal in the extra period just as the whistle blew for offside play. Last night, after two minutes of play, Liffiton connected with the disk in a scrimmage in front of the New York cage, and the Crescents, as well as their followers, had begun to celebrate their victory when they learned that the goal did not count. They went back into the game with renewed vim, and in a little less than two minutes Campbell scored a clean goal, which ended the game. This goal was made after a spectacular dash up the ice by Sheriff, Campbell getting the puck on a rebound after Sheriff's effort had failed.

The game was what might be expected from two such rivals in a fight for the league championship. Gentleness was not brought into the game, and as a result penalties were frequent. The checking was unusually rough, falls came often, and most of the penalties were for tripping. Five times in each period a player was ruled off the ice for roughness, and there were several occasions when the officials appeared to be a bit lenient with the over-anxious players. Berry of the New Yorks was ruled off four times, and spent ten minutes resting on the sidelines.

The Crescents played a smoother passing game than their opponents, but the stubborn defense of the New Yorkers nullified their efforts to a great extent. Woods at goal, for the New Yorkers was one of the strongest performers for his team, and his playing was a big factor in forcing the game into overtime. He was called upon to do much more work than Dr. Mills, the old New York A. C. goal, who was playing against his former teammates for the first time.

Denesha, the little rover of the New York team, easily outshone his mates, carrying the disk time and again through the Crescent team. He did not score either of his team's goals, but did some brilliant work both on attack and defense. For the Crescent, Campbell and Sherriff were the busiest players. The veterans, Dobby and Wall, were in the game from start to finish, and in a less active way they did great service. Their experience shone in their individual clashes with some of their younger opponents. The New Yorkers did not show the expected aggressiveness in checking the heavier Crescents, and many times the Brooklyn players traveled the full length of the ice without meeting any stiff opposition.

Campbell broke the ice for the Crescents after more than ten minutes of play, shooting the puck past Woods from a dense scrimmage just a few feet in front of the New York goal. Early in this period Dr. Mills was ruled off the ice for two minutes for some rough work at the Crescents' cage, and while he was gone Kennedy proved a most acceptable substitute. The New Yorkers kept up a steady bombardment in the vicinity of the Crescents' cage almost the entire time of Mills's suspension, but could not score. Berry tied up the game three minutes after Campbell scored, taking a pretty pass from Denesha, when the latter had skated almost the length of the rink. Liffiton's long shot from the side of the rink put the Crescents ahead again in less than two minutes, and four minutes later Peabody again tied up the game on a pass from Denesha. This goal came seventeen minutes before the first period ended. Neither team scored in the second period, which was nip-and-tuck all the way.

The line-up:

Crescents.	Position.	New York A. C.
Mills	Goal	Woods
Kennedy	Point	White
Wall	Cover point	Goodwin
Sherriff	Rover	Denesha

CALEDONIANS' CURLING PRIZE

Quartet Skipped by T. Archibald Defeats Thistle Team by 12 to 10.

The Caledonians won the Mitchell medal yesterday afternoon at Van Cortlandt Park Lake, defeating the Thistles by a score of 12 to 10. The full seventeen ends were played, with the ultimate victors in the lead for the first half dozen. In the next the Thistles showed to advantage, laying two stones which were not dislodged by either of the Archibalds, who were playing three and four for the Caledonians, thereby giving the Thistles a one-point advantage, which they lost in the next end played.

From then on the ultimate victors were always in the van, although the margin was always close enough to keep the players and spectators on the anxious seat. The winning team defeated another rink composed of Caledonian players in the opening round, and drew a bye in the semi-final, while the Thistles had beaten St. Andrews' Nos. 2 and 1, respectively, in the first and second rounds, the latter victory earning them the right to play for the final honors decided yesterday. The rinks were as follows:

THISTLE.	CALEDONIAN.

George Turnbull,	R. McVie,
C. Mackenzie,	H. Archibald,

TRUCKS IN THE WEST.

H. Thorpe Buys Power Wagons for Use on the Coast.

H. Thorpe of Sacramento, Cal., called at the American Automobile Association headquarters, 547 Fifth Avenue, yesterday, and during a talk with Robert Bruce, manager of the tourning department, Mr. Thorpe said that the large business house which he represented on the Pacific Coast employed many teams and that one of the purposes of his coming to New York was to look over the commercial car exhibits recently shown at the two shows. He stated that he had purchased a number of electric and gasoline cars for his house, that he also expected to buy others, and that within two years his company would have no teams left.

Mr. Thorpe during his stay in the metropolitan district visited Thomas Edison at his home in West Orange, and the latter said that he would be a visitor at the Pacific-Panama Exposition in 1915. Mr. Thorpe promised Mr. Edison to give him a ride around the 1,200-mile Pasear automobile route, which starts from San Francisco, takes in Los Angeles, Lake Tohoe, Yosemite Valley, Sacramento, and finishes at San Francisco. Mr. Edison said he would make the trip, being the guest of Mr. Thorpe while at the exposition.

SWIMMERS IN SEMI-FINALS.

Goodwin, Nerich, Ritter, and Riley Qualify for A. A. U. 500-Yard Race.

The semi-final heats in the 500-yard Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union championship swim were decided in the pool of the New York Athletic Club last night.

The first heat was the closest of the two, only one second separating the first two swimmers. It was won by Bud Goodwin of the New York A. C. in 6:38 1-5. Nicholas Nerich, New York A. C., finished second in 6:39 1-5, and Richard Frizell, City Athletic Club, was third, in 3:50 3-5.

In the second heat, R. M. Ritter, City Athletic Club, was the winner in 6:37 3-5. J. H. Riley, New York A. C., was second in 6:43 2-5, and J. P. Mantell, West Side Branch, Young Men's Christian Association, was third in 7:05 3-5.

Goodwin, Nerich, Ritter, and Riley will compete in the final this evening in the New York A. C. pool.

Junior Swim Relay Race.

Youngsters of the Commerce Evening Recreation Centre held a series of sports last night in the gymnasium, the principal event of which was the five-mile relay, in which the seniors and juniors figured. Each team was made up of a dozen lads, who relieved each other every two laps. The juniors finally won a hard-run race by two laps in the fine time of 22:00 3-5. The summary:

Junior Standing Broad Jump.—Won by O. Adamson, with 9 feet ½ inch; J. Ruth, second, with 7 feet 6 inches; H. Werner, third, with 7 feet 2 inches.

Senior Standing Broad Jump.—Won by A. Fine, with 9 feet 6 inches; O. Adamson, second, with 9 feet 2 inches; J. Grabel, third, with 9 feet.

Junior Running Broad Jump.—Won by A. Haas, with 18 feet 6 inches; S. Rudel and O. Adamson tied for second at 17 feet.

Five-Mile Relay—Won by juniors composed of S. Schrang, C. Marella, M. Callahan, F. Robine, W. Robine, G. Ginglish, N. Hamel, F. Hoblitz, O. Adamson, A. Arendt, and H. Werner. Time—22:00 3-5.

Ice Yachts May Carry "Live Ballast."

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Feb. 3.—The dispute between the North and South Shrewsbury Ice Yacht Clubs regarding the conditions of the championship races, which have been arranged for to-morrow, has been settled. The dispute arose when the South Shrewsbury Club asked the privilege of carrying "live ballast" on their yachts during the races. This club usually carried a passenger on the runner plank of a yacht during a race in order to balance the craft, while the North Shrewsbury never carried "live ballast." Hereafter the clubs will allow two men to a boat and not confine their location to the cockpit. It was also agreed that both clubs would be allowed the privilege of using grating, which will enable the yachts to be jumped over cracks in the ice or any obstacles while in the championship races.

New Palm Beach Golf Record.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 2.—Miss Lillian B. Hyde, the Metropolitan women's champion golfer, broke the woman's record for the Palm Beach course this afternoon when she got a 79 for the eighteen holes. The best former record of 82 was held by Miss Hyde. James R. Hyde of the South Shore Field Club, who is Miss Hyde's brother, equaled the professional record of 68 in a round to-day. Mr. Hyde is the Florida champion. The only other amateur who has had a 68 here is Walter Fairbanks, the Denver golfer. Hyde took three puts on the seventeenth, which he got in 6. Had he made this hole in bogey, he would have broken the professional record.

Franklin

Little Six

30 HORSE POWER

This latest Franklin model combines for the first time these two popular features in automobile construction, six cylinders in a small car.

The Franklin is the car of small tire expense. The tires last until they are worn out. There is a great difference between wearing out a tire and having it blow out while it is still a good tire.

WANTS AERO CUP RACE.

Cortlandt F. Bishop Leaves for Chicago to Inspect Aerodrome.

Cortlandt Field Bishop of the Aero Club of America and Vice President of the International Aeronautic Federation left for Chicago yesterday to inspect the aerodrome of the Chicago Aero Club, where it is proposed to hold the contest for the international aviation championship. As Charles Weymann won the trophy last year at the Isle of Sheppey, England, the contest must be held in this country next.

Chicago has applied for the big aviation meet, and it is intended to construct the finest areodrome in the United States. There were many objections to the Belmont Park course in 1910, and also to the British course last year. Mr. Bishop will have charge of this event, no matter where it is held, and be responsible to the International Federation for its management. He will report to the Aero Club of America on his return.

JUDGE GROSSCUP HITS GOVERNMENT POLICY

Law for Corporations Good 200 Years Ago, He Says, but Not Good To-day.

SPEAKS TO TRAFFIC CLUB

Thinks Law Is Behind the Times and Sherman Act Should Be Amended—Perkins Says It Strangles Business.

The Traffic Club of New York held its sixth annual dinner last night and listened to speeches by Judge Peter S. Grosscup of Chicago and George W. Perkins of this city on the subject of Government and business. The topics uppermost were the Federal control of industrial corporations, which was advocated by both speakers, and the right of men and corporations to combine for just purposes. Mr. Perkins outlined his plan for Federal control, while Judge Grosscup assailed the Government's dissolution of corporations as the application of a law that was right two hundred years ago, but entirely wrong to-day.

The dinner was not, however, an entirely serious affair. In the midst of it E. G. Warfield, toastmaster, arose, and with a sly smile announced that President Taft had unexpectedly dropped in at the dinner and would make a speech. Whereupon the door was thrown open and the gold and blue of a pseudo-Major Butt appeared, and behind him a portly form that greatly resembled the President. The supposed President at once began a speech telling how much he desired to be nominated, and why he should be. Suddenly there was a shout from the balcony at the rear of the room, and the diners turned to find a stout figure in blazing eyeglasses and with flashing white teeth. He started in to reply to the other speaker and present his own fitness for the nomination. Both figures retired with gradually diminishing parting shots.

The dinner brought together a representative gathering of railroad, steamship men, and shippers. At the speaker's table the following men were seated:

E. G. Warfield, Judge Grosscup, George W. Perkins, George C. Conn, W. J. Norvell, E. P. Eyman, R. Ten Broeck, R. H. Wallace, F. E. Herriman, W. H. Nichols, Jr., E. T. Jeffry, J. M. Hannaford, L. J. Spence, R. S. Lovett, B. D. Caldwell, D. W. Cooke, Calvin Austin, E. B. Thomas, George W. Dixon, J. A. Middleton, L. A. Osborne, C. F. Moore, N. S. Meldrum, F. A. Bedford, George A. Cullen, and E. F. Burnett.

Judge Grosscup took up the subject of corporations and the government where Mr. Perkins had left it, and suggested some of his own plans for control. He favored first Federal incorporation, and second, he thought that association of manufacturers and merchants that were not now corporations should be not only allowed to meet and agree, but that they ought to be allowed to incorporate.

"When more than two centuries ago," he said, "our ancestors ripened into a capacity for full personal freedom competition was the law of the land. When more than a century ago they ripened into a capacity for self-government it was the law of the land. In 1896, when we became a commercial world power, the law of the land had to be brought up even with the march of industry, with the adaptation of the world's monetary standard. We are again in the midst of a period where the law is behind in both human and economic aspects, the moving column of the Nation's life."

Judge Grosscup, while believing that the Sherman act should be amended, said that it ought not to be abandoned, for it was a powerful weapon against corporations whose practices are unfair. He called particular attention to the facts brought out in the proceedings against the Harvester Trust in Chicago. It was shown, he said, that the trusts sold machinery cheaper to the farmers; that it was better machinery and that repairs, a very important consideration, were much easier and cheaper than formerly, but that in spite of this the courts held that it was objectionable for the manufacturers of harvesting machinery to get together and act in concert.

"That, said Judge Grosscup," was good law 200 years ago, it was good one hundred years before Washington; then it was generally assumed that men got together for the sole reason that they intended to form a monopoly and raise prices. They do not get together for these purposes now."

Mr. Perkins made a detiled attack on the present administration's treatments of the corporations.

"Dissolution,' he said, "is not solution, and we had better try regulation before we resort to strangulation. The wrecking crew has been working overtime. Is it not time to put the construction gang on the job?

"If anybody wants to know what is the matter with business," he said, "or why we are not as prosperous as we ought to be, let him simply contemplate what the Government has been doing, and he will no longer be filled with wonderment, but he will stand amazed that such colossal blundering could possibly take place in an enlightened country."

ANOTHER STEEL TRUST CRITIC

J. A. Fitch Joins Brandeis in Condemning Its Working Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—John A. Fitch of Pittsburgh, who has made investigations into conditions surrounding steel workers at Pittsburgh and Birmingham, was a witness to-day before the Stanley Investigating Committee.

Mr. Fitch's testimony was similar to that given by Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, who criticised the United States Steel Corporation's attitude toward labor and conditions under which men work in its mills.

Mr. Fitch discussed the profit sharing plan of the Steel Corporation, its pension policy, and its relief for injured workmen to the disadvantage of the company. He dwelt on methods alleged to be employed by the company to discourage labor unionism, and said they were inimical to the best interests of the laborer.

"The Steel Corporation wields such an enormous power that it is a menace to the country," said Mr. Fitch. "Conditions of work in the steel mills are demoralizing. Thinking, red-blooded workingmen do not care as much about welfare work as they do their rights. They are not as anxious for sanitation as they are for justice."

WEST AFRICA'S BIG TRADE.

Its Annual Value $60,000,000—Primitive Methods of Distribution.

West Africa's annual trade at the present time has a value of $60,000,000, a total which has been reached at a steady rate of progression by only the most primitive methods of distribution according to The Exporter's Review. Roughly speaking, in 1908, $30,000,000 worth of manufactured goods were marketed by canoe and headload, and $30,000,000 worth of produce was collected and sent through the bush and down creek and lagoon by similar crude means.

A portion of this was helped on its journey to and from the cost by the short completed section, 200 miles in length, of the railway system which is to open up Nigeria, but the overwhelming balance was carried from steamer to inland forest, and from forest to steamer, by human thews and sinews, unaided by steam or any other ally of modern commerce.

New Brooklyn Borough Gas Bonds.

The Brooklyn Borough Gas Company received permission yesterday from the Public Service Commission to issue $105,000 in bonds, to be payable on June 1, 1945, with interest at 5 per cent. They are to be secured by a mortgage on all the property of the company, and their proceeds will be used to acquire property, extend and complete improvements, and refund obligations. All the new bonds must be issued before Dec. 31.

Aetna Surplus Increased.

The annual statement of the Aetna Insurance Company of Hartford shows assets of $22,017,380, including the cash capital of $5,000,000 and a net surplus of $7,834,194. The statement shows an increase of $993,844 in assets and of $465,178 in surplus. During the ninety-three years that the company has been in business it has paid in losses $128,000,000.

COTTON RISE CAUSES FAILURE

C. D. Finley Kills Himself as Firm Becomes Insolvent.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 2.—Cotton advanced in price again this morning. Both bulls and bears bought heavily in the early trading, and in half an hour's time had forced the price up 22, to 26 points, or a quarter-cent a pound. This is $2 a bale above Wednesday's closing. The advance was caused by a higher Liverpool market than expected, coupled with a good demand for spots there, and a continued good inquiry at Southern points.

The rise caught many stop-loss orders on the short side. Much fresh buying by bulls was also apparent. Among the heaviest buyers, it is said, were Memphis shorts, who accepted heavy losses. With roads in good condition, better weather means a great increase in the marketing value of the cotton still held on farms and at ginneries.

Immediately after the announcement on the floor of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange at noon to-day that Charles D. Finley, member of the cotton brokerage firm of Finley & Simpson, had committed suicide, news of the failure of the firm was given out.

This is the second failure in two days among the membership of the local Exchange, both of which are generally attributed to the rise in the prices of futures.

The firm of Finley & Simpson has been in business only a few months, and is not believed to have been heavily involved. The failure had no effect on prices. Mr. Finley, who was one of the youngest brokers in New Orleans, shot himself in the head at the Louisiana Club, only a short distance from the Cotton Exchange. He evidently had gone there from the Exchange to end his life.

ORCHARD COMPANIES FAIL.

Columbia River Concern Had Sold Bonds of Face Value of $4,250,000.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 2.—Harry E. Wilson, the attorney who was appointed receiver of the Washington Orchard Irrigation and Fruit Company yesterday, was appointed receiver to-day of the Columbia River Orchard Company, the parent of the first-named company.

The Columbia River Orchard Company is alleged to have sold bonds of the face value of $4,250,000 to investors all over the United States. The Washington Orchard Irrigation and Fruit Company guaranteed the bonds and the Oregon-Washington Trust Company of Portland, Ore., was trustee for the bondholders.

When Receiver Wilson entered upon his duties he forced his way into the offices supposed to be occupied by the fruit companies, and found two of the five rooms vacant. There were desks in the other three, and these, on being opened, were found to contain only stationery.

While the receiver was present a constable arrived with attachment papers and carried away the safe, which had been bought on credit. The receiver also was confronted by a bill for unpaid rent, and later the furniture company which had equipped the offices on credit demanded a settlement.

All this time bondholders were demanding payment on the bonds. The receiver told them he was trying to discover whether the companies had any assets.

GERMAN FARMERS' ECONOMY.

$12,000,000 a Year Saved by Drying Beet and Potato Leaves.

How the thrifty German farmer dries his potatoes and then stores them for future use, with no fear of rotting, thus saving about $25,000,000 a year, was described in THE TIMES the other day. A further step in economy is thus described in the current issue of The Electrical Review:

"The German farmers are now installing drying systems for beet and potato leaves, which contain a great amount of nutriment for cattle. By these installations it is calculated that a saving of $12,000,000 a year can be effected, while in previous years Germany was forced to buy $8,000,000 worth of cattle food from other countries."

The dried leaves are wetted again just before being fed to the cattle.

$2,000,000 GOLD FOR PARIS.

Shipment Surprises Wall Street, as Exchange Is Below Point of Profit.

There was deposited in the Sub-Treasury yesterday, presumably by Lazard Freres, $2,000,000 to pay for gold bars taken for export to Paris. This shipment came as a surprise to Wall Street, inasmuch as the foreign exchange market is still below the point at which gold can be exported profitably.

Indications have been tending toward a gold movement for several days, but the market is still about one-half cent below the shipping point. It was said by other international bankers that this particular movement was the result of a special arrangement on the part of Paris banks which were anxious for the gold. Lazard Freres would not discuss the shipment.

In September, 1910, $3,500,000 in gold was sent to Paris, making the first shipment since June, 1909. It was then said that the shipment resulted from peculiar conditions in the Paris market and would probably not be followed by other shipments. Foreign exchange men said yesterday that while the exchange market was not strong enough to justify a gold export movement at this time, indications pointed to a further advance in the near future which would result in more exports.

COAL STOCKS NOT INCREASED

Large Tonnages as Readily Absorbed as in the Cold Snap.

"Contrary to expectations the return of mild weather does not appear to be developing any surplus coal," says Coal Age in this week's issue.

"The large tonnages which accumulated on side tracks during the cold snap have been moved in, and, together with the present heavy production, are being readily absorbed, with hardly any perceptible slackening in the demand. This would seem to indicate that the supplies were more seriously depleted than was thought, and it is generally conceded that the trade now is more active than at the same period in any previous year.

"The coastwise markets in the East continue strong and active especially in anthracite, the production of which, it is thought, is not equal to the consumption. No spot anthracite is to be had, and the market will probably continue tight up to April 1. Bituminous is somewhat slower, but in good demand.

"In the Pittsburgh district the mines are working well up to capacity and prices continue hard and steady, with even a slight increase in slack; railroad deliveries are still slow. The Ohio field reports January one of the best months in the history of its coal industry. Some steam plants have been compelled to close down through lack of fuel, and, while transportation is still crippled to a certain extent, the mines are working well and heavy tonnages are being moved.

"The market in the Middle West is softer, but prices are ruling fairly strong."

WALL ST. INTERESTS JUDGE.

At Scheftels Trial He Seeks Information on "Bears" and the Like.

George Graham Rice was so sick yesterday morning that it was impossible to bring him from the Tombs to the Federal Building, where he is on trial with other members of the firm of B. H. Scheftels & Co. for using the mails to defraud. It was not until the afternoon session that he could appear, and he was then suffering so much from nervous dyspepsia that his examination of Col. William Farish on the value of the Ely Central mine, had to be postponed until Monday.

John Borg, a curb broker, was placed on the stand in an endeavor to prove that the Scheftels method of carrying on business was the same as that of other brokerage houses. Judge Ray, who comes from up the State, was much interested in what he learned of Wall Street methods.

Attorney Myers asked the witness what a brokerage house did for its house stocks.

"It protects the stock from 'bear' interests," he replied.

"Bear interests?" demanded the Court, and this led to a dissertation on Wall Street fauna.

"But where is the Curb Market?" asked the Judge.

Some one informed him it was in Broad Street, roped in.

"Roped in?" exclaimed Judge Ray. "I don't understand. Who is roped in?"

When the Court was satisfied, the case was adjourned to Monday.

PUBLISHERS APPLAUD WILSON ON TARIFF

Americans' Duty to Look Ahead, Says Governor at Philadelphia Dinner.

NATION SHOULD USE CANAL

Col. Harvey Is One of the Guests, but Says Little to Executive Whom He Once Boomed for Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—"The leaders may be likened to those who stand at the stern of a vessel and watch the water bubble behind," declared Gov. Wilson in his speech before the Periodical Publishers' Association of America at the Bellevue-Stratford to-night. "We Americans should be at the masthead, looking ahead and not behind."

His exposition of his ideas of the tariff and its need of revision brought cheers from his 625 hearers. After pointing out the weaknesses of the United States on the commercial seas, he said that Germany and England were but waiting to reap the benefits of the opening of the Panama Canal.

"We are not building the canal for ourselves, we are building it for England and Germany," he said. "Heretofore the great trend of commerce has been from east to west and from west to east, but the time is coming when the tide will turn to from north to south. The flag of little Greece is seen oftener on the commercial seas than is that of the United States."

Speaking of political conditions, he said:

"I can well remember the time when a vote for either party made not the difference between tweedle dum and tweedle dee. The time has now come when the only way out is that of protest.

"My idea of liberty is not so much that of personal freedom, but may be likened to the perfect working and harmony of parts of a well-oiled locomotive. No amount of lubricants will effect the desired result—speed—if the parts are not kept to the top notch of efficiency. Just so with the citizen machine. Personal is co-operation, well-oiled harmony between all men working together for the common good.

"Such a condition could not and has not existed for some years. The personal liberty may have been present, but not the co-operation. Co-operation and a perfect understanding has been stifled by the dominant factors in both great parties, and the common good has suffered.

"As with a Governor, the only true representative of the people, because of the fact that he is the only officer of the State Government who is voted for by all the people, so with the President, he must bend to the will of all, and must stand as the final resort of all. As with the Governor, who must at times disregard even the will of the legislators, who do not always represent the people, so with the President."

The speakers included also Rudolph Blankenburg, Mayor of Philadelphia; Robert M. La Follette, Senator from Wisconsin, and William J. Burns.

Senator La Follette in his address said that the capitalization of combinations had increased between 1898 and 1908 from $3,784,000,000 to $31,672,000,000. He gave as a cure for trust evils the amendment of the Sherman law by the enactment of specific prohibitions against well-known practices that constitute unreasonable restraint of trade.

He also said there was need of a commission to "stand between the people and the courts in order to investigate the facts and prohibit all unreasonable restraints not specifically described in the law."

Col. George Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly, was also present. He occupied a place at one of the small tables, separated by some distance from the long one at which Gov. Wilson was seated, and until a late hour he had no communication with the latter. To all inquiries he replied that he did not care to discuss the controversy.

Before the speaking the surprise of the evening occurred: The lights were extinguished and there appeared in a corner a figure in the similitude of Benjamin Franklin, the first great printer and publisher in Philadelphia. This figure, in real life, was W. J. Metcalfe, the dramatic critic of Life.

A straw vote of 93 members of the association, who came from New York to attend the banquet, gave a decided majority for Republican candidates and a lead of 2 votes for Roosevelt over Taft. Wilson led the Democratic column with 13 votes more than Harmon. The vote stood:

William H. Taft, 24; Theodore Roosevelt, 26; Robert M. La Follette, 7; Albert B. Cummins, 2; Woodrow Wilson, 19; Judson Harmon, 6; William J. Bryan, 2; William Allen White, 1; Eugene V. Debs, 2.

The publishers were asked to sign their ballots, but only a few did so. Joseph C. Lincoln marked a firm cross opposite the name of Theodore Roosevelt and then wrote his name on the bottom of the ballot. Lincoln Steffens marked his ballot opposite the name of Senator La Follette, as did Edwin Markham.

OBJECT TO TARIFF CUTS.

Protestants to be Heard by the Senate Finance Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Public hearings on the Steel bill will be begun by the Senate Finance Committee next Tuesday at 10 o'clock and continued until all those opposed to the measure can be heard. This was decided by the Finance Committee to-day and the opinion expressed by Senator Penrose is that the bill should be disposed of by the committee within at least three weeks.

Senator Penrose said that the insurgents did not apparently favor the Democratic bill and with this faction divided it is likely that there will be a bill framed by the insurgents. It is the belief here that the Republicans on the Finance Committee will favor an adverse report, and inasmuch as it is the intention to end the hearing in three weeks very little in the way of constructing a Republican steel schedule can be done.

Protests against the bill come chiefly from the lead and zinc mines of Colorado and Kansas, manufacturers of machine tools and steel pens, and manufacturers of printing presses, which products have been put on the free list.

The Democratic Ways and Means Committee has decided to report out the bill revising the sugar schedule. This will be done probably next week, to be followed by the chemical schedule. The differential in favor of refined sugar will be abolished, and a flat rate of 1 cent will be levied upon the sugar content of all grades. Under the Dutch standard the bulk of sugar coming into this country pays a rate of about 1.05 cents a pound.

The cut will mean a loss in revenue of about $20,000,000, but it is proposed by the Democrats to equalize this in revising the rubber schedule. The tax on manufactured rubber will be reduced from 35 to 15 per cent., and a 5 per cent. tax will be imposed on raw rubber, which now comes in free.

John Lahey, Starting with $100, Retired with a Fortune.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Feb. 2.—John Lahey, who came to New York from Ireland, 45 years ago, penniless and without friends, left an estate of $257,925, according to the report filed to-day in the Nassau County Surrogates' office here by Transfer Tax Appraiser Cornell. Lahey died on Feb. 8, of last year, in his home at New Hyde Park.

Lahey married twice and had 21 children, nine of whom are living to share his estate. Part of it consists of 28 acres of land in New Hyde Park, adjoining "Deepdale," W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.'s place.

Lahey made his fortune in real estate speculation. With the first $100 he could save out of wages of $1 a day, he bought a lot in Flatlands, the outskirts of the Flatbush section of Brooklyn. This was the beginning of a series of speculations, each one of which returned Lahey a profit until, for the last few years of his life, he had lived in retirement and comfort in New Hyde Park.

MUTUAL PLAN OF PACKERS.

Government Proves Big Four Posted Each Other on Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 2.—The first document introduced and proved within the period covered by the indictment, and one which registers a point for the Government in the packers' trial, was admitted in evidence to-day.

A telegram dated July 16, 1910, was identified as containing margins for the Armour, Swift, and Morris companies at their Boston markets and sent to the National Packing Company offices at Chicago.

The telegram, which was identified by Joseph J. Riesch, former head of the Beef Shipping Department for the Eastern territory of the National Company, is as follows:

> Boston, July 16, 1910.
> Patterson-Munnicke-Tilden, 11.52 minus 20; 11.27 minus 30, 11.11 minus 40; 10.77 minus 13.
> PERKINS.

Mr. Patterson is an official of the National Company, and Munnicke was his assistant. Edward Tilden is President of the National Packing Company. Perkins was the district Inspector.

Riesch declared the first line of the telegram gave the closing prices and the margins of Armour & Co., the second for the National, and the third and fourth for Morris & Co. and Swift & Co.

This evidence was introduced in support of the Government's contention that the packing concerns exchanged information as to margins and closing prices to aid them in the alleged conspiracy to restrain shipments, prices, and margins.

The morning session was taken up with the testimony of John C. Wheeler, Superintendent of the branch houses of the Hammond Packing Company. He displayed a strong memory, reeling off the names of 110 cities in alphabetical order where branch houses are maintained, without referring to any memorandum.

Wheeler was followed by Riesch, who qualified most of his testimony. He admitted that threats were made in order to obtain better prices from branch house managers and consignees. When prices were not satisfactory, he said, he had threatened to curtail shipments, then he qualified his reply by saying he had curtailed the shipment because of a light supply of calves.

AWARDED HELL GATE WORK.

Transportation of Bridge Material a Big Problem for Carnegie Co.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Feb. 2.—The Carnegie Steel Company has been awarded the contract for rolling the steel plates and shapes for the mammoth approaches to the Hell Gate railroad bridge, being built for the Pennsylvania and New Haven Railroads jointly by the McClintic-Marshall Construction Company. The contract calls for more than 40,000 tons of steel, one of the largest contracts placed here in a single order in many months, and follows the first contract for 36,000 tons for the main span of the bridge.

The mills of the Carnegie Company at Homestead will roll the material, and it is believed now that the entire requirement of shapes and plates for the structure will be rolled in Pittsburgh, as the American Bridge Company has the earlier contract, and will manufacture much of the material at Ambridge.

Agents of the big steel company interested and the Pennsylvania Railroad have been laboring several months over the problem of transporting the larger pieces of material being constructed for the bridge. Many of these are more massive than any single piece ever produced in the Pittsburgh district. It is declared that specially designed rolling stock will be required, and possibly costly track changes.

MONEY TRUST COMPROMISE.

House Democrats to Consider Inquiry Plan at a Caucus.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The proposed investigation of the so-called Money Trust is still a cause of strife among the Democrats in the House. There was talk today of a compromise on the resolution to be put through the caucus that is to be held next Wednesday, but it is apparent that whatever is agreed upon will not avail to soften the feeling. The proponents of the investigation are the stanch Bryan men of the House, while Mr. Underwood, the majority leader, is heading the opposition. Mr. Underwood is assailed daily as the tool of the Money Trust, and Speaker Clark is accused of dallying with both sides in the effort to avoid allying himself openly with either.

The suggestion of a compromise that was going the rounds to-day, was that the investigation should be made by a special committee, as proposed in the Henry resolution, but that in appointing the committee the Speaker should name two members each from the regular Committee on Banking and Currency, on Judiciary, and on Inter-State Commerce, with one from the House. A variation of this proposal was that the Speaker should name one member from each of the committees on Banking and Currency, Judiciary, Inter-State Commerce, and Privileges and Elections, with three from the House.

Judge Adamson of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Inter-State Commerce, has been endeavoring to organize his committee against the proposed investigation. Yesterday he sent to each member of the committee the following letter:

> My Dear Colleague: The bill inclosed and a good many others before our committee are within our jurisdiction, which is about to be invaded by Mr. Henry's omnibus resolution of inquiry. I would like to have your authority and co-operation to oppose Mr. Henry's resolution in the caucus in so far as it conflicts with our jurisdiction. Yours very truly. W. C. ADAMSON.

Representative W. R. Smith of Texas, a member of the committee, admits that he received such a letter, but says that of the inclosed bills one related to the regulation of express charges and one to physical valuation of railroads. Mr. Smith says he advised Mr. Adamson that he favored the Henry resolution.

ASK MORE EXPRESS PROFITS.

Railroads' Demand Admitted—Partnership? Asks Commissioner Lane.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—What virtually amounts to a partnership between the railroads and the express companies was suggested to-day by Commissioner Lane at the investigation by the Inter-State Commerce Commission into express rates and regulations. To develop this relationship would appear to be the crux of the present inquiry.

George C. Taylor, Vice President of the American Express Company, explained the mechanical operations of the company.

"Why is it not possible," inquired Commissioner Lane, "if you weigh every piece of express matter, to pay the railroad companies upon the basis of actual weight transported? As a fact, is it not because the railroads and the express companies are in practical partnership?"

Mr. Taylor referred the inquiry to men older in the service than he. Mr. Taylor explained that the railroads were demanding continually a greater division of the express rate for their share.

"What is the theory on which they demand higher charges from you?" inquired Commissioner Lane.

"We make our divisions with the railroads on a basis of service rendered and on facilities which we require. I think the roads are honest in their demands."

Carpet and Rug Association.

There is a movement now well under way to establish an organization, chiefly fraternal in nature, among the men in the floor-covering trades, says The Dry Goods Economist. Meetings have already been held and a temporary committee has been formed to complete the organization of what is tentatively known as the Carpet and Rug Association of America.

The membership is to include buyers and their assistants representing the retail end of the business, and manufacturers, selling agents, and salesmen representing the producing end.

Fewer Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 312 business failures in the United States during the week, against 436 for the previous week and 290, 232, 286, and 272 for the corresponding weeks of 1911 to 1908. The Middle States had 102, New England 29, Southern 72, Western 65, Northwestern 20, and Far Western 24. Canada had 31, against 37 for the preceding week. About 84 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 11 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

HAWLEY SUCCESSORS IN RAILWAY WORLD

Several of Them, as He Was the Single Link Connecting Lines That Didn't Interlock.

ERB THE NEAREST TO HIM

Merger of C. & O., Hocking, Ann Arbor, and Pere Marquette Cast in Doubt by Hawley's Death.

The question as to who would succeed the late Edwin Hawley as a chief factor in the railroad world was discussed in the financial district yesterday, and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that no one man would take his place. Some of those who have regarded Mr. Hawley's rise as analogous to that of the late E. H. Harriman commented on the fact that Mr. Harriman has had no successor, but a number of successors in the different railroads in which he was the dominant personality.

In Mr. Hawley's case, it was pointed out, there are additional reasons why his place will be filled by several men. In the roads known as Hawley roads he was associated with other interests with which he worked in harmony. In several cases the interests in one road and those in another were not identical. Mr. Hawley was the only connecting link between the roads. While his interest in each case remains after his death, there will naturally be in each road the election of some person as officer or Director who will be agreeable to the Hawley interests, but there will be different persons in several of the roads representing interests in association with the Hawley interest.

There is one man, however, who was associated with Mr. Hawley in the control of several of the so-called Hawley roads, and who is likely to become the connecting link between these roads. He is Newman Erb. Mr. Erb, however, was not associated with Mr. Hawley in all the Hawley roads.

Mr. Erb is one of the largest stockholders in the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, in which Speyer & Co. and B. F. Yoakum were also associated with Mr. Hawley. In the Minneapolis & St. Louis and the Iowa Central, which is now consolidated with it, Mr. Erb and Mr. Hawley alone were associated. Erb, without Hawley, controls the Ann Arbor, which, however, has a traffic arrangement with the Chesapeake & Ohio. In the Chesapeake & Ohio Mr. Erb is not a controlling factor, but Mr. Hawley and National City Bank interests controlled it. The Chesapeake & Ohio also controls the Hocking Valley, another road in which Mr. Erb does not figure.

Another matter in which Messrs. Hawley and Erb were associated was the proposed purchase of the Pere Marquette from J. P. Morgan & Co. Two other so-called Hawley roads are the Toledo, St. Louis & Western and the Chicago & Alton, which it controls. One of those who has been associated with Mr. Hawley said yesterday that the actual interest of Mr. Hawley in these roads was very small, and was subordinate to the interests of Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard and others, who were numbered among Hawley's backers.

What will become of the merger projects on which Mr. Hawley was understood to be working was also a subject of discussion yesterday, but it was said to be too early to form any definite idea as to the prospects of their being carried out. One of the mergers that had been considered involved the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Hocking Valley, the Ann Arbor, and the Pere Marquette. The other was the proposed Canada-to-Gulf system, which would combine the Minneapolis & St. Louis, (including the Iowa Central:) the M., K. & T., and the lines to be built to the Canadian border by the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

It was reported yesterday that at a special meeting of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Directors on Monday Mr. Erb would succeed Mr. Hawley as Chairman, but as Mr. Erb is President of the road, it may be decided to combine the duties of the two positions, and abolish the Chairmanship of the board as a separate office. The question of Mr. Hawley's successor as a member of the board will be taken up later.

The mileage, capitalization, and dividends paid in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, by railroads in the Hawley group were as follows:

	Mileage.	Capital.	Dividends.
Ches. & Ohio	2,229	$228,961,270	$3,139,625
Mo., K. & T.	3,877	202,969,600	521,020
Minn. & St. L.	1,586	64,403,865	......
Chicago & Alton	1,025	115,707,000	408,466
Clov. Leaf	451	48,074,600	398,104
Hocking Valley	350	83,036,000	440,000
Kanawha & Mich.	176	14,570,400	360,000
Total	9,194	$707,722,735	$5,267,255

The mileage of the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville is included with that of the Chesapeake & Ohio, which has a trackage agreement with it as a means of entering Chicago. That of the Texas Central is included in the M., K. & T.

Since the close of the fiscal year the Alton and the Clover Leaf have discontinued dividend payments, the Hocking Valley has increased from 4 to 6 per cent., while the Chesapeake & Ohio has maintained its 5 per cent. rate, and the M., K. & T. its 4 per cent. on the preferred stock.

The Executive Committee of the Chesapeake & Ohio adopted a resolution yesterday in memory of Mr. Hawley, saying:

> His wide experience prompted him to maintain his own convictions. Notwithstanding the decisiveness of his character, he was unusually considerate of the views of others, standing, however, at all times for justice and fairness.
>
> His sympathy for all subordinates in the service was especially characteristic, and in times of agitation and discontent he would insist upon equitable treatment commensurate with adequate control of the property of its owners.
>
> He looked far into the future, and the developments which he advocated, and which mark the progress of the company in the last two years, were cheerfully co-operated in by every officer, and are speaking evidence of his genius.
>
> His frequent visits to the railway and the familiarity thus secured with its details augmented the power of his personality in the influence he exerted for the benefit of the owners of the company's securities.

One of Mr. Hawley's associates said yesterday that the amount of his estate would be about $30,000,000.

CALL STEEL TRUST ORE RATES EXCESSIVE

Independents Say Other Railroads Are Obliged to Accept Corporation Tariffs.

Haul to Pittsburg from Upper Lakes Is $1.56 a Ton—They Say 80 Cents Would Be Enough.

The United States Steel Corporation's control of railroads over which iron ore is carried from the Minnesota ore fields to the upper lake ports and from the lower lake ports to the Pittsburgh district puts a handicap of about $2 a ton on all the steel produced by the independent steel makers, according to figures which have been prepared by some of the steel interests in the fight for lower freight rates.

Back of this assertion lies the argument, which is vigorously contested by the railroads and the Steel Corporation, that the corporation's ownership of railroads has kept the rates on iron ore at an abnormally high level. It was contended that even when good business reasons justify a reduction no railroad competing with those owned by the Steel Corporation would lower its rates for fear of offending the corporation which originates and controls more traffic than any other enterprise in the country. This was the view expressed yesterday by leading independent steel interests.

Upon this assumption figures were given yesterday to show that the claim that the independent steel makers have been handicapped to the extent of $2 a ton is an under rather than an overestimate. Lately the position of the independents has been improved by the reduction of 20 cents a ton on the freight rate on ore to the upper lake ports. The former rate of 80 cents has been cut to 60 cents. This reduction was made by the Steel Corporation's railroads and was followed by the other railroads.

On the basis of the old rate of 80 cents it is contended the Steel Corporation's railroads made a profit of 300 per cent. on the cost of handling the traffic which the independents estimate at about 20 cents a ton. They say 40 cents a ton would be a maximum reasonable rate, and the additional 40 cents of the old rate is regarded by them as an excess charge which benefits the Steel Corporation to the disadvantage of the independents.

Similarly, these interests contend that the rates in effect from the lower lake ports to the Pittsburgh district are excessive. Instead of a charge of 96 cents a ton, some of the independents say that a 40-cent rate would be more equitable in view of the cost of carriage and the density of the traffic.

Thus the excess charge is estimated at 96 cents a ton, 40 cents excess to the upper lake ports, and 56 cents excess from the lower lake ports to Pittsburgh and the surrounding territory, or a total of 76 cents on the basis of the reduced rate recently put into effect.

What these figures mean can best be seen by applying them to the actual output of one of the large independent companies. It takes one and one-tenth tons of pig iron or thereabouts to make a ton of steel and about two tons of ore to make a ton of pig iron, or two and two-fifth tons of ore for every ton of steel. One company producing in round numbers 950,000 tons of steel in a year requires about 2,100,000 tons of iron ore a year, all of which is brought to the mills from the Lake Superior region. An excess of 96 cents a ton in freight rates means an added cost to this company of $2,016,000 a year, or of $1,596,000 if the estimate be made on the basis of the 60-cent rate recently put into effect instead of on the basis of the 80-cent rate which prevailed up to the time of the recent decision of the Steel Corporation voluntarily to reduce this rate.

The independents have regarded this reduction as a tacit admission by the Steel Corporation that the former rate was too high. The railroads owned by the Steel Corporation are, of course, common carriers and handle traffic not only for the corporation itself, but for other manufacturers of steel. The Steel Corporation, moreover, reaps the profit made on the traffic handled for the independents as well as the profit accruing on the carriage of its own ore. This, one of the independents said yesterday, is where the corporation has an undue advantage over the independent companies.

An officer of one of the railroads which handles a large amount of ore from the Lake Superior region stoutly denied yesterday that the rates charged are excessive. He said that as a matter of fact it cost about 20 cents a ton for handling the ore at the docks instead of costing only 20 cents for the entitre haul, as the independents say, and that the rest of the 60-cent rate leaves only about four-tenths of a cent for hauling a ton of ore a mile. This is no more than about half of the average ton-mile rate on all classes of traffic the country over and less than the average ton-mile rate on the Eastern lines which have the greatest density of traffic. This contention does not directly apply to the rates from the lower lake ports to the Pittsburgh district, but from the railroad point of view much the same arguments can be advanced in respect to those rates.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Become Dull Again and Fluctuations in Prices Are Narrower.

GOLD TAKEN FOR EXPORT

Conditions Do Not Yet Favor General Outward Movement of the Metal—Reading Company Rumors.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was much quieter yesterday, and the dealings diminished as the day advanced, until at mid-afternoon they had fallen to a very small scale. The Stock Exchange was discussing heavy purchases of several of the leading active issues by operators who had previously gone short of a large amount of stock and who were credited with considerable part in causing the decline the last few days which enabled this short interest to cover with a good deal of ease as well as with profit. Such discussion of a market merely serves to emphasize its professional character. So far as the market had special feature it was again the strength in Reading which attracted most attention, although a reaction deprived this stock of most of its earlier advance, and its net gain was only fractional. It was natural after Reading had shown conspicuous strength, even during a period of selling in other parts of the list, that the Stock Exchange should feel called upon to offer an explanation for the stock's movement, and it did so yesterday in the shape of reports that the dividend on the road's common stock, now being paid at the rate of 6 per cent., would be increased to 8 per cent. The report was hardly backed up with sufficient appearance of authenticity to cause it to be generally accepted, even in the quarters in which the report circulated freely. The conviction remains strong that the Reading in some shape will do for its stockholders what two of the other anthracite roads have lately done, but predictions based on this conviction have been meeting with little or no support in quarters where information regarding the property is likely to be most accurate. The possibility remains, however, and the Stock Exchange pins its faith to it whenever Reading becomes unusually active and strong. While Reading was advancing yesterday, Lehigh Valley was under considerable selling pressure. Closing at the lowest price of the day it sold at a net loss of 1⅝, the largest decline in any of the active stocks the changes in which, divided between gains and losses, were for the most part limited to fractions.

Gold to the amount of $2,000,000 was taken for export to Paris, but the shipment was without effect upon the money market or upon Stock Exchange sentiment, which, under conditions of less striking monetary ease at this centre, might have been unfavorably influenced by the beginning of a gold export movement. It was likely from operations which were under way in the exchange market yesterday that further gold will be sent to Paris next week, but these shipments are not being made under conditions which would warrant a general participation in the gold export movement. The theory which might otherwise be favored that this gold was being sent in lieu of bills of exchange which could not be purchased except at a greater cost than that involved in shipping the metal itself seems to be barred as an explanation of this gold transport transaction by the fact that the bankers who were shipping the gold were also heavy sellers of exchange. The Bank of France may have reasons of its own for attracting gold at this time, but whatever the circumstances surrounding the shipment, it would appear that the general relations of the American and European money markets do not yet justify any large outflow of gold. There was little change in the foreign money market yesterday except for the advance in discount rates at Berlin from 3 per cent. to 3¼ per cent. The Imperial Bank of Germany's weekly statement showed a loss in cash of $15,000,000 and an increase in loans of about $10,000,000, while the bank's discounts fell off by close to $12,000,000. The experience of our own banks this week in respect to receipts of currency from the interior suggest a further substantial net gain in cash for the week. This was estimated yesterday at upward of $9,000,000.

In some of the roads with which the name of the late Edwin Hawley was closely associated he represented, according to statements made yesterday by some of his associates, the interests of others rather than his own. This was said to be particularly true of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, and of the Chicago & Alton, which it controls. This fact increases the likelihood that the group of railroads which has come to be known as the Hawley roads will no longer be kept together quite in the manner in which they have been in the past, but rather will come under control of varied interests. At the same time somewhat ambitious merger plans which were under consideration may yet be carried out by those who were associated with Mr. Hawley in some of these properties.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Edwin Hawley's Successor.

It is the fashion nowadays to speculate on effects of the death of a prominent man as if his taking off left a certain task to be shouldered. For weeks after E. H. Harriman's death it was a popular theme for discussion as to who would be his successor. At that time Edwin Hawley came into greater prominence than he had ever attained before, solely through the working out of a process of elimination, which conferred Mr. Harriman's place upon him. As a matter of fact, there could be no successor to Harriman, and there can be none to Edwin Hawley, for the reason that no two minds are cast in the same mould. Mr. Hawley had no delusions upon this score. He knew that he could only do his own work in his own way, and his own way was not Harriman's. The vacancies on the various boards which Mr. Harriman left were filled in subsequent months, but no man can be said to have succeeded the genius that made the Union Pacific a great railway system. His work, or that part of it which had to be carried on, was divided among several men.

Mr. Hawley's Directorships.

It is known that no one man will succeed to any considerable number of the offices left vacant by Edwin Hawley's death. Management of the Minneapolis & St. Louis had been transferred to Newman Erb several months ago, and he will carry on a larger part of Mr. Hawley's plans than any other one man, probably. Chairman Frank Trumbull and President George W. Stevens will continue in charge of the Chesapeake & Ohio, and a representative of Mr. Hawley's estate will probably succeed to the vacant place on the board. Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard is expected to continue in charge of the Chicago & Alton, while Speyer & Co. may be looked to in filling the vacancy on the M., K. & T. Mr. Hawley had so many interests that no one of them could claim much of his attention, and the shock of his loss will fall less heavily upon any one company than would have been the case had he concentrated his efforts along a single line.

⁂

Charters Increase.

The increase in the capitalization represented in charters taken out in the Eastern States in January is apparently largely due to the large amount of new capital authorized by existing companies rather than to any expansion of enterprise, with consequent organization of new companies. It fits in with recently published figures of new stock issues. The figures compiled by The Journal of Commerce include with the figures representing new incorporations the certificates of increased capital filed. The actual figures are $210,520,000, against $159,450,000 in December. It is the largest showing of any month since January, 1911, when the total reached $356,419,000. The same authority makes the grand total of all companies incorporated last month with a capital of $100,000 or more, including other States than those of the East, $330,879,000, against $237,800,000 in December and $450,440,750 in January, 1911.

Bank Exchanges Off.

The phenomenal ease of the money markets of the country, which has resulted in heavy loans of American money to foreign borrowers, is reflected in a measure in the contraction of bank exchanges throughout the country. As estimated by Dun's Review, the week's clearings at the principal centres aggregate only $2,833,909,482, which is a contraction of 6.1 per cent. as compared with the same period last year, itself a period of none-too-brisk business, and a loss of 17 per cent. from the figures for the same week in 1910. The loss compared with last year is due to a falling off at New York of 8.9 per cent., the outside cities showing a gain of 0.3 per cent. Compared with 1910, the outside cities show a decrease of 2.3 per cent.

Course of the Averages.

Although many issues closed the session yesterday with gains over Thursday's prices, the advances were more than offset by the declines, and the average prices of twenty-five railroads and twenty-five industrials at the close showed a further recession. The average price for the railroads is now 6.96 points below the average for the corresponding day of the last year, while the industrials have lost 4.77 points. A summary of the average for the two periods follows:

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Several Issues of Local Prominence Score Good Advances in Irregular Day.

SEARS-ROEBUCK IS ACTIVE

Common Stock Advances in Chicago on News of Favorable Earnings.

A number of local issues dealt in in the out-of-town Exchanges registered good advances yesterday.

Interest at Baltimore centred largely in a sharp advance in Maryland Trust common stock, which rose 5 points to 105. Various reports gained circulation as to the cause of the rise, which has been steadily upward for some days, and the rumor which attracted most attention was of a proposition to buy control. The report as to the prospective absorption was denied by an official of the company. United Railways shares were slightly reactionary, but offerings were well absorbed and United Railways income bonds continued in demand and strong. Consolidated Power preferred added another fraction to its previous high record price.

Steel common and North Butte were the principal features in a moderately active and somewhat narrower local market at Boston. Trading in copper shares was restricted by uncertainty regarding the status of the metal, and the movement of prices was irregular because of profit taking in spots. North Butte was active and stronger above 25, with rumors that controlling interests were trying to effect a merger with Anaconda. The Street put little faith in these reports. Steel was pushed upward in sympathy with the advance in Wall Street. Various tax-exempt issues were in good demand, with prices fully maintained.

A sudden outburst of activity in Sears-Roebuck common on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday was attributed to purchases inspired by favorable earnings of the company last month. Sales for January, it is stated, exceeded those of the same period last year by 26½ per cent. The showing of January a year ago was regarded as a large one, and the enormous gain in the present year came as a surprise. Purchases of the stock Friday were by interests which usually follow information from inside sources. Initial sales were at 141¾, a fractional advance, and the price was lifted to 146 by the demand, easing off a fraction by the close. Beyond the rise in Sears-Roebuck the Chicago list displayed but slight changes from Thursday night. Fractional gains were made by Can common, Diamond Match, and Chicago Railways series 2s, while Western Stone, McCrum Howell common, and some others eased off slightly.

All eyes were again directed on Reading in the Philadelphia financial district, and the Street was filled with rumors purporting to explain its unwonted activity and strength. One of the bull arguments was to the effect that in the event of a miners' strike the price of coal would be advanced, and that the company had a large supply on hand, but the other anthracite stocks failed to bear out this argument in their market movements.

The general local list fluctuated within narrow limits. On the whole the tone was fairly firm.

Yesterday's transactions in the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading in Small Volume and Price Movements Narrow.

Curb trading was in diminished volume yesterday and the bond list, too, shared in the general sluggishness. Price movements in the mining list were confined to small fractions and many issues closed even with the opening levels.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Money Supply Plentiful—Market Tone Satisfactory—Americans Rally.

MEXICAN RAILS REVIVE

Monthly Statement Removes Depression—Paris Bourse Firm—Wall Street Advices Brace Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 3.—The Times in its City article says: "The money supply was large yesterday and borrowers had no difficulty in obtaining what they needed at Thursday's rates. The small amount that was due to the Bank of England was repaid, and the balance was offered at a close discount.

"Rates were not materially altered, but the tendency inclined to be firm for longer maturities.

"A trifling amount of sovereigns was withdrawn from the Bank for India. Further withdrawals for this quarter are considered very probable next week.

"Leading Continental Exchanges moved in favor of London. New York sterling is still hardly at gold point, but the dispatch of about £400,000 in gold from New York to Paris has been arranged, although it would, of course, suit London rather better if this shipment were going to Buenos Ayres.

"On the Stock Exchange, with prominent exceptions, home railway stocks were again subjected to profit-taking sales.

"The tone of the market is not unsatisfactory. Consols rose 3-16, and Chinese bonds showed strength. American shares achieved a slight recovery in late dealings, and Mexican railway stocks, after being flat, rallied on the appearance of monthly statements."

LONDON, Feb. 2.—A better supply of money was available to-day. Discount rates were firm.

The stock market was quiet and irregular. A small failure was announced in the afternoon, but it had little effect on values. Consols, in which the settlement was concluded, gained a fraction, and Kaffirs were firm. Home rails were easy on fears of labor troubles, and the revolutionary outbreak in Mexico weakened Mexican rails.

American securities were quiet during the forenoon. Prices opened a fraction higher, but support was lacking and several shares fell below parity before noon. Later New York offerings depressed the entire list. The closing was easy.

Money, 3½@3¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills was 3⅜ per cent., and for three months' bills 3 7-16@3½ per cent.

Bar silver was steady at 26 13-16d per ounce.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.80; at Lisbon, 10.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm.

Closing—Three per cent. rentes, 95f 57½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 25½c for checks.

Private rate of discount, 3⅛ per cent.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—The Boerse was stronger to-day on favorable New York advices.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 52 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3 per cent.

Private discount rate, 3⅜ per cent.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

When Reading advanced in the first hour the professional element on the Consolidated Stock Exchange started to sell the rest of the list, but when they found that their offerings were being well absorbed they shifted their attitude, a rally ensuing. In the later dealings there was another reaction, but prevailing sentiment at the close could be better described as "mixed" rather than bearish.

EQUITABLE TRUST GETS RIVAL

Trust Company of America Stockholders Accept the Merger Offer.

The absorption of the Trust Company of America by the Equitable Trust Company has been assured by the action of holders of more than two-thirds of the first named company's stock, by which the offer made by Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable, to purchase the shares for $375 each in cash is accepted. The purchase will be closed next Monday, and an agreement of merger subject to the approval of Superintendent of Banking Van Tuyl will be submitted to the Directors of the two companies next week.

The Equitable Trust Company, which was burned out in the Equitable fire, and is now occupying temporary quarters in the offices of the Carnegie Trust Company, will eventually locate in the present large banking rooms of the Trust Company of America at 37 Wall Street.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general trade conditions, Dun's Review says:

Money market conditions give the key to the whole business situation. The great accumulation of surplus funds in New York have made it about the cheapest money market in the world, and has enabled it to loan at least $150,000,000 abroad, making this country, for the time being, a powerful creditor nation. This is a condition of immense strength. Railroad gross earnings during three weeks of January declined 8 per cent., owing to weather conditions, and bank clearings the current week are 6.1 per cent. under a year ago. The strike at Lawrence causes some trade depression in textiles, but wool is fairly active. The New England shoe factories are busy. The Philadelphia hosiery and underwear dealers report an improved demand, and Baltimore clothing trade experiences a pronounced gain in orders from the South. A number of the large Western trade centres report an encouraging outlook for the Spring trade. Copper is weaker. Wheat continues irregular. Cotton is very quiet. Retail business is now influenced largely by weather conditions, which in most sections have not been favorable to active distribution. Foreign commerce continues on a large scale. For the latest week at the port of New York it amounted to $40,468,897, against $19,819,070 a year ago and $35,105,708 in 1910. Exports were $19,910,761, a large increase over the two preceding years and only slightly less than the imports.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade and industry are not moving in consonance with highly-keyed anticipations, but in general business tends to expand, following a relatively quiet period in January. As a matter of fact, the tone of affairs is hopeful, stocks are not heavy, and, although small-lot buying still rules, it is recognized that this attitude on the part of distributors is not without its salutary influences. Visiting buyers are not making heavy purchases, being content to buy frequently and in small lots, to only cover actual requirements, and not to anticipate them in a speculative sense. Staples are in most request, and the leading dry goods markets display a comparatively good uplift, with prices on some makes of goods tending to harden.

Coal is in good request, an actual shortage in supplies being noted in Alabama. Provender for animals is higher, chiefly because of the short yields gathered last season and the cold Winter. Commodity prices in general are firm, but butter is easier, and, although movements of corn and oats have increased, prices have not been adversely affected. Collections range from slow to fair.

TAKES UP RAILWAY MAIL PAY.

A. W. Sullivan New Head of Committee to Succeed Kruttschnitt.

By a unanimous vote of the Committee on Railway Mail Pay, A. W. Sullivan has been elected to the Chairmanship. He relieves Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President of the Harriman lines, the former Chairman, and Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad, former Vice Chairman of the committee, from the labors connected with the work. Mr. Kruttschnitt and Mr. Peters will, however, continue to act as members of the committee. Mr. Sullivan, who will devote his time exclusively to this work, served three terms as President of the American Railway Association. He was formerly General Manager of the Illinois Central Railway and later of the Missouri Pacific.

The Committee on Railway Mail Pay represents more than 208,000 miles of road, and was organized for the purpose of bringing about a readjustment of the present pay for the transportation of the mails, under which the railroads say they are heavy losers. In his last report, the Postmaster General submitted a tentative draft of a proposed law for the regulation of railway mail pay, which the carriers considered so drastic that Mr. Kruttschnitt shortly before his retirement as Chairman addressed a letter to the Speaker of the House at Washington, asking that ample time be given for a detailed analysis, and asserting that the figures were distorted, the results illogical and unwarranted, and that the principle adopted by the Postmaster General would, if applied to all the business of the railroad, reduce them to bankruptcy.

Mr. Sullivan will make his headquarters in New York.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday extreme dulness continued, with commodities on a parity with last night's closing, with the exception of tin, which was down ¼c.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.	Thursday. Bid.	Thursday. Asked.
Standard copper—

Spelter	6.35	6.55	6.35	6.55

The following table gives the range of prices obtaining yesterday on the Metal Exchange in London for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These final figures compare with Thursday's last quotations:

TO HOLDERS OF

First Refunding and Extensions Mortgage Bonds of THE WABASH RAILROAD COMPANY

At the request of the undersigned Committee, as the holder of more than twenty-five per cent. in amount of the outstanding bonds of the above issue, proceedings for the foreclosure of the First Refunding and Extensions Mortgage have been commenced by The Equitable Trust Company of New York, as trustee of the mortgage, and the receivership heretofore existing has been extended to these foreclosure proceedings.

Examinations and reports already made for the Committee fully confirm its view that the earning capacity of the property in the past has been largely restricted on account of lack of funds to provide adequate equipment and such necessary betterments and improvements as would enable the handling of business with economy and dispatch, and that with necessary resources provided for these purposes the possibilities of the property will be better developed.

With this view, and in order to hasten as far as practicable a sound and permanent reorganization of the property, it is the policy of the Committee to recommend that expenditures of this character be promptly made, and to concur, as the Committee has already done, in applications made by the receivers to the Court for authority to improve the property and to provide adequate equipment, for which, and other purposes, an issue of $10,000,000 of receivers' certificates has been authorized, which have been purchased by Messrs. KUHN, LOEB & CO., the Bankers to the Committee.

A large amount of bonds has already been deposited with the Committee, and, in order that its above-expressed policy may have the earnest support of as large a number of bondholders as possible, the Committee urges upon all bondholders who have not heretofore deposited their bonds to deposit the same as promptly as possible with The Equitable Trust Company of New York.

Linen Scalloped Doylies Pay 50 Per Cent.—Other Tariff Decisions.

In denying a protest filed by the Syndicate Trading Company the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday held that while Collector Loeb failed to impose the proper duty on linen scalloped doylies, the claim for a rate of duty lower than that exacted was erroneous. The doylies, which are made of linen, were returned for duty under the Tariff act of 1897, at 50 per cent. ad valorem, as weighing more than four and one-half ounces per square yard, whereas the importers set up the contention that the goods weigh less and should have been granted duty at 35 per cent. Judge Cooper says in his decision that the Appraiser arrived at the weight by including within it the weight of the scalloped edge. The General Appraiser reaches the conclusion that the merchandise should have been returned at 60 per cent. under the embroidery provision. As this was not done, the Collector's assessment stands.

The board reversed the Collector's assessment on wearing apparel and personal effects brought into this country by Mrs. Elizabeth R. Stuyvesant, who declared herself a resident of France. She claimed that she is no longer a citizen of the United States, and that accordingly she had the right to enter the effects without payment of duty. This claim is upheld by Judge Somerville.

The board decided that erasers and manicure knives composed of fixed metal blades set into handles of wood or other material are properly dutiable at the appropriate rates under the provisions of Paragraph 152, act of 1909, and not at lower rates as claimed by the importers, J. A. Henkels & Co. and others. It was alleged that because the knives have fixed blades, they do not fall within the purview of the paragraph assessed. This is denied by Judge Fischer, who upholds the Collector's classification.

MORE CRUDE OIL FOUND.

Production for the Year in All Fields Largely Increased.

The production of petroleum in 1911 increased slightly over the record-breaking figures of 1910.

The American Grocer arranges the production thus for purposes of comparison:

	1910. Barrels.	1911. Barrels.
Appalachian field	31,985,515	28,000,000
California	78,010,560	81,000,000
Kansas and Oklahoma	53,175,386	56,000,000
Louisiana	6,841,395	10,000,000
Texas	8,899,266	9,000,000
Miscellaneous	35,661,926	33,000,000
Totals	209,556,048	217,000,000

The most striking feature of the year in the petroleum industry was the development of the Electra oilfied in Northern Texas.

The total production for the United States is between 215,000,000 and 220,000,000 barrels. The gain in a single State (California) was greater than the net gain shown for the country as a whole, the usual decline in the older districts offsetting the increase in the Middle West and South.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Cotton Jumps, Grain and Provisions Higher—Coffee Alone Weak.

New high prices were made in wheat, corn, and oats with active trading. Strong cables influenced corn and wheat, while Western cash markets were held higher, and a better general demand was reported for cash grain. Provisions were firm on light movement of hogs. Cotton advances to new high levels on buying by bulls with shorts nervous. The spot situation is still firm, although at the high levels offerings were reported larger.

WHEAT.

The wheat market has advanced to new high levels, and last night closed within ⅛ of the extreme values. The net advance for the day was 1½c to 1¾c. Before the opening the strength of the foreign markets had started an active demand, resulting in a sharp advance at the opening, the advances holding with only slight reactions during the day. The strength abroad was attributed to the very small world's exports and the small offerings from other countries. The weather is favorable in the Argentine, but the shipments for the week were only 496,000 bushels, against 2,008,000 bushels last year. The shipments from India were only 488,000 bushels. The Australian shipments were 1,104,000 bushels, compared with 2,276,000 bushels a year ago. The American shipments were given at 3,157,000 bushels, making world's export indications 6,700,000 bushels, or 4,000,000 bushels less than last year. This supply of wheat is less than the European needs. Uneasiness regarding the Argentine position was intensified by cables predicting possibility of a general strike on Monday. Interior cash markets were higher. Reports on the appearance of the growing Winter wheat crop as it has been exposed by the melting off of the snow covering are contradictory and seem to be causing some apprehension. The pronounced strength in feeding grain was again an important factor. Export demand was limited by the advance. Shippers reported about five loads of Manitoba wheat. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.05, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.23; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.14; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.16¾.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market was very strong. Prices advanced to new high levels and closed within ⅛ of the extreme advance. Foreign markets were decidedly strong, with Liverpool showing a gain of 1½d. Foreign bids on corn were strong, with prices up to nearly the advance scored by the future market. Cash corn was strong West, and was held relatively higher, compared with the future, than was the case before the recent enormous movement started. The interior movement was somewhat smaller for the day, but the receipts were more than double a year ago. Interior cash markets were strong. American exports for the week were heavy, amounting to 1,964,000 bushels. Export demand was good, notwithstanding the advance, shippers reporting about twenty loads. No. 3 corn was quoted at 73c elevator, export: steamer, 72½c, and No. 2, 73½c, free on board.

OATS.—The market was excited and strong, advancing to new high levels, but closed at only a moderate net gain. The principal advances were in the Summer delivery. Cash oats were very firm, however. The price of choice cash oats seems to have been directly affected by the Government decisions on sulphured oats, and also by the decision condemning No. 3 white oats for containing a large percentage of other grain. The point was made that the decision would mean that oats must be sold in their natural shape, or else, if mixed, must be sold by sample. Cash oats were strong, with standards quoted at 60½c elevator; No. 2 white, 60½c nominal, and No. 3 white, 60c nominal.

PROVISIONS.

Provisions were firm, with trade light. The market was influenced by the small receipts of hogs for the day, only 85,000 at Western points. The monthly stock statement showed, however, 82,795 tierces of new lard at Chicago, against 35,460 last month and 9,252 last year. The stock of pork was 37,839 barrels, a gain for the month of nearly 8,000 barrels, while the total stock of all meats was 134,907,000 pounds, against 107,049,000 pounds last month and 79,126,000 pounds last year. The world's lard stock was given at 295,440 tierces, against 231,219 last month and 112,153 last year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Slightly higher prices were witnessed. There is a continued good demand for the March option, thought to be for large interests, which enable longs to liquidate and reinstate holdings in the deferred deliveries at a satisfactory difference. The strength of cotton and feed stuffs in conjunction with the absence of pressure from crude circles is still restricting aggressiveness from the bear element. Consuming inquiry is generally reported as being from quiet to fair, the buying stated to be mainly in small quantities. Crude quoted at:

COTTON.

The upward trend of futures was resumed with vigor at the outset yesterday with advances of from 7 to 14 points. These gains were augmented to the extent of nearly 20 points during the early session, resulting in values about 1¼c per pound above the low prices recorded last December. Buying was much the same character as of recent date, with spot concerns prominent, although it was apparent that there was considerable short covering and some new buying induced by the persistency of the rally and the evident determination on the part of large interests to sustain the list.

News was not unlike that of the past few days. Cables from Liverpool were a source of encouragement, with the future market there higher than due, while spot business totaled 14,000 bales. The accounts from Manchester are still indicative of a large business passing at that centre. The takings by British spinners were large the past week, amounting to 118,000 bales, as compared with 89,000 the preceding week and 88,000 last year. There have been further advances made in several descriptions of print cloths in the domestic market, while the undertone to yarns is also very steady, and it is generally conceded that the American trade situation is still in the process of improvement. More quiet conditions prevailed at Lawrence, Mass.

Early spot reports from the South claimed a continuance of a demand sufficient to absorb offerings, and this feature, with the knowledge that local futures are relatively cheap, was largely instrumental in the lack of bear pressure from that element. As was expected, however, on the upturn or at levels bordering close to 10c for the May delivery, several messages came to hand of freer offerings from farmers. Weather conditions at the South are favorable and conducive to a fair movement of cotton. Exports for the current month are expected to be heavy to date, exceeding last season by more than 1,200,000 bales. The official Southern spot markets were generally ⅛c higher with some advances of ¼c, while New York spot cotton was 10 points advance; middlings quoted at 10c.

Week-end statistics were not especially bearish, inasmuch as the large crop produced foreshadows a substantial into-sight movement from week to week. This aggregated 427,000 bales, against 224,000 last year, and since Sept. 1 the total is 11,741,000 against 9,912,000 a year ago. Spinners' takings were moderately large—392,000 against 388,000 last week, and 258,000 a year ago. The total visible of American cotton is 4,929,000, or 818,000 greater than last year; the increase for the week being 35,000 bales, following an increase of 32,000 last week and comparing with a decrease of 34,000 a year ago.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

JOSEPH CAHN.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition filed Jan. 3 against Joseph Cahn, dealer in clothing and men's furnishing goods at Middletown, N. Y., on a settlement at 30 cents on the dollar, cash.

RODERICK J. KENNEDY.—A petition has been filed against Roderick J. Kennedy, a clerk of 2,043 Ryer Avenue, formerly a liquor dealer, by these creditors: Mary C. Kennedy, $2,735; John Thompson, $506, and May Stoddard, $60.

CHARLES BERGENSTEIN & CO.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of Charles Bergenstein, doing business as Charles Bergenstein & Co., manufacturer of ruchings at 596 Broadway, with creditors at 30 cents on the dollar. The schedules showed liabilities of $95,594 and assets of $33,990.

WILLIAM W. CONSTAD.—A petition has been filed against William W. Constad, manufacturer of furs at 146 to 150 West Twenty-fifth Street, by these creditors: Sternlicht & Scheer, $69; Paul Silver, $100, and George Sachs. Henry H. Silver, attorney for creditors, stated that the liabilities are over $30,000 and assets $5,000.

AUTOMATIC PENNY STORES COMPANY.—Schedules of the Automatic Penny Stores Company of 1,907 Park Avenue show liabilities of $32,617 and assets of $10,665. The largest creditor is J. A. Whitmore, as Trustee for former stockholders of the Universal Salesman Company, $27,642.

FREEMAN WORTHINGTON BUTTS, salesman of 601 West 168th Street, has filed a petition with liabilities $13,726 and six other claims for unknown amounts. His assets consist of thirty-five shares of stock of the Morgan Lithograph Company of Cleveland, Ohio, par value $3,500, pledged to the company as security for a debt of $2,800. The largest creditor is the Central Trust Company of Cleveland, $10,000.

HENRY A. GOULD COMPANY.—Henry Melville has been appointed receiver by Judge Hough of the Henry A. Gould Company, wholesale dealers in crude rubber at 227 Fulton Street, bond $1,000. It was stated that the assets consist of office furniture, $1,000, and a claim of $45,000 against the Newark Rubber Manufacturing Company of Newark, N. J., of which the Henry A. Gould Co. is the largest creditor, and of which Henry A. Gould was treasurer. A petition in bankruptcy has been filed at Treton against the Newark company, and it was necessary to have a receiver appointed for the Gould company to protect its interest. The assets of the Newark company are estimated at $5,000, and the dividend to the Gould company should be at least $1,000.

NEVADA-UTAH MINES AND SMELTERS CORPORATION.—A meeting of creditors of the Nevada-Utah Mines and Smelters Corporation of 100 Broadway was held yesterday at the office of Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, at 68 William Street, to prove claims and elect a Trustee. Twelve claims were filed, aggregating about $140,000. Among them were L. Vogelstein & Co., $89,000; Clement J. Henry Melville, the receiver, was unanimously elected Trustee. He said that he had not found any money yet to receive. Robert G. Mead, President of the company, was briefly examined concerning its affairs. James N. Rosenberg, attorney for the Trustee, said after the meeting that the Trustee will co-operate with the stockholders and creditors, and he expects that within a reasonable time the Stockholders' Committee will be able to put through a plan of reorganization which will be satisfactory to all the various interests.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Hotel Marlborough Sold to a Philadelphia Syndicate—$1,800,000 Mortgage Placed on Continental Hotel Site—Two Big Deals in the Bronx—Many Important Leases.

The old Marlborough Hotel on the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street, which has been a well-known Broadway hostelry for many years, was sold yesterday to a syndicate of Philadelphia and Manhattan operators. The deal, including the leasehold, which has several years to run, aggregates several million dollars, making it the biggest real estate transaction in Manhattan of the present year. For the present the hotel will be retained under its present management, the only change immediately contemplated by the new owners being the remodeling of the entire ground floor, which will be cut up into stores and leased for business.

The deal was negotiated by Leopold Weil, who, in conjunction with Adolph Meyer, sold the hotel property for the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, as Trustee for the estate of Charlotte M. Goodridge. It covers a frontage of about 167 feet on Broadway and 159.3 feet on Thirty-sixth Street, and is assessed at $1,755,000. Included with the sale of the property is the lease of the premises from the Sweeney-Tierney Hotel Company, which has thirty-seven years to run, and represents an aggregate rental for the period of over $4,000,000.

The buyers are Samuel Snellenberg, S. M. Bloch, and Harry M. Nathanson of Philadelphia, who were represented in the deal by Goldsmith, Cohen, Cole & Weiss as attorneys. The buyers have formed a corporation known as the Cross Town Realty Company to hold the property. The Sweeney-Tierney Hotel Company will continue to manage the hotel.

The Marlborough property has been in the possession of the Goodridge family since 1858, when it was purchased by the grandfather of the present heirs. The house was erected in 1888, at which time it was regarded as one of the leading uptown hotels on Broadway. In 1904 it was thoroughly renovated. The brokers, Mr. Weil and Mr. Meyer, have been appointed by the new owners agents of the property.

$1,800,000 Mortgage on Continental Hotel Plot.

The Sutherland Realty Company (Bing & Bing) have taken title to the old Continental Hotel on the northeast corner of Broadway and Twentieth Street from Clarence Herter. Work will begin Monday morning in tearing down the structure for a twenty-story office building. The new owners have given a mortgage of $1,800,000 on the property, as recorded yesterday, to run for ten years.

Enlarge Stone Street Holdings.

William A. White & Sons took title yesterday to the small plot at 10 Stone Street, nearly opposite the easterly end of the Produce Exchange. The plot fronts 21.9 feet on Stone Street and is 67.9 feet deep and irregular. Title was taken from the Kings County Trust Company, executors of the estate of John T. Gibby. William A. White & Sons own the adjoining parcel at 12 Stone Street with the rear plot at 29 Bridge Street. The plot at 8 Stone Street is owned by the city, being occupied by a fire engine house.

$750,000 Fourth Avenue Lease.

Contracts in the lease by the silk and commission house of Fleitman & Co. for large space in the new loft to be erected on the southwest corner of Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street were signed yesterday. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. acted as the brokers in the deal for the owners of the new building, the Hess Building Company. The structure is to be twenty stories high, covering a plot 98.9 by 200 feet, which was leased some time ago from Ogden Mills by the Hess Building Company. The old structure will be torn down soon after May 1.

Fleitman & Co., now at 490 Broome Street on the corner of Wooster, have taken the basement, store floor, and the first two lofts, comprising 80,000 square feet, with an option of another loft. The lease dates from Feb. 1, 1913, and aggregates about $750,000, the rental being for ten years. Fleitman & Co. were one of the four prospective lessees of large space in the commercial structure planned for the Madison Square Garden site.

Two Big Bronx Deals.

Two of the largest deals of the year in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx were announced yesterday by the Broadway and Cathedral Parkway Company, (George F. Johnson and Leopold Kahn,) which sold the block front on the north side of 163d Street from Kelly to Tiffany Street.

The plot, which has a frontage of 200 feet and a depth of 125 feet, has been held at $100,000. It was purchased by the Newport Realty Company, of which Ignatz Roth is President. Ground will be broken at once for the erection of four five-story apartment houses. L. M. Mosauer & Co. negotiated the sale.

The Broadway and Cathedral Parkway Company also sold a plot 175 by 100 on the west side of Kelly Street, 125 feet north of 163d Street. The buyers of this parcel are two well-known Bronx builders, who will improve the site with four five-story flats, similar to those to be erected by the Newport Company. Several other block front operations are in progress in the same vicinity.

Buys Riverside Drive Plot.

R. R. Fogel has sold to Pancrazio Grassi a plot fronting 200 feet on Riverside Drive, between 173d and 174th Streets, and extending through to Buena Vista Avenue, where it has a similar frontage.

It is understood that the buyer, who has been identified with several big loft operations, will improve the site with a dwelling similar to that erected by Dr. Charles V. Paterno at 181st Street and Riverside Drive.

Bronx.

Grace L. Horton has sold to an investor 458 East 186th Street, a four-story apartment, on a lot 25 by 100. Andrew Selkin, in conjunction with B. Lichtig, negotiated the transaction.

Simon Adler has purchased from the Wahleg Sonsin Company the new five-story apartment house at 1,203 Fulton Avenue, on a plot 50 by 211 by irregular, located 103.6 feet south of 168th Street. The buyer gives in exchange the plot 120 by 138 by 131 by 112, on the west side of Crotona Avenue, 90 feet north of 189th Street, which will be improved with apartments.

Studwell & Burkhard have sold 505 Willoughby Avenue, a three-story and basement brownstone dwelling, for the estate of W. Morris, to E. Schwartz for occupancy; also 630 Marcy Avenue, a two-story and basement frame house, for Anna A. Pearce to Marie Decker for investment.

Frank A. Seaver has sold nine lots on the northeasterly corner of Bay Ridge and Stewart Avenues for George W. Averell to a buyer for investment.

Banking Building for Pine Street.

Megargel & Co have leased for a banking building for a long term of years 35 Pine Street at an annual rental of $20,000. The lease, which was negotiated by Ogden & Clarkson, carries an option to purchase the property for about $350,000.

This site is now occupied by a three-story structure occupying a lot 24.1 by 71.5 and lying between the Manhattan Building and the one recently erected by Redmond & Co. It will be extensively altered.

New Factory for Long Island City.

Addition to Terminal Buildings.

Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller for erecting a five-story office building in the rear of the Fulton Building of the Hudson & Manhattan Terminal buildings on the west side of Church Street, between Fulton and Dey Streets. This building is being put up mainly for the purpose of protecting the air and light of the main building.

This addition will conform in architectural design with the main structure and will have a frontage of 19 feet on Dey Street and 25.1 feet on Fulton Street. Clinton & Russell, architects, have estimated the cost at $50,000.

Notes.

Frederick Southack & Alwyn Ball, Jr., have been appointed agents for the new twelve-story bank building at the southwest corner of Canal and Orchard Streets, which is being built by S. Jarmulowsky, the banker.

Title has passed from the Brunswick Realty Company to George Vause to the ten-story Arcade Building at 121 and 123 East Twenty-seventh Street, through to 118 East Twenty-eighth Street. THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Scattered snow flurries occurred Friday throughout the North, but no heavy fall was reported in any section. The principal disturbance in the West is now cnetred on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. During the last twenty-four hours the temperature has fallen between the Mississippi Valley and the eastern mountain regions, and is comparatively low in the Upper Mississippi and Red River of the North valleys, being considerably below normal in the South.

The western storm probably will advance across the Middle States Saturday and reach the Atlantic Coast during Sunday, and in its track will be general precipitation, mostly snow. The temperature will rise somewhat throughout the South during Saturday, but will fall again on Sunday. In fact, comparatively cold weather is indicated for the greater portion of the country east of the Rockies during the next forty-eight hours.

Along the New England Coast winds will be moderate west; Middle and South Atlantic Coast, light west, becoming variable.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate west winds and partly overcast weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Saturday, probably followed by snow Sunday or Sunday night; colder Saturday; moderate northwest winds, becoming variable.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday. Sunday, unsettled, with probably snow; moderately cold; moderate, variable winds.

New England—Generally fair Saturday and Sunday; colder; moderate northwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Municipal Civil Service Commissioner Richard Welling will open the lecture course on "Pupil Self-Government" at Adelphi College, Brooklyn, this morning, under the auspices of the Brooklyn Teachers' Association.

Rupert B. Thomas, Chairman of the Committee of Sites of the Board of Education, is in favor of a new bureau in the board to select school sites scientifically. He thinks that past conditions show the necessity for such a bureau. There are to-day forty-four sites owned by the city. Funds for thirteen of them have been authorized. Twenty-four of the sites are for new buildings and seven sites are for additions to present buildings. Mr. Thomas says that the question is how many of the twenty-four new sites should be surrendered to the Sinking Fund Commission. To determine this careful investigation, in his opinion, should be made by scientific methods.

A dinner will be held on the evening of Feb. 17 at the Imperial, Red Hook Lane and Fulton Street, Brooklyn, in honor of Principal Edward Bush of Public School 18, Brooklyn, who was retired on Feb. 1 under the seventy-year age limit.

The next examination for high school teachers will probably be held in April.

The retirement of Mrs. Joanna J. Hill, Principal of Public School 74, in East Sixty-third Street, will probably be followed by the consolidation of the two departments in it.

The attendance officers of the Board of Education will hold a meeting on Feb. 6 to plan for a campaign against the proposed legislation transferring them from the Compulsory Education Bureau of the Board of Education to the Permanent Census Bureau, which is a body independent of the Board of Education, although City Supt. Maxwell is one of its officers.

The High School Teachers' Association, in its latest official bulletin, states that the Washington Irving High School leads all the others with 144 teachers and 3,769 pupils. The next nine are: Morris High School, 122 teachers and 3,208 pupils; De Witt Clinton High School, 111 teachers and 3,076 pupils; Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, 128 teachers and 3,068 pupils; Manual Training High School, 128 teachers and 2,848 pupils; Wadleigh High School, 122 teachers and 2,717 pupils; Girls' High School, 110 teachers and 2,639 pupils; Eastern District High School, Brooklyn, 92 teachers and 2,498 pupils; Commercial High School, 100 teachers and 2,169 pupils, and the Stuyvesant High School, 92 teachers and 2,002 pupils.

ASKS WOMEN TO AID IN FIRE PREVENTION

"Keeping the Fire Escapes Clear Your Work," Commissioner Johnson Tells Them.

BIG HARVEST IN DONATIONS

Federation Meeting Quickly Raises Fund to Keep Woman Lawyer at Women's Night Court.

"I never until to-day understood so well the words of the Psalmist when he exclaimed: 'What is man?'" said William A. Marble, e-President of the Sons of the Revolution, who was one of the speakers at the meeting of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday, and the members of the federation answered him back with laughter.

It was a big wave of merriment, too, for the federation never had a larger meeting, and it was no wonder that Mr. Marble felt a little lonesome. The main ballroom of the Hotel Astor, where the meeting was held, was filled to the doors, and the small ballroom opening into it was also crowded. It was an all-day meeting, with an election of borough Directors, and any number of honor guests as speakers.

One of these was Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, who was present with several of her Chiefs of Staff and Salvation Army lassies, who filled the corridors of the Astor giving out literature. Ex-Chief Croker of the Fire Department was there for a time, and so was Fire Commissioner Johnson, who told the women that he had plenty of work to do, but that he had let it "go to rack and ruin" to come to address them, because he thought that they could do much to help prevent fires.

Miss Bertha Rembaugh spoke for the legislative department of the federation before the honor guests had their chance. She spoke of the great need of a woman attorney at the Women's Night Court. She said that the Women's Prison Association which had kept one there had come to the end of its resources, and that she would have to go before the experiment had been fairly tried.

Then some one in hot haste moved that the federation take up the work. The resolution passed, and donations from individuals and organizations came in so fast that the givers had to be slowed down so that a record could be kept. The Rescue Work Department of the W. C. T. U. gave $5, the Widowed Mother's Fund Club $5, the Société des Femmes de France $5, the Mary Arden Shakespeare Club $5, the Public Good Club $10, the Rainy Daisies $10, and the Scotch Presbyterian Church $5. Soon Miss Rembaugh and the Federation Treasurer had their hands full of bills, and more than the $200 needed was raised in less than twenty minutes.

"I have been wondering since I have been here what you women would do if some one should call 'Fire!'" said Commissioner Johnson, in beginning his remarks. "There are a great many people here, and a lot of loose chairs. I wonder if you would go out quietly, or get into one of the panics which kill more people than the fires.

"When there is danger of a fire always give the Fire Department the first chance, and perhaps there won't be any trouble. In case of need call up the Fire Department by telephone, and give the street and number where the blaze is, and you will find that you will receive immediate attention. The Fire Department seldom receives a false alarm from a woman.

"There are many thousands of fires a year in New York, and many of them might be prevented. You women can do a great deal toward helping in the matter of prevention, and that is the reason I came here this afternoon and let the department go to rack and ruin for the time being.

"There were 3,332 fires in 1910 that were caused by lighted matches, cigars, and candles, and the like. I wouldn't think of taking a man before a Magistrate for smoking, but in a big loft building, where there are flimsy shirtwaist materials that burn like gunpowder, it is a crime. We are not trying to get the nicotine out of the system of the men. I am a victim of the tobacco habit myself; but they must refrain from smoking where it will cause loss of life and property."

Commissioner Johnson said that he did not approve of the Fire Drill bill, and that common sense should be used in demanding a drill. He declared that in some absolutely safe places, which would come under its provisions, it would cause needless annoyance. In closing he told the women to go home and see whether there was rubbish placed carelessly in the cellars or near the elevators, if hot pipes were properly protected, and if flues were in good condition.

"Keeping the fire escapes clear is your work," he said, "and if you need fire escapes we will see that you have them. You help me and I will help you."

The federation passed many resolutions, among them one to support the work of the Salvation Army.

ROPE AND HOOK THIEF'S TOOL

Uses Them to Climb to Fire Escapes to Rob Flats.

A burglar, whose principal equipment, the police believe, is a rope with an iron hook on the end of it, has committed half a dozen burglaries recently in the large apartment houses in Central Park West, between Ninety-fifth and 100th Streets, and so far the detectives of the West 100th Street Station have no trace of him. They believe he has entered all the flats he has robbed by casting his rope upon a fire escape from the rear courtyards, and when the hook has caught, hauling himself up to the fire escape.

They are certain that he thus entered the apartment of Joseph M. Kahn on the ground floor of 385 Central Park West, last Sunday evening. They found footprints in the rear yards, and marks where two bags, evidently holding the burglar's loot, had been dragged over the snow to the rear fence. The trail led over this fence and through the yard of 8 West Ninety-ninth Street, a big flat house. The detectives lost it at the back door of this flat, and, learning that neither the front nor rear door is ever locked, have come to the conclusion that the burglar walked through to the street.

The robbery occurred between 7 and 8 o'clock, when Mr. Kahn, his wife, and small son, with his brother-in-law, David Roth, and two nieces of his wife, Miss Largman and Miss Denitz, were in the front rooms. The burglar, after reaching the fire escape, entered the window of the bathroom, which was not locked, and took most of his loot from two bedrooms, which adjoin the bathroom. All told he got away with about $1,500 worth of things, among them a pony coat, a silver mesh bag, a set of red fox furs, a polo coat, a handbag containing clothing worth $150, another set of furs, a pocketbook in which was $50, a gold and ruby and a gold and emerald bracelet, several chains, and rings and several gowns.

Mr. Kahn told his neighbor, J. Austin Calston, who lives next door at 383 Central Park West, of the robbery, and learned that Mr. Calston's apartment had been entered the same way about three weeks ago and $1,000 worth of silverware and jewelry stolen. Mr. Calston was indignant last night at the failure of the police to have recovered any of his property.

"Most of my stuff," said he, "consisted of silverware plainly marked with my monogram. It would be easy to identify it if it were pawned anywhere, and pawned it must have been, for no thief stole it to adorn his private dining room. Yet the police have done nothing but question me, look around, and then go away and drop the case."

CHAMPION BREADMAKER AT 11

Little Miss Edmonds Gets an Official Reward, as Do Boy Corn Growers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Miss Lois Edmonds, aged 11, the prize breadmaker of Iowa, and ten boys, this year's champion corn growers from the same State, received to-day from Secretary of Agriculture Wilson diplomas in recognition of their work.

Little Miss Edmonds, who took first prize in a State breadbaking contest in which 6,000 girls participated, says her ambition is to bake a loaf for the President.

BABY HAS TWO HEADS.

Both Are Well Formed and Set on One Neck, Back to Back.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 2.—The Harvard Medical School is greatly interested in the birth of a baby with two distinct heads to Mrs. William Karnow of 4 Harvard Place, Cambridge.

The baby was born on Thursday. Mother and child are doing well. Dr. Thomas H. Horton, who attended the mother, believes the baby will live.

Both heads are well formed, although the normal head has better defined features than the extra one. They face in opposite directions, the extra head facing backward, back to back with the normal one.

The hair on the extra head is already grown and a very fine fuzz covers part of the features. The heads set on the one neck, although the extra head is lower toward the shoulders than the normal one.

Except for the two heads, the baby is normal and well formed, and not as delicate in structure as such unusual children ordinarily are.

CITY CAN RUN SUBWAYS.

That Is, If It Cares to Try It There's No Legal Objection.

If the Board of Estimate desires the city to operate the new subways there is no legal obstacle, according to an opinion sent yesterday to the Public Service Commission by George S. Coleman, its counsel. He had been asked to look up the law on the subject when Commissioner Cram introduced a resolution on municipal operation.

The Rapid Transit act, he pointed out, provides that if in the opinion of the Board of Estimate contracts for operation by outside interests would be "inexpedient, impracticable or prejudicial to the public interest," the Public Service Commission must prepare a plan for the maintenance and operation of the subways either under the commission itself or under contracts to corporations for not more than five years. The fares are to be fixed by the commission so as to pay the operating expenses, fixed charges and sinking fund, and whenever a reduction shall be practicable it shall be made first for school children, then for all the public, between 6 and 9 o'clock in the morning and 4 and 7 o'clock in the afternoon, then for all the public between 5 in the morning and 7 in the evening, and then lastly at all hours.

Consequently Mr. Coleman reported that in order to put municipal operation in effect no additional legislation was necessary.

WHY POULTRY IS CHEAPER.

Assistant District Attorney De Ford Says Convictions Caused Drop.

Assistant District Attorney De Ford, who is conducting the inquiry into the high cost of butter and eggs, was furnished with a statement yesterday showing the remarkable drop in the cost of live poultry since the conviction and sentence of members of the Poultry Trust last Summer.

The statement shows that the cost of chickens has decreased about 3½ cents a pound to the consumer. In 1910, just before the members of the Poultry Trust were indicted, the cost of poultry was 6 cents a pound by the carload above the wholesale price. Now it is 2½ cents a pound above the wholesale price.

For 1910 these prices were given: Fowl, 20 cents a pound; Spring chickens, 15 cents a pound; ducks, 22 cents a pound; geese, 20 cents a pound. Mr. De Ford said he had been informed that these prices were now: For fowl, 12½ cents a pound; Spring chickens, 14 to 15 cents; ducks, 22 cents; geese, 16 to 18 cents a pound. These prices are paid by consumers.

It was pointed out at the District Attorney's office that since the investigation into the price of butter started there had been a drop in the price to the consumer of from 3 to 5 cents a pound.

SNEED WITNESS POISONED?

Embalming of Body Balks Efforts to Prove Ground for Doctors' Statement.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 2.—The removal of Edward Throckmorton's body from the hospital where he died to an undertaking establishment and there embalmed before the court's order directing that an autopsy be held was served has balked efforts to ascertain whether Throckmorton, who was the State's principal witness against J. B. Sneed, accused of having murdered Capt. A. G. Boyce, Sr., was poisoned.

Throckmorton died last night from what is said to have been an unknown illness. Physicians declare his death resulted from alcoholic poisoning. A Grand Jury is trying to determine whether what he drank was drugged. Before he died Throckmorton declared he "had been doped."

Members of the Throckmorton family deny that they gave instructions for the removal of the body, while hospital authorities contend that they followed the usual custom of turning the body over to undertakers.

The trial of Sneed will be resumed to-morrow, when a second special venire of 125 men will report.

FOUR SLAIN ON FARM.

Crazed Son Believed to Have Killed His Relatives and Himself.

APPLETON, Wis., Feb. 2.—What is believed by the Sheriff to be a triple murder and suicide was reported to District Attorney F. J. Rooney to-day, when the bodies of four persons, all members of the same family, were found at the farm home of Lewis Mailahn, Binghamton, a settlement fifteen miles from here. The dead are Lewis Mailahn, aged 66 years, shot in head; William Mailahn, aged 21 years; Dora Mailahn, aged 16 years, and John Mailahn, aged 8, the three last named having had their throats cut.

William Mailahn, according to neighbors, had recently been acting strangely, and the supposition is that he murdered his relatives and then killed himself. He had been unfriendly with his father since the Fall, and had been absent from home until last Sunday. A fancied grievance over favors extended to other members of the family is thought to have inspired the deed.

INAUGURATION OF HIBBEN.

Princeton Trustees Decide to Install New President on May 11.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 2.—The committee appointed by the Board of Trustees to make arrangements for the inauguration of Prof. John G. Hibben, Princeton's newly selected President, has announced that the formal inauguration will take place on Saturday, May 11. This date was decided upon in preference to Friday, June 7, which would conflict somewhat with the annual commencement exercises.

Preparations for elaborate ceremonies have been formed and eight sub-committees appointed. Representatives from all the leading educational institutions of the country will be invited.

TO BAR TURKEY TROT IN THEIR BALLROOMS

Managers of Dance Halls Agree on That, but How to Do It Is a Problem.

MAY CHANGE THE CONTRACTS

Committee Is Finally Sent to Talk Over Ways and Means with Mrs. Charles H. Israels.

The managers of some of the largest and best-known dance halls in the city met at Terrace Garden, Third Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon and discussed ways and means of eliminating the "Turkey Trot," the "Grizzly Bear," the "Shiver Dance," the "Boston Dip," the "Bunny Hug," and other dances that have come into prominence in this and other cities recently.

It was stated after the meeting that the proprietors of the halls were ready to aid Mrs. Charles Henry Israels, Chairman of the Committee on Amusement and Vacation Resources for Working Girls, in any and every effort she might make to put an end to the dances.

Among those who attended the conference were Adolph Suesskind of the Terrace Garden, Henry Kreykenbohm of Tammany Hall, Waldron Brothers of the Manhattan Casino, F. Anderson of Teutonia Hall, Richard Sause of the Amsterdam Opera House, A. Hollander of Arlington Hall, Walter Flatz of Ebling's Casino, B. and L. Goldstein of the Palm Garden, and several other persons representing ballrooms and dance halls.

Everybody was agreed that it would be a good thing to do away with all of the obnoxious dances, but how to do it was the rock against which they stumbled.

Finally a resolution was passed to send a committee to consult with Mrs. Israels. One suggestion was that the chief of the Bureau of Licenses send out notices to musical unions that the dances be not played, as this would relieve the proprietors of a great burden.

It was unanimously resolved to have placards printed and distributed around each hall to read:

"Immoral dancing, turkey trot, grizzly bear, shiver dance, Boston dip, &c., shall not be allowed in this hall; by order of the Commissioner of Licenses."

It was further suggested that in all contracts for next year a rule should be inserted in big letters that such dancing should not be allowed; if it was, the contract would not be renewed.

"At the meeting," Mr. Suesskind said last night, "it was shown that the proprietors of the different ballrooms are only too willing to co-operate with Mrs. Israels in her hard work and to do everything they can strictly to comply with the law."

WANT PARIS GOWNS CHEAP?

Uncle Sam Has a Bargain Sale in Old Styles on To-day.

Any one who wants some real Parisian creations cheap can go at 10 o'clock this morning to room 56 on the third floor of the Federal Building and bargain with United States Marshal Henkel and Charles Shongood, the official auctioneer. They will be a little out of fashion as they are of the brand of 1909, but they are gorgeous enough for any taste and bear labels telling by what famous house they were designed.

They are the exhibits in the famous "sleeper trunk" case and filled four large trunks. Now they are condemned to be sold for the benefit of the United States and will probably go far below their original cost. According to the official catalogue there are 19 princess gowns, 67 shirt waists, 43 princess costumes and 30 lace waists. The total value of the articles reckoned by counting their value in Europe when new and in style and their duty here is $3,078.62.

The shimmering garments were laid out yesterday on long tables in the Criminal Branch of the District Court and dozens of fashionable dressmakers spent the morning turning them over and sizing them up. Their verdict was not very complimentary.

"Very fine, my dear," one Fifth Avenue modiste said to another, "but one really couldn't wear such things now. They're ages behind the fashion. We would have to pick them all to pieces."

Year's Misdemeanors 13,439.

The report of Frank S. Smith, Chief Clerk of Special Sessions, shows that during the past year 13,439 cases of misdemeanors were disposed of in Special Sessions Courts in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond. Of all these cases, 3,688 persons were allowed to go on parole and $90,897 was collected in fines. One thousand and seventeen persons were tried for violations of the liquor tax law.

WHO WAS TERRY CAFFERTY?

He's Dead in Garden City, and His Savings Await a Claimant.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Feb. 2.—J. J. Lannin, proprietor of the Garden City Hotel, is trying to locate the relatives or friends of Terrence Cafferty, who died to-day. Cafferty had worked for Mr. Lannin for seven years, but never once had he mentioned a relative, and the only friends he admitted having lived in Thirty-ninth Street, Manhattan. Cafferty would never tell their name or address.

The man, past middle age, had been somewhat of a mystery to the hotel folk. Each month he gave the greater part of his wages to his employer to bank for him, and Mr. Lannin now has a bank book showing a good balance to Cafferty's credit. The old man seemed to have no need of the money, for he never drew on it and never failed to add to it each month.

What to do with this money is now bothering Mr. Lannin. He refused to tell to-night how much it was, but said he was anxious to find the proper persons to whom to give it. He had Cafferty taken care of through his illness of a few days, and will bury him in Westbury. The funeral will not be held until Monday, and Mr. Lannin hopes by then that relatives or friends of the old man will have communicated with him.

Fined for Beating His Daughter.

Theodore Weiting, a grocer at 201 East Seventy-ninth Street, was fined $100 in Special Sessions yesterday after he had been found guilty of beating his daughter Florence. Immediately after he had been fined he notified the Justices that he intended to appeal his case. Weiting said he whipped his daughter because she insisted on staying out late, but denied that he had ever beaten her cruelly, as an agent of the Children's Society testified.

WOMEN TEACHERS MEET.

Miss Strachan Says They Must Fight Changes in Equal Pay Law.

Seven hundred women teachers attended a meeting of the Interborough Association last night in the Metropolitan Tower. Miss Grace Strachan, President of the association, said that in 95 per cent. of the cases in which the salaries of teachers had been adjusted by the Equal Pay bill the results had been satisfactory. Some dissatisfaction, she said, was due to the fact that women teachers receiving a bonus of $60 a year under the old schedules for teaching boys' classes got less money. She said the association would fight to remedy this condition.

Amendments to the Equal Pay bill which had been introduced by Senator Travis and Assemblyman Shlivek were discussed. The Assemblyman introduced a measure to restore the salaries of men teachers in certain grades to the level they received before the salaries were equalized. Miss Strachan won applause when she insisted that all salaries be for "teachers," not for "male teachers," and said that it was necessary that the teachers stay banded together to fight changes in the law.

Miss Strachan announced that she had received a letter from the Equal Suffrage Society, asking her to announce a debate on woman suffrage, and to communicate with all the members of the association. A motion was made granting permission to send out leaflets announcing the debate under cover with official communications to delegates of the association. This was championed on the ground that the suffragists had helped the association to pass the Equal Pay bill. There was a dispute over this resolution, which Miss Strachan gracefully ended by saying that as the communication was addressed to her, as an individual, she would take all responsibility for the answer sent to the suffragists.
